—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

FOURTEEN TIMES in the history of the world, human beings have flown westward across the North Atlantic Ocean. Eric Nelson and Lowell Smith were the first, and now come the brave French airmen, Dieudonne "God-Given" Coste and Maurice Bellonte.

Theirs is the first non-stop westward trip ever made.

LINDBERGH'S EASTWARD flight ALONE with little announcement in advance, and the simple statement: "I am Charles Lindbergh," on arrival will remain the most magnificent flight of all time.

NEXT PERHAPS will come THE ROUND TRIP.

Capt. Hawks, now at the head of American fliers, having flown across the American continent in 12½ hours, almost as far as Lindbergh and Coste and Bellonte flew in more than 30 hours, would be the man for the "New York to Paris and back again flight, with no stop between cities."

When he flies, he really FLIES. Two hundred and fifty miles an hour is his idea of a reasonable gait.

At that rate he could make the trip to Paris in about 16 hours, and back, allowing for head winds, in about 18 hours.

And even those figures in years to come will seem comically "old fashioned."

THE LITERARY AND intelligent Fannie Hurst returns from Europe with a pet marmoset, so small it sits in a large pocketbook. She should write about husbands of the future, who will probably dwindle to about that size, in the course of evolution.

THE GIANT sea crab, when you catch one, is always a female, of great size.

She carries the male crab, about as big as a 10-cent piece, under one of her flippers, except on rare occasions. Human husbands may dwindle down to that, when men have no harder work to do than pushing a button. Size and muscle will no longer count.

BUT WOMAN will remain of full size, because of her maternal duties, and for other reasons. The female spider is 10 times as big as her husband, and eats him after marriage. Human husbands should not complain.

THE INTERESTING charge is made that representatives of the Nye Senate committee, investigating Mrs. McCormick's campaign expenses, gave good government money to bribe a detective hired by Mrs. McCormick.

This does not seem to be playing the game fairly. Each side should respect the other's detectives.

Also Mrs. McCormick's head detective says a lady was "planted in the closet of Mrs. McCormick's Drake Hotel apartment to listen and report. Some Republicans of importance tell you privately "Mrs. McCormick, even if elected, will never enter the Senate." Illinois will want to know about that.

THE UNBELIEVABLE happens. You will read this morning that wheat for September delivery sells in Chicago at 82½ cents a bushel, and September corn at 97⅜ cents.

No Board of Trade speculator, no hard-working farmer expected to see corn selling for 12 cents a bushel more than wheat.

To the Board of Trade gentlemen it simply means that wheat is cheaper than corn. To the farmer it means that corn, which yields to the acre twice as many bushels as wheat, sells for more than wheat.

V. H. POLACHEK, thoughtful and wise, who gets rich while others sleep, says farmers will feed wheat instead of corn to cattle now, since it is a cheaper and better feed. Therefore, corn prices will come down and wheat will go up. He is buying wheat.

The cautious will remember that corn might come down and wheat stay down.

Who can prophecy on supply and demand? Corn has sold as low as 10 cents a bushel, and farmers have used it for fuel in place of coal.

Now it is 12 cents a bushel dearer than wheat. And poor old Uncle Sam early in the year bought nearly 70,000,000 bushels of wheat way above $1 a bushel.

THE IRISH AUTHOR George Russell, better known as "A. E.", an able economist as well as a poet, will soon make a lecture tour in the United States. The intelligent will want to hear him.

On the eve of his departure, friends handed him $4,000, with eloquent speeches of praise including one by the distinguished Jesuit economist, Father Finlay.

Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, has arranged and underwritten Mr. Russell's tour in America, rendering a public service.

GERMAN STATISTICIANS apply grim and correct figures about the great war. It has taken years to prepare them. 10,000,000 soldiers were killed, 30,000 unknown French soldiers lie in one grave.

The horses killed numbered 9,586,000—they certainly didn't start the war.

Eighteen million human beings were wounded, and TWO

COSTE FLIES OVER, SEEN BY FEW

Glimpsed at Rodgers Field, En Route to Dallas as He Speeds for $25,000 Prize

Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte flew over Rodgers Field at 10:45 this morning while thousands waited in various sections of the city and county, anxious for a glimpse of the famous red "?",

Lieut. Samuel C. Eaton, stationed at the field, said the big plane, flying at an altitude of 500, was easily identified by its markings.

In the downtown and outlying sections and at the various flying fields, thousands stood around, eager for a view of the French ship. Few were rewarded with even a glimpse of the "?", however.

Flying fast, the Question Mark passed over Cincinnati at 12:57 (Pittsburgh time) and headed for Louisville, Ky.

Coste's plane was preceded by another, which carried Rene Racover, business manager for the French fliers.

The Question Mark was reported as soaring over Louisville at 1:34 (Pittsburgh time). The fliers dipped over Bowman Field and were easily recognized by the crowd of several hundred.

CONFUSION AS VOTERS REGISTER

Transfer of Polling Places Without Notice Brings Chaos; Complaints Made

Confusion resulting from numerous changes in voting places was reported as polls opened today for the first of three registration days in Pittsburgh and three third-class cities.

Today was the first registration since the redistricting of the county and many citizens trekked to their former polls to find them vacant.

COMPLAINT MADE

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, president of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, complained to the Board of Registration Commissioners that no notices had been posted at the old polling places directing voters to the new locations.

The only notices were at the new locations, she was informed.

Registration during the morning was reported light in most districts.

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong telephoned that the registration board in his district, the Seventh of the Seventeenth Ward, in the Bedford public school, Bingham and South Tenth streets, was refusing to honor valid tax receipts.

Frank O'Neill, recorder of the registration commission, went to the polling place and found that two citizens had sought to register on tax receipts made out to the deceased owner of an estate. Receipts made out to an estate en-

CITY RUINED BY TROPICAL HURRICANE

Buildings Leveled, Wires Disappear; Lunatics Freed, Add to Survivors' Terror

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The City of Santo Domingo, most ancient settlement of the white man in the New World, was almost destroyed by a hurricane that swept over the eastern end of the Island of Haiti yesterday.

The All-America Cables office estimated that 300 persons had been killed and 900 injured.

The hurricane struck Santo Domingo at 2 p. m. and blew for four hours. Houses in the aristocratic quarter were razed to their foundations. Dwellings of the poor simply disappeared on the wings of a wind estimated to be blowing around 150 miles an hour.

SCENES OF HORROR

Scenes whose horror exceeded anything witnessed here in 10 years followed its passage. President Rafael Trujillo took personal charge of the relief work. The entire army was called out.

The communications systems of the republic were totally disrupted. No news came from the rest of the country, but in the neighborhood of the capital, bridges were wrecked and roads were rendered impassable. Telegraph lines simply vanished.

The plant of the newspaper La Opinion, Associated Press member in Santo Domingo, was destroyed. Despite this, members of its staff at the first available opportunity sent a story of the disaster to the New York offices. A building adjoining La Opinion's plant crumbled before the wind. Three of its 15 occupants perished.

LUNATICS ESCAPE

The lunatic asylum was destroyed and those inmates escaping death ran wild through the city streets, adding to the horror of the disorder and confusion everywhere. They were finally recaptured by soldiers and police.

Officials and newspapers appealed for aid to the American Press and to all charitable organizations in the United States. Hunger began to show its effects

DORMONT LOAN OFFICIAL HELD

Charged with embezzling more than $50,000 from two building and loan associations in Dormont, Winfield S. Walsh, an attorney, of 2749 Broadway, Dormont, with offices in the Union Trust Building, was being held in the county jail today in default of $25,000 bail, according to operatives of the State Banking Department.

Information filed by Frank D. McCully, building and loan examiner for the State Banking Department, before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, charged Walsh with embezzling the amount during the last three years from the Dormont Building and Loan Association and the Thrift Building and Loan Association, also of Dormont.

Arraigned before Flanigan this afternoon, Walsh waived hearing and was held for court trial.

Indian Negotiations For Peace Collapse

BOMBAY, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Peace negotiations in India between the government and the civil disobedience leaders, including Mahatma Gandhi and the Nehrus, officially broke down today.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and M. Jayakar have been trying to compromise the difficulties between the British government and the Nationalist leaders in India. They paid several visits to Mahatma Gandhi and the Nehrus in their prisons.

Snee's First Act As Judge Aids Vet

Judge Sylvester Snee, recently appointed to the bench of Quarter Sessions Court, performed his first official act today when he granted a peddler's license to Morris Saltman, of 832 Collins avenue, a disabled soldier. The petition was presented by S. J. Topley, clerk of courts.

Wisconsin Opera Star Dies in France

CHATOU, France, Sept. 4—(AP.) Mrs. Maryn Lucia Dyar, nee Fish, of Eau Claire, Wis., opera singer, died Monday at the age of 25. She sang under the name of Louise Marcia, and was the wife of Charles B. Dyar, a special agent of the Treasury Department living at Eau Claire.

BOXER HUDKINS SUED BY GIRL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Revealing an alleged romance in the life of Ace Hudkins, Nebraska "Wildcat," middleweight boxing title contender, two suits were filed against him today for damages aggregating $160,000 in the Superior Court by Miss Rhea W. Hill.

One suit was for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise, and the other was for $60,000 damages for an alleged beating said to have been administered to Miss Hill by the boxer.

Aged Tramp Robbed, Skull Fractured

Andrew Barencho, 67, and homeless, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital with a fractured skull, which he said he received while being robbed of 50 cents by two Negroes in a tramp settlement on the bank of the Monongahela River at the foot of the City Farm steps, North Homestead.

Authorities Threaten Striking Pupils With Truancy Action

Truant officers of the Board of Education are ready to act against parents of children in the Obey school district, Crafton Heights, where striking pupils have organized outdoor classes, Charles Reisfar, Jr., in charge of attendance, said today.

Nothing will be done until tomorrow, Mr. Reisfar announced, because the law demands that a child, to be guilty of truancy, must have been absent from his classes for three days.

DIFFICULT POSITION

Mr. Reisfar said:

"We are in a rather difficult position since there seems to be some controversy over a school now closed. The matter is already under consideration by the Board of Education.

"A hearing will be held September 23, but unless the pupils attend the schools they are assigned to until that date, we really have no choice other than to take steps against them.

"Tomorrow our officers will visit the parents of the children who have been absent. No harsh means will be taken to bring the children back to school, but I'm afraid we will have to follow the law in this matter."

It was explained that under the

PINCHOT CLANS SEEK UNITY

A political meeting in the form of a barbecue and corn roast will be held next Monday at Daniels' farm, Babcock boulevard, by those who are said to have ambitions to amalgamate the followers of the late Judge Richard W. Martin and of former Councilman James F. Malone into a working political organization.

It will be known as the Richard W. Martin Republican Organization, a name adopted last spring when the Martin and Malone forces were called together in an effort to swing their support to Gifford Pinchot in his gubernatorial campaign.

Attorneys John H. Frankel and Joseph Reich, leaders in Judge Martin's campaign, are sponsors of the organization, which is expected by them to become a permanent political organization. Former Councilman Malone is an honorary member and is said to be willing to speak at the barbecue if he attends.

SHIP BATTERED BY HURRICANE

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A battered tropical passenger liner limped into this port today after having passed through the very center of one of the worst hurricanes the Caribbean has known in years. The ship, the Porto Rico liner Coamo, Capt. Thomas Evans, escaped annihilation narrowly.

The Coamo turned back from Santo Domingo, her destination, last night, and for a dozen hours no word came of her fate.

Buffeted for more than seven hours, the engineers raced the engines at full speed, but could make little or no headway. The wind stripped the decks of everything movable, tore off hatches and threw the vessel so far over on her side that the oiling machinery was useless. Fuel oil ballast was pumped from port to starboard bunkers to trim the ship.

Capt. Evans said the barometer went to the bottom of the glass while his ship was in the center of the storm.

Not a life was lost and only a few passengers were slightly injured.

Dr. W. F. Gray, ship's surgeon, who made a further examination of all in his charge, announced that their injuries were trivial.

Among the Coamo's passengers was John S. Reeves, 57 Dalden street, Youngstown, O.

French Aces Attend Dinner For German War Rivals

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—The scene was a hotel banquet room. Gathered there last night were Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three companions who flew to New York two weeks ago in their Dornier-Wal flying boat. They were the guests of the German-American Conference, made up of a score of New York societies.

There had been a few speeches in German and a little German music.

And then the door opened.

A short, dark Frenchman walked in.

Bedlam broke loose.

He was Capt. Dieudonne Coste. Behind him was his pal, Bellonte.

And just behind the two French "grenadiers" was a tall, slim, blond American.

"Col. Charles A. Lindbergh," was what the butler would have announced, only there was no butler.

And last to enter the room was an Irishman—Mayor James J. Walker, of New York.

Col. Lindbergh was asked to speak but declined, but Coste addressed the German fliers and their friends. He said:

"In flying there are no barriers, no boundaries. We are all one great family. I want to say that great credit is due Von Gronau and his companions for their feat. Some of us may have fought each other years ago but surely there is no reason why any enmity should exist now."

Show Girl Promises She'll Tell When Rudy Proposed

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Agnes O'Loughlin, Broadway show girl, agreed today to furnish a bill of particulars to counsel for Rudy Vallee in her $200,000 breach of promise suit against the blond crooner.

Vallee had demanded that the show girl stipulate when and where he was alleged to have proposed marriage to her and under what circumstances.

He withdrew his motion for answers to these and other questions when the complainant's counsel said they would give him the information.

ILLNESS DOOMED ANDREE EXPEDITION, RECORDS DISCLOSE

STRINDBERG STRICKEN ON TREK

Companion's Death Robbed Explorer of Rescue Hope, Expert Investigators Find

By ARNE KILDAL.

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 4.—Evidence that Nils Strindberg, youthful companion of Salomon Auguste Andree, was ill when he and Andree reached White Island, on their trek back toward civilization, and that this illness may have been the fatal turning point for the expedition, was uncovered today by the investigators examining the relics of that expedition.

The findings of the export commission also established the belief that Andree entertained hopes of pushing on from White Island—possibly to Franz Joseph Land—but evidently abandoned this plan after Strindberg died.

These deductions were drawn from discovery that the expedition's boat, strapped to one of the sledges, was fully loaded with food, ammunition, navigating tables and the explorers' library, all indicating that when the camp was made at White Island, it was intended to be only temporary.

FRANKEL HAD DIED

Knut Frankel, the third member of the party, already had succumbed to the hardships of the trek back from latitude 83 north, where the Andree balloon had landed. After the death of Strindberg, the examining experts believe, Andree found the task of moving the expedition's equipment, in further search of rescue, too great for himself alone. It must have been then that he resigned himself to death.

This resignation did not come immediately, however, as is shown by the fact a number of Strindberg's possessions were found in the pockets of Andree's clothing.

Among these, identified by Tore Strindberg, Nils' brother, who is now in Tromsoe, were a revolver, ammunition for it, a matchbox and a pocketknife.

It was evident, in the opinion of the experts, that Andree had taken these things in the hope that should he survive to reach civilization, he could return them to Strindberg's relatives. Finding articles in Andree's pockets also has served to confirm the previous belief that Andree was the last of the party to die.

RIFLES FOUND IN BOAT

The experts' examination of the expedition's boat was not completed today. So far, however, it has revealed that the boat contained the explorerers' library, comprising several nautical tables, an issue of the magazine Ymer, which published an article written by Andree and describing his expedition of 1896; maps and a folded, typewritten document, apparently containing memoranda written by the Swedish Arctic Explorer Nathorest.

There were two rifles in the boat. Another had been found beside Andree's body. The remains of a rare species of bird lay wedged between the books.

No further excerpts from the day-to-day diary were given out by the experts, Professors Hendren and Lithberg. It is understood that the diary will be sent to the Swedish government and that a special commission will prepare its contents for official publication.

Gov. Balzar Easy Winner in Nevada

RENO, Nev., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Final returns in Tuesday's statewide primary elections today gave Gov. Fred B. Balzar an overwhelming victory in the Republican gubernatorial race. The Governor polled 7,934 votes as against 3,828 for E. E. Roberts, mayor of Reno, and 1,835 for R. H. Cowles, ranch owner.

Gov. Balzar's opponent in the November election will be Charles Richards, who won the Democratic nomination.

RED CROSS ACTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The Red Cross acted immediately today to aid the suffering in Santo Domingo on receipt of a plea from President Rafael L. Trujillo, of the Dominican Republic.

Fifteen thousand dollars was cabled to American Minister Curtis as an initial appropriation for the emergency, Capt. Antonio Silva, manager of the Porto Rican chapter of the Red Cross, was ordered to go by air from San Juan to the scene of devastation.

CUBA ESCAPES

HAVANA, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Cuban observatory officials announced shortly after noon today that the course of the West Indies hurricane had turned north toward the open sea after hitting Santo Domingo and would miss Cuba entirely.

Announcement that danger to the island of Cuba had been eliminated by the new course of the hurricane was made both by the Rev. Gutierrez Lanza, of Belen observatory, and Dr. Jose Millas, of the national observatory.

Florida Preparing To Combat Hurricane

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—The tropical hurricane which devastated the city of Santo Domingo is now central on the northwestern tip of Haiti, moving north-northwest towar dthe Florida straits, Richard W. Gray, United States meterologist here, announced today.

Although the storm passed over a mountainous region during the night, it still is of hurricane force, Gray said. He expressed the belief that the hurricane would change its course late today, but would not reach the Florida coast before tomorrow night.

The Weather Bureau today was swamped with telephone calls from anxious residents in the South Florida area, seeking information on the storm, and hundreds filed into the bureau for first-hand news of the hurricane.

Meanwhile hundreds of Householders were boarding up their homes as a precautionary measure in event the storm strikes the Florida coast, and owners of small craft prepared to take the boats up Miami River for safety.

Columbus Buried At Santo Domingo

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The city of Santo Domingo, held an estimated population of 35,000 three years ago. Located on the Ozama River, a tropical stream, it has been considered an outstanding specimen of the Sixteenth century Spanish city in the new world.

Guarding the entrance to the harbor is an old rock fort, with its historic turreted Columbus tower. In the town is the old gothic cathedral, where Columbus once was buried, and where rest the bones of many notable families in early American history.

REGISTRATION BRISK IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Enrolment of citizens here for the November general election started today briskly in some sections of the city.

During the first half-hour of the division registrars' first session, which began at 8 o'clock, a number of the 1,590 polling places were visited by a fair proportion of the precinct's men and women electors.

That was noticeable in divisions well manned by workers representing the Republican party and its nominee for governor, Gifford Pinchot, and the Democratic and Liberal parties, whose gubernatorial candidate is John M. Hemphill.

Owing to the Pinchot-Hemphill gubernatorial fight political leaders expect the new registration here will exceed that of last year.

Republican leaders, functioning through the city committee, instructed the division men to get out a heavy enrollment.

Awake to the possibility that the organization may not support the Republican candidate, the local Pinchot forces are working hard on behalf of the former governor.

title the holders to register, O'Neill held, and instructed the board to permit the persons to qualify.

BOARDS ABSENT

No registration board was reported at the Ninth District, Seventh Ward, garage of J. G. Calverly, Howe street and South Highland avenue, at the opening hour.

Several polling places were not open, according to complaints to the registration commission, among them being those of the Twenty-sixth district, Fourteenth Ward, premises of Philip Goodman, 5745 Beacon street; Fourteenth District, Twelfth Ward, Lemington Real Estate Company, 1419 Lincoln avenue; Eighteenth District, Fourth Ward, garage at 618 Wilmot street. In several districts there was no paraphernalia, it was reported.

OTHER DAYS

Other registration days in the cities of the county will be held on September 16 and October 4. The heaviest registration is usually on the last day.

Pittsburgh registrars were to sit today from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m. daylight saving time.

Registrars in the other cities were to sit from 8 to 10 a. m., from noon until 3 p. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

U. S. Dry School Approves Use of Boys as Sleuths

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Use of small boys as prohibition sleuths is approved by the Bureau of Prohibition, it developed today.

Super-agents from the 12 districts who are undergoing instruction here, being taught the fine art of shadowing suspects, were told:

"Two boys can engage in games near the home of the subject without attracting attention, whereas a man loitering in the neighborhood would arouse suspicion."

Also:

"A man or a boy on a bicycle can follow a truck without arousing suspicion."

The rapidly mounting death-toll of shotgun prohibition enforcement methods by rural police and deputies was being viewed with deep alarm by federal prohibition leaders here today. The high command of prohibition enforcement has refused formal comment on the latest killing at Mobile, Ala., of a 24-year-old mother whom two deputies suspected of having liquor in her car.

At the time the report of the new death arrived here, the prohibition agents' school of instruction was in its second day, and lecturers were adopting as their keynote the necessity for utmost caution and complete respect for citizens' rights.

Although attacks on the basic prohibition law are absent so far from among the cases to be taken up this fall by the Supreme Court, two separate efforts will be made to have the Jones "five and ten" law set aside as unconstitutional. Among pending cases, however, are two of alleged illegal search and seizure, one from Pennsylvania and the other from Texas. In the former it is asserted federal prohibition agents unlawfully acted under a state search warrant, and in the latter that they acted without any warrant.

MOTHER OF 10 ILL, DELAYS BELL TRIAL

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4.—The twelfth juror was accepted this morning in the trial of A. W. (Tony) Bell, charged with the murder of Deputy Constable John F. Donohoe, but plans for beginning of testimony were immediately upset by the excusal of Mrs. Martha Goodman, Juror No. 3.

Hugh Jeffries of Brownsville, had taken his place as juror No. 12 when Mrs. Martha Goodman was called from the box by Judge Thomas H. Hudson for re-examination. It was brought out that the aged woman, mother of 10 children, is ill and it was agreed among counsel that she be excused as physically disabled.

RESUME DRAFT

It was necessary to resume the examination of tentative jurors and the clerk was ordered to draw names from the panel. One hundred and seventy-five have been examined so far.

With only four prospective jurors, two men and two women, left in the special panel of 150, and one needed to complete the jury, there was a strong possibility that deputy sheriffs would be sent out into the streets of Uniontown and surrounding towns this afternoon to conscript another special panel.

A total of 196 men and women had been examined when court took the noon recess. Judge Hudson displayed some irritation over the large number of persons asserting conscientious scruples.

Because of the widespread attention attracted by the finding of Constable Donohoe's bullet ridden body and the subsequent suicide of District Attorney Nicholas W. Rosenberg, it has been difficult to find 12 persons who have not already formed a definite opinion. Then, too, there have been numerous pleas for excuse from jury duty on the grounds of being conscientious objectors to capital punishment.

One woman being examined for jury duty startled the crowded courtroom, when she declared she knew something of events that took place near the scene of the killing. Following her dismissal from jury duty, she was subpeaned as a Commonwealth witness.

TWELVE CHOSEN

The 12 jurors who had been selected, four of them women, are as follows:

1. Owen Fletcher, Tyrone Township farmer.
2. Mrs. Mary Costella, Lemont store clerk.
3. Mrs. Martha Goodman, Lemont housewife.
4. Orville Stacy, Luzerne Township blacksmith.
5. Mrs. Mary Rugg, wife of a Dunbar Township school master.
6. Jesse McCann, Luzerne Township farmer.
7. Commodore Pike, Dunbar Township miner.
8. John T. Landymore, P. & L. E. Railroad passenger conductor, of Dawson.
9. Miss Belle Rodger, Uniontown.
10. Albert G. McCartney, Ohio Pyle bus owner and operator.
11. Thomas Clements, Dunbar merchant.
12. Hugh Jeffries, Brownsville.

HOLDS EIGHT OFFICES

The attorney, an officer in eight real estate investment companies, was arrested by Constable Ross Talamo as he was about to step into an elevator in the Union Trust Building last night. Unable to raise the high bail, Walsh was committed to jail.

The information charged that Walsh took $33,605.91 from the Thrift Building and Loan Association over a period of three years and $18,297.94 from the Dormont association in three embezzlements last June.

According to the information in the Thrift association case, Walsh "embezzled, abstracted and wilfully misapplied" funds of the organization on eight occasions, between April 30, 1927, and July 8 of this year. In the information in the Dormont association case charges of embezzlement of sums on June 3, June 19, and June 24 of this year, are contained.

LONG INVESTIGATION

One information charges Walsh emblezzled $1,251.45 from the Thrift Association on April 30, 1927; $7,000 on June 30, 1928; $5,000 on October 30, 1928; $1,900 on November 26, 1928; $4,869 on July 15, 1929; $6,001.50 on March 20, 1930; $5,000 on July 7, 1930, and $2,583.95 on July 8, 1930.

The other information alleges Walsh took $6,878.50 on June 3, from the Dormont association; $3,600 on June 19 and $7,819.19 on June 24.

The informations were filed after an investigation which had been carried on for several weeks by McCully and J. D. Swigert, chief examiner at Pittsburgh for the state banking department.

3 Photographers In Plane Injured

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Three photographers in a plane which had escorted Coste and Bellonte, on the start of their flight to Dallas, where injured today when their machine made a forced landing on a Queensboro golf course and struck a lawnmower.

Morris Becker, of the Associated Press, was treated at Jamaica Hospital. Arthur Storm and Arthur Muizalone also were hurt.

PROVIDENCE, Ky., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Electric light poles at Coiltown, two miles from here, were blasted last night, crippling the Providence lighting system more than an hour. The dynamitings were the latest of a series believed arising from labor troubles in the Webster County coal fields.

Four blasts were heard about 9 o'clock, and Providence was plunged into darkness. Linemen for the Kentucky Utilities Company restrung the wires.

HUNDRED AND FORTY-SEVEN BILLIONS OF DOLLARS WERE SPENT, WASTED.

And that is what the world is paying for now in its slump, undoubtedly.

EIGHTEEN so-called "terrorists," all Jugo-Slavian, are on trial at Trieste, and one confesses a plot to murder Mussolini.

Italy doesn't pamper prisoners. Each defendant is kept in a steel cage, taken out only for examination.

ASSASSINATION THREATS are among the things that interest Mussolini very little.

He firmly believes that he has a definite work to do, and that something, somewhere preserves him until it is done.

Weather Conditions

The extensive area of high pressure, yesterday centered over the Dakotas, devianted eastward during the past 24 hours, and is now central over Michigan, and overlies the Lake region, Central Valleys, New England, Middle Atlantic States, and Southern Plains, attended by further falls in temperature over most of these sections. Thunderstorms appear over Southern Columbia, Arizona and south of Florida. Showers have occurred along the North Atlantic Coast, Florida, West Gulf States, Southern Plains and Southern Rocky Mountains. It is somewhat warmer in the Dakotas, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

River Conditions

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is minus 0.3 foot; Locks No. 7, 5.2; Pittsburgh, 9.2; Dam No. 4, 5.1; Dam No. 7, 5.5; Dam No. 9, 8.0; and Dam No. 12, 4.0. The dams are up.

Aviation Bulletin

Skies are clear, with unlimited ceilings, over the airway between Hadley and Chicago, with a visibility of three miles, except at Chicago. Winds are light and mostly northeast.

Flying weather will continue good this afternoon and tonight, with clear skies and good visibilities.

WOMAN DRY OPPOSES RUTH

Illinois Legislator in Race Against Mrs. McCormick For Place in Senate

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Lottie Holman O'Neill, first woman legislator in Illinois, announced today her entry into the United States senatorial race as an independent candidate opposing Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate, with whom she has political differences in state affairs, and James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat.

She said her candidacy was in response to the protest of the organized dry element of Illinois against the attitude of the Republican State convention on the prohibition issue.

Mrs. O'Neill will file her petitions at Springfield tomorrow.

The pioneer woman legislator, although a Republican long prominent in state politics, has been on hostile terms with Mrs. McCormick. In January, 1929, she resigned from the directorate of the Illinois Women's Republican Clubs in protest against what she called the "domination" of the clubs by Mrs. McCormick.

NYE PUSHES QUIZ

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Senator Gerald P. Nye's answer to the challenge of Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick: "What are you going to do about my employment of detectives to investigate you and the United States Senate Investigating Committee?" is that he is going to keep right on investigating.

The North Dakota Senator in a statement last night declared:

"The committee will not be diverted from its clearly defined duty by any smoke screen laid down through a will to threaten, intimidate and influence."

The Senator said he had been amazed to read the statement of this candidate in which guilt of such employment (of detectives) was admitted."

HEARING ADJOURNS

Senators Nye and Porter W. Dale of Vermont, the two committee members who have been hearing witnesses here the past two days, adjourned sessions late yesterday until September 15, at which time the other committee members are expected to be here. At that time the committee expects to pursue its inquiry into Mrs. McCormick's use of detectives to investigate the committee members and committee employes.

OPEN AIR SCHOOL

The open sky today continued to house students of the Obey avenue district, who, with their teachers, Miss Mabel Oakes and Mrs. Minnie Roberts, are protesting the mile trek to the Schaeffer school. A slight increase in attendance was reported.

Parents of the children this morning saw to it that the pupils were at their posts when the day's exercises were begun.

SEVENTY ON STRIKE

More than 70 pupils from the district have protested the movement of the Shaler Township School Board by absenting themselves from classes.

The pupils who were ordered to travel the mile extra distance were from the six, seventh and eighth grades, school officials said. Parents have taken up their cause and are planning a parents' meeting Friday night.

Meanwhile, the Shaler Township School Board plans to take action upon the insurgents.

Parents of the children say the new ruling necessitates a daily bus fare of 25 cents for each child. They further point out that the child must take a packed lunch, as return to their homes at noon is impossible.

Blow Out Electric Light, If Using New Switch

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The old joke about lazy folks who work merely by drawing their breath today became the latest reality of scientific developments to reduce man's physical toil.

An electric light which can be blown out with the same small puff that extinguishes a match was placed on exhibition at the Westinghouse Lighting Institute here.

Its secret is a new kind of electric switch, the breath relay, for which are promised many useful applications. It can be set to turn either on or off.

It gives man a third "hand" for some kinds of mechanical operations, and a substitute for hands in cases where he wishes to avoid direct touch.

The latter purpose was the object of the inventor, Dr. E. E. Free, New York engineer. But when the device was perfected by Westinghouse, it proved unexpectedly reliable and not greatly subject to operation by vagrant breezes.

The company says it can be used for safety devices and for extending the operator's control of automobiles, airplanes, scientific apparatus, punch-presses and other machines in which hands and feet are busy.

It also can be made to actuate devices that open the service doors of restaurants and to operate the carriages of typewriters and billing machines. It is even claimed that the breath device can be made to turn the pages of sheet music.

For extinguishing the lights, a person blows into a trim little funnel which resembles the mouthpiece of a telephone.

U. S. BUILDING PARLEY HERE

Efforts to untangle the latest snarl in the plans for Pittsburgh's new postoffice building will be made at a conference here tomorrow between representatives of Trowbridge & Livingston, government architects, of New York, and W. D. Wiggins, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The problems confronting the conference are these:

2—Railroad engineers having declared that a further change of grade is impracticable, the architects will ponder how they can provide a building without adding from eight to 12 additional steps at the entrance to the structure.

3—Since excavations for the Gulf Refining Company's building it has been discovered that it will be necessary to go down a greater depth to reach bed rock than had been originally estimated. This will increase the cost and also afford extra basement room, but no provision has been made for utilization of the additional space.

4—Instead of lowering the railroad tracks into the basement, consideration will be given to an alternative proposition of cutting off some 2½ feet in headroom between car clearance and the ceiling of the trackage area.

Ball Player Killed 1 Injured, by Train

NEW MADRID, Mo., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Francis D. Gray, 22, killed near here yesterday when a motor car in which he was riding was struck by a Cotton Belt train, today was identified as "Dick" Gray, star pitcher for the Springfield, Mo., Western Association baseball team.

W. S. Wells, driver of the car, seriously injured, was an outfielder for the Springfield team. The season closed Monday, and Gray and Wells were en route to their homes in Chattanooga.

Sympathetic Chef Spends $8, Jailed, Aiding Girls

It cost W. T. Hudleson, 52, a cook on the steamer Betsy Ann, $8 and a night in jail to assume the role of detective in an effort to run down the thief who stole the clothing of three girl musicians of the boat, it was testified in Central Police Court today before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg.

Hudleson said he paid $8 to a pawn broker for a revolver and was arrested by detectives when he asked them for a permit to carry it. He said he felt sorry for the three girls, and wanted to help them retrieve their stolen clothing. He was discharged.

4 HELD IN DEATH OF POLICEMAN

Four men arrested in connection with the death of Patrolman Mark Scott, 36, were turned over to the coroner today for investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court.

They are John O'Leary, 30, alleged proprietor of a moonshine joint in Larimer avenue, where the officer was found dead with a fracture of the skull; Robert Johnston, Negro; Fred Shields, 22, of 326 Mingo street, and John Henning, 26, of 7145 Lemington avenue.

Homicide Lieut. Frank Ferris said his investigation disclosed that the officer did not die on the street, but in the Larimer avenue place where his body was found. The suspects testified that Scott fell down the cellar steps, striking his head as he fell.

Patrolman Scott was unmarried and resided with his aged mother at 1345 Manning street. He was attached to the North Side Police Station and had been on the police force seven years.

EXPECT JUDGES NAMED TODAY

Appointment of County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich and William McNaugher to vacancies on the Common Pleas bench of Allegheny county was expected to be made today, by Gov. John S. Fisher, according to word reported received here by W. L. Mellon, former Republican state chairman.

They will succeed Judges Thomas D. Carnahan and Thomas J. Ford, both of whom resigned recently, because of ill health.

POLICE AID ASKED

The New York Police Department was asked to aid in the hunt for Justice Crater today by Simon H. Rifkind, of the law firm of Wagner, Quillinan & Rifkind, with whom Crater was associated before his judicial appointment.

Ten days before he vanished the jurist discussed going to Europe with General Sessions Judge Amadee Bertini.

Crater formerly was a law partner of U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, who was due here today from Europe and was expected to aid in the search.

Assistant Attorney-General Penney, aiding in the preparation of the investigation into the Ewald case, said:

"Crater was president of the Cayuga Democratic Club, of which Martin Healy is leader. We were about to call him as a witness."

Healy, former tammany leader, was the recipient of the $10,000 loan from Mrs. Ewald which is under investigation.

HOOVER'S TOUR HIT AT CRITICS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Having tacitly permitted himself to be made the principal issue in the forthcoming congressional campaign, it appeared today that President Hoover has determined to exhibit the issue to the country in the flesh, and at the same time undertake a vigorous personal participation in the fight to retain a Republican majority in Congress.

His decision to make four speeches in a six-day period next month over an itinerary that calls for strenuous travel generally was taken to mean in Washington that Mr. Hoover has accepted the Democratic challenge to prove his administration has not been a failure.

By speaking to the American Bankers' Association in Cleveland on October 2, the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor in Boston on October 6, and the sesqui-centennial celebration of the Battle of King's Mountain near Gastonia, N. C., on October 7, it was pointed out, the President will reach directly, in a week, the financial interests, the labor vote, the war veterans, and the "Hoovercrats" who split the solid South for the first time in 1928.

POLICE RETAIN AIMEE GUARD

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Two burly policemen continued today to stand guard before the beach cottage where Aimee Semple McPherson, famed evangelist, is recovering from an asserted nervous collapse.

The guard was provided by the police department in response to a request by Mrs. McPherson's followers who charged that Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, had threatened to kidnap her.

Alleging that her daughter is, in reality, recovering from a face-lifting operation, Mrs. Kennedy admitted she hired some men to "persuade" Mrs. McPherson to move from the beach house to a hospital.

Halpin Death Laid To Condition of Bus

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury absolved G. P. Landers, Warren, of blame in the automobile-bus accident last week which caused the deaths of Raymond Halpin, Pittsburgh, and Miss Katharine Hunter, Franklin. The jury ascribed the wreck to the "defective condition" of the bus. Halpin was the driver of the car struck by the bus, which was driven by Landers.

MEYER TO HEAD RESERVE BOARD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The early resignation of Edmund Platt as vice governor of the Federal Reserve Board is expected by the administration, and Eugene Meyer, of New York, will be appointed governor of the board by President Hoover.

The recent resignation of Roy A. Young left the governorship vacant. The President has been unable to name Meyer because Platt represents the New York District.

Administration officials were revealed today as understanding that Platt has about decided to accept a position in the business world. This would clear the way for appointment of Meyer, who served for years as chairman of the War Finance Corporation and later was commissioner for the Federal Farm Loan Board.

The resignation of Platt would leave two vacancies. With Meyer assuming the chairmanship, the other appointee would have to come from the Minneapolis district, which was represented by Young.

The Federal Reserve act stipulates that only one member of the board can come from any district.

Prize Drill Team Wins Pershing Praise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Gen. John J. Pershing, retired, called on President Hoover today and upon leaving the White House his attention was attracted by the young women's drill team from Des Moines, Ia., which won a prize at the Baltimore convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The women, dressed in white, held an impromptu drill for the former commander of the A. E. F., while waiting to see the President themselves. At the end of the brief maneuver their drill captain saluted the general who returned it and commented:

"That was fine. No wonder you won the prize. I would have given it to you myself."

MATHER HEARD ON MERGER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Testimony tending to strengthen the conviction that H. G. Dalton, partner in Pickhands, Mather and Company, was the prime mover in the plan to merge Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation, was given in common pleas court here today at the trial of the injunction suit against the consolidation.

The witness was S. Livingston Mather, son of Samuel Mather, who is reputed to be Ohio's wealthiest citizen. Mather, a director of Sheet & Tube and an associate of Cyrus S. Eaton, bitter anti-mergerist, in the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Corporation, was testifying as a "special court's witness" under questions directed by Judge David G. Jenkins himself.

The court questioned Mather closely regarding the various steps leading to the merger plans and regarding the opposition of Eaton, who had contended that a merger of Sheet and Tube with Inland Steel Company, of Chicago, would be more advantageous than one with Bethlehem.

Judge Jenkins' examination drew from Mather details of the two meetings held in Cleveland when the merger plans were discussed.

Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust Company, was in the courtroom during Mather's testimony. Judge Jenkins planned to call him to the witness stand later as another "special court's witness." Creech represented the Eaton interests on the Sheet and Tube board when the merger was approved last March 12. He cast the only dissenting vote to the consolidation.

HOLDUP VICTIM SLAYS BANDIT

POMEROY, O., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—One bandit was killed and two others were believed wounded today at Hobson, near here, when W. R. Athey, 45, gasoline filling station owner, opened fire upon the trio after they had robbed him.

The three bandits, one carrying a pistol, first purchased one gas from Athey. They then followed him into his station and pushed him upon a cot while one of the men robbed him. Athey reached under the pillow, grasped a pistol, and opened fire.

One robber fell, shot to death. Another, apparently unarmed, was standing between Athey and the armed bandit, and the latter did not return the fire. They ran from the station and Athey continued to fire at them. He said he believed he wounded at least one of them.

The dead bandit, unidentified, was about 30 years old. He had two pistols and 52 cartridges in his pockets.

Bromley Asks Use Of New Air Field

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Lieut. Harold Bromley, Pacific coast flier, who plans to span the Pacific from here to Tacoma, Wash., applied for permission today to start off from the air field near Aomori.

Since he was balked in his attempt to hop off some days ago by failure of the plane to lift, he has been looking for a suitable air field. The previous start was made from the air field near Tokio.

Chicago Gun Seller Held in Lingle Quiz

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Peter Von Frantzius, sporting goods dealer, accused of selling guns to Chicago gangsters, surrendered on a warrant charging that he was an accessory before the fact in the slaying of Alfred J. Lingle, Tribune reporter. Von Frantzius was released on bond pending a hearing September 24.

Educator, Ill, Fires Home, Dies of Burns

MUNCIE, Ind., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Dumont Lotz, 65, of Muncie, at one time a widely known educator, set fire to his home at Royerton, near here, today and was burned to death. Mrs. Lotz was seriously burned. John, 23, a son, also suffered injuries. Lotz was said to have become demented as a result of an extended illness.

Coolidge Hails Aviation As Agent of World Amity

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 4.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The airplane flight of Coste and Bellonte from Paris to New York is one of the most spectacular ever made. The danger of adverse winds and fogs had to be surmounted. Weather conditions had to be most favorable. Because of the great hazard involved, the judgment and skill required, these men properly rank as heroes of an epoch-making exploit, where others had failed, they succeeded.

Calvin Coolidge

Undoubtedly this flight marks an advance in the art of aviation. It called for a plane of great power and perfect mechanical adjustment. But it raises no new question in military or commercial aviation. It demonstrates that the westward crossing is possible under some conditions, but that regular service is not yet practical. It stands as a great spectacle.

Such flights are of great value in their effect on international comity. When Lindbergh made his historic voyage to Paris, the French people felt almost as much pride in his accomplishment as his own countrymen. It aroused and cemented a most wholesome sentiment of friendship.

Such flights further demonstrate the peculiar international aspect of aviation. It reaches everywhere, breaks down domestic barriers and requires universal rules and regulations for its operation. It hastens the day of good will and co-operation.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Father's Will Requires Children Pay Rent

"If any of my children are living in any of my properties after my death, they must pay the same rent as that demanded of strangers."

Such was the unusual stipulation in the will of Serafino R. S. Summo, of Swissvale, filed for probate today.

His son, V. D. Summo, is to receive a bequest of $600; a daughter, Annie, property at 7216 Agnes street, Swissvale; his daughters, Pasqualina and Elizabeth, and a son, Francesco, houses in the rear of 714-16 Agnes street; a daughter, Marie, a house at 7214 Agnes street, and a daughter, Giovannia, a house at 7214½ Agnes street.

The rent clause is taken to refer to any of the children who did not receive a home in the bequests.

The Braddock Trust Company was named executor of the estate.

MISSING JUDGE LINKED WITH JOB BUYING

N. Y. Jurist, Gone Month, Feared Slain; Last Seen Cashing $5,000 Check

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 — Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater, missing for a month, last night was mentioned at the offices of the attorney general in connection with the investigation into the appointment of George F. Ewald as magistrate.

The jurist was last seen leaving his office after having drawn $5,000 from his banks about a month ago. He walked south along Broadway and nothing has been seen or heard of him since.

EWALD TOASTMASTER

Justice Crater is said to have acted as toastmaster at a dinner given to Ewald in 1927, shortly after Ewald was made a magistrate.

It is charged Ewald paid for his appointment. The loan of $10,000 made by Mrs. Ewald to Martin J. Healy, former Tammany leader, is alleged to have been the purchase price of Ewald's place on the bench.

The jurist had an enviable public record on the bench. He was conscientious, dependable, never late to court and apparently enjoyed his work keenly.

HOME LIFE HAPPY

He was known as not being a drinking or party man. He led an ideal happy married life and telephoned his wife from one to five times a day.

Friends expressed the theory that the jurist had been slain. The sum of money on his person when last seen supported a theory of robbery.

FEW HERE SEE COSTE GO BY

a 130-mile-an-hour rate passing over Allentown, Pa., at 8:45, Ebensburg at 9:45 and Pittsburgh at 10:45 Pittsburgh time.

CROSSES OHIO LINE

Almost three hours to the minute after the take-off the plane was passing over the Pennsylvania-Ohio line with clear weather ahead and a good chance to gain speed.

Coste hoped before starting to make the New York-Dallas flight in 9 or 10 hours. About 1,400 miles by air line, it is a little more than 1,600 over the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati-Little Rock route which Coste planned to follow.

At 7:51 Coste and Bellonte climbed into the "9" and the warmed motor was speeded up in preparation for the takeoff.

A moment later the engine was started on the plane in which the French fliers' manager planned to precede them to Texas.

At 7:54, the red plane began taxiing out on the field, leaving a wake of brown dust behind it. It taxied to the far north end, mechanics guiding it by its lower stub wings, swung around and went roaring toward the east.

DELAYED FOR HOUR

The takeoff of the French fliers for the Texas city was delayed an hour by the necessity for constructing a special device for spinning the propeller, which is set so high that it is very difficult for mechanics standing on the ground to start the engine. The device failed, but the motor was at last started by volunteers, who risked their lives by leaping into the air to hang on the high propeller blades.

Coste expected to make the journey to Dallas in between 12 and 15 hours. He had 420 gallons of gasoline pumped into the ship before he left. The radio, which was in operation for all but the last few miles of the trans-Atlantic journey, was still broken when today's flight began, but no difficulty was expected, as perfect flying weather prevailed.

Coste, Mate, to Visit Tomb of Herrick

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, the French trans-Atlantic fliers, will come to Cleveland to place a wreath on the grave of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, it was announced today by the Cleveland Advertising Club.

Officials of the club said the fliers agreed to come here as part of a prospective goodwill tour. Arrangements were made by long-distance telephone last night. Herrick, known as the "beloved ambassador" during his long stay in Paris, was a close friend of Capt. Coste.

Coste's New Pilot May Seek Record

DUBLIN, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Paul Codos, friend and aviation associate of Dieudonne Coste, may attempt to make a new long-distance flight record when he brings back the "9" across the Atlantic from New York. He would like to fly straight through to Bagdad.

When Codos sails he will take with him the mechanic, Vernon, a specialist in tuning up engines, also a new motor exactly like that used in the westward flight across the Atlantic. He also will have two supplementary gas tanks, which Coste discarded before he took off from Le Bourget, as unnecessary.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL CUDAHY III

Cudahy, scion of the meat packers, and his young bride of 13 months, Muriel Adele Evans, film actress. She's filed divorce action against him in Los Angeles, saying he was cruel to her.

WIFE DECLARES CUDAHY CRUEL

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Alleging her husband, Michael Cudahy, III, youthful scion of the meat packing Cudahys, was so cruel during the 13 months of their married life that she just couldn't stand it any longer, Muriel Adele Cudahy, erstwhile film actress, has filed suit for divorce. She declared:

"Michael is a dear, dear boy. We are good friends, but—"

She charged that he refused to talk with her in the presence of relatives and friends, also scolded and nagged her. Mrs. Edna Cudahy, the youth's mother, said:

"She's a sweet girl."

The mother also declared a property settlement had been arranged. Mrs. Cudahy's complaint asked only reasonable attorney fees.

The young millionaire and the actress, married July 6, 1929, in Riverside, Cal., separated last August 20. Several months before their marriage they attempted to elope but were stopped by the youth's mother, who said he was under age.

4 World Famous Fliers to Visit White House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 — (INS) — Four of the world's most famous aviators will be luncheon guests of President Hoover at the White House Monday.

Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, who have just completed the first successful Paris-to-New York flight, will be the principal honor guests, but at the table, too, will be Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, New York to Paris trail-blazer, and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, the only man who has flown over both poles.

The Frenchmen are to arrive here about 5 p. m. Sunday. Lindbergh probably will escort them.

WIFE SETS AIR MARK

PARIS, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Mlle. Maryse Bastie, French woman aviator, today broke the world's women's endurance record for sustained flight. She landed at 9:31 a. m. after 38 hours aloft.

Her mark was two hours, 13 minutes and five seconds better than that of Lena Bernstein made May 2, of 35 hours, 46 minutes, and 55 seconds.

Mlle. Bastie altogether set three new world's flying records—that for a woman in sustained flight, for either man or woman lone pilot in sustained flight, and for sustained flight in a light machine.

She came down worn out with cold and fatigue and would have fallen had she not been helped from her plane. She wept as she smiled in the happiness of her triumph.

Her first question was about Coste and Bellonte, of whose success she knew only through signals on the ground after she went up.

COSTE INVITED TO SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 4 — When Dieudonne Coste flies west he has been asked to land here on the same farm where he and Joseph Lebrix, his former flying partner, were forced down in a snow storm in March, 1928, while on their way from South America to the coast.

The invitation has been sent by Postmaster Frank Clary, of Sharpsville, who was among the first to welcome the pair here. Many who obtained souvenirs from Coste during his two-day stay then, are now proudly displaying them.

Mannie Goldberg, World War veteran, received a plaque from the pair after they had arrived in France while Dr. Myron Murstein, who was wounded in the war, has a dollar bill autographed by Coste.

Prizes of $1,300 Posted For Best Traffic Essays

A list of 250 prizes, for which a total of $1,300 will be distributed, will be a feature of the fourth annual traffic essay contest for public and parochial schools from October 1 to 24, Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education committee of the Better Traffic Committee, announced.

The contest will be divided into three divisions, which will cover all grades in the schools.

The subjects on which the contestants are to write are: Division one, "A Close Shave—Tell the Story of a Near Traffic Accident." Division two, "The Parking Problem Downtown." Division three, "The Proposed Codified Traffic Ordinance for Pittsburgh."

In announcing the details of the contest, Rosenbaum said the committee had raised the number of prizes this year over the number awarded in previous contests both to emphasize this phase of safety educational work and to attract even more children to the competition. Last year more than 67,000 essays were written, and the number of prizes was 100, totaling $810.

Members of the education subcommittee sponsoring and conducting the contest include Rosenbaum, Frank L. Duggan, Edward Snodgrass, Jr., Frederick J. Kress, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, Assistant Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall, Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey, George E. Clarkson, city traffic engineer; Lewis W. McIntyre, Stanley Nowicki and C. H. Roth.

M'GOVERN ACTS TO AID VOTERS' REGISTRATION

Launches Campaign to Insure Rights for Citizens; Court Test Case Filed

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern has started two movements to assist qualified residents in obtaining their right to register and vote.

One is a test case in court seeking to compel the board for the assessment and revision of taxes to assess residents whose only lack as a qualified voter is a tax receipt.

The other is co-operation with the Registration Commission in educating residents on how to qualify, register and vote.

PRINCIPAL OBSTACLE

The principal obstacle in assessing all qualified residents was created last year by the ruling of two judges that no voter could be added to the books after the subordinate assessors had made their annual reports to their superiors.

The subordinate assessors close their books in November for the subsequent year, so that under the judges' ruling a voter not listed in the house-to-house canvass this year would be deprived of a vote in 1931.

McGovern believes such a ruling deprives many a resident of his constitutional privilege because the subordinate assessor omitted the resident's name in most instances through malice or negligence.

RULING CITED

The judges made their ruling in the mayoralty primary case when they ordered about 20,000 names stricken from the books that the assessors' office had given to the delinquent tax collector instead of to the county controller and treasurer.

Many of the names in question were reported to have been put on the assessors' books from lists furnished by ward chairmen and other political workers.

The Registration Commission now seeks to guide voters by announcing registration days and describing polling places on posters placed at eight locations in every ward and advertisements placed in newspapers three times before election day.

McGOVERN PLAN

McGovern has suggested the adoption of a plan he used when he was chairman of the Registration Commission.

It includes the mailing to persons assessed a post card instructing them how to pay their tax and obtain a receipt as a requisite for registering.

The card would tell voters the dates of registration days, location of polling places changed by the redistricting commission and the offices to be filled at the current election.

In addition, the card would remind every assessed resident that voting is a patriotic duty.

The Registration Commission will consider McGovern's suggestions today.

DALLAS ON EDGE TO HAIL COSTE

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 4 — (AP) — The Tri-color of France and the Stars and Stripes floated together in Dallas today as a thrilled city suspended normal activities, to give a traditional Texas welcome to Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French air voyagers, who conquered the Atlantic.

This city was the rendezvous of airmen throughout the Southwest, who winged their way here to participate in the welcome to the Frenchmen, who are flying to Dallas from New York to collect the purse of $25,000 offered by Col. William E. Easterwood, now in Dublin.

Fifteen Army planes from Kelly Field, San Antonio, were in the convoy assembled here to fly North to greet the scarlet sesquiplane which triumphed over more than 4,000 miles of storms, fogs and hazardous weather between Le Bourget and Roosevelt fields.

The program calls for official greetings from Gov. Dan Moody, or his representative, in behalf of the state.

Detachments of Dallas policemen, assisted by several companies of National Guardsmen, have been assigned to keep the crowd from rushing upon the fliers as they land.

The National Broadcasting Company has opened a special wire from Dallas to New York, for a coast-to-coast network broadcast of the landing and reception, with WFAA, a 50,000 watt station, as the point of origination.

New York in Grip Of Coste Style Craze

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 — (INS.) — The Coste craze has seized New York. For the ladies there are Coste hats and Coste gowns, and for the men Coste shirts and Coste neckties.

Also there are various wearing apparel done in so-called Coste colors, mostly reds, so named because of the red on Capt. Coste's plane, the "9."

CITY CONTRACT FIGHT IN COURT

The suit filed against the City of Pittsburgh by the Nepture Meter Company of Brooklyn, N. Y., in which it was charged the city awarded a contract for water meters to the second lowest bidder, was aired today before Judge James B. Drew.

Attorneys for the concern argued that its bid, omitted was $1,934 lower than the bid of the Pittsburgh Meter Company, to which the contract was awarded. They charged the contract was negligently and improperly awarded.

Charles A. Waldschmidt, city solicitor, pointed out that 50 per cent of the water meters in the city were supplied by the Pittsburgh company and that the latter company was also in better position to service the meters. He also declared that the concern was a local one and deserved a slight preference.

Judge Drew asked that the engineers of both companies be brought in to testify as to the qualities of the two meters, so that reasonable money difference in the contract might be determined. The case will be continued.

They are to be flying yachts.

BAN ON GARBER BAND DENIED

Judge Frank P. Patterson today refused to grant an injunction restraining Dan Garber and his orchestra from fulfilling their present engagement at Kleinz Villa.

The restraining order was sought by the Orchestra Corporation of America which charges that Garber violated his contract with them when he allowed another office to make the local booking. Judge Patterson said the final hearing on the breach of contract charge would be held Monday.

U. S. Navy Officers Greeted in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Edward Campbell and a party of officers from the United States Rochester arrived in Mexico City last night from Vera Cruz and were received with government ceremonies.

BLAME ROADBED FOR WRECK

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A verdict of unavoidable accident was returned late yesterday by the coroner's jury which investigated the wrecking of the Texas Special, Frisco passenger train, near here Sunday night. Six persons were killed and 11 injured.

The jury recommended that the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad Company improve its roadbed in the Osage Hills district of Kirkwood, St. Louis suburb where the tragedy occurred.

Testifying at the inquest, several Frisco officials attributed the wreck to stones placed on the track by vandals, but Police Chief Schroeder of Kirkwood and others criticized the condition of the ties and roadbed.

After Coroner O'Connell of St. Louis County had taken them to the scene where they spent 30 minutes inspecting the ties and rails, the jurors deliberated 40 minutes before returning their verdict. It did not mention vandals.

Store Celebrates New Truck Fleet

Marking the installation of a fleet of 25 White trucks, the 10 stores delivery service officials of the Rosenbaum Company and employes of the delivery department were to meet at dinner in the store's lunch room at 7:30 tonight. F. E. Trebbet and Stanley P. Seward of the White Company were to be guests at the dinner with Walter Rosenbaum presiding.

British Feminists See Golden Age For Sex Near

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—British feminists believe the Golden Age for women is approaching.

Thirty are on the program for the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. Amy Johnson has flown to Australia. Marjorie Foster defeated men in rifle matches at Bisley.

Joyce Wethered could beat many a male golfer. Betty Nuthall has won the American championship in a sport in which Englishmen have shown no international class lately.

ROACH FETES THEATER MEN

Hal Roach, last of independent movie producers, gave a banquet to the tri-state representatives of the Loew-United Artists theaters at the William Penn Hotel last night during his brief stop in the city. Roach, first producer to use the airplane exclusively for travel, makes regular visits to his distributors in every part of the country. Declaring that comedies have once more regained the position they had in the film field before the advent of talkies, Roach said:

"The world wants to laugh. We've had too much sorrow and sophistication in our movies. The public is now clamoring for good short subjects."

EDITORS SCORE PARIS ACTION ON HEARST

Order of French Officials Called Virtual Effort to Censor Foreign Opinion

THE NEW YORK TELEGRAM

When the Paris government expelled William Randolph Hearst, American publisher, from France, it did a bad day's work for itself and for international journalism.

The justification given by the foreign office for its action is the alleged hostile attitude of the Hearst newspapers toward France. Whether that charge is accurate or inaccurate does not interest us. It is none of our business.

But, even assuming the truth of the charge, the inevitable reaction of any American would be, "Well what of it?" The tradition and pride of American journalism is that the press shall be free to criticize any government, foreign or domestic.

No one will question the right of the French government to expel a newspaperman whom it considers unfriendly. As a sovereign state France has an absolute right to receive or expel visitors at will, with or without explanation. But the French government surely knows that one may possess a legal right which one does not exercise because of good taste or expediency.

It happens that the French government has none too good a reputation in its handling of the foreign press. Self-interest would seem to dictate that the foreign office improve that reputation rather than make it worse.

BROOKLYN DAILY EAGLE

Explaining the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst from France the Tardieu government says that the act had as its origin the role played last year by Mr. Hearst in obtaining and publishing a secret document relating to the Anglo-French naval negotiations. Mr. Hearst himself regards the expulsion as due only in part to that incident now two years old. He thinks that the government is more largely inspired by resentment against the critical attitude of his newspapers toward French policies.

France is at least consistent in ousting Mr. Hearst. It expelled Mr. Horan, the Hearst correspondent who was immediately responsible for the publication of the secret document, and since Mr. Hearst backed Mr. Horan in what he did, his own expulsion should follow in logical course. This seems to be the first opportunity France has had of hitting Mr. Hearst directly and it is sensationally improved.

In expelling Mr. Hearst, the French government gives ground for the suspicion which Hearst himself entertains that the editorial attitude of his newspapers toward French policies has much to do with the expulsion order. If that be true the French government is making a mistake. It is virtually attempting a species of censorship of foreign opinion.

SACRAMENTO BEE

The barring of William Randolph Hearst from France is not only silly but is insulting to the United States.

Whatever one may think of William Randolph Hearst, he is an American citizen and as such carries with him whatever weight and dignity the United States itself may have.

If the United States stands for anything it stands for the right to decide whom its citizens shall be and for their right to travel wherever they please so long as they conduct themselves decently.

In American history, it decided that several times.

President Jefferson decided it in the war against the Barbary pirates of the Mediterranean. President Roosevelt decided it also in the passport question with Russia. President Wilson decided it in the World War with Germany.

While France bars William Randolph Hearst it tolerates fugitives from justice from the United States whom this country has been trying to get back for years, and the French press and the French people have hailed them as heroes.

One of them is Henry M. Blackmer, partner of Harry F. Sinclair in the Continental oil swindle, whom France has officially protected for several years.

It is very unfitting on France's part to give such an unnecessary insult to the dignity of this country.

She welcomed with open arms over 2,000,000 of our soldiers, but never scrutinized their characters to determine if there was something she might dislike about them.

She welcomed our ships, she took our artillery, she used our navy and she used our army.

And incidentally, she used nearly four billions of our money, which is not yet repaid and never will be.

CONGRATULATES HEARST

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(Universal)—Julius Klein, editor of the Illinois Staats-Herold, Chicago German language newspaper, today wired congratulations to William Randolph Hearst on Mr. Hearst's statement, published yesterday after the American publisher had been barred from France because of exposure of the secret Anglo-French naval treaty in his newspapers two years ago.

Mr. Klein stated:

"France again has shown that she recognizes only those persons who declare themselves absolutely in accord with the French policy.

"France, which tries to make the world believe she is a free republic, has taken such action against an American publisher in a country that boasts of free press and free speech. Mr. Hearst has answered the situation splendidly. It is a good, but serious joke and shows that France is led by irresponsible persons.

"We do not expect Mr. Hearst or any publisher to be pro-German or pro-French. We expect them to be pro-American. Would American publishers all take the stand that Mr. Hearst did and does, namely, the pro-American stand, this country would never have mingled in European affairs and would have been better off."

Officer Shooting Dog Gets Black Eye from Gun

Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Hurley of McKeesport, today was recovering from a black eye sustained while in the act of shooting a vicious stray dog yesterday. Hurley and Motorcycle Patrolman Peter Cassidy were pursuing the animal in a motorcycle when Hurley got a chance to shoot. Hurley raised his weapon quickly and fired. The firearm kicked and struck him in the eye. But the officer got his dog.

MOVE TO CHECK TYPHOID

With one man already dead and 11 others sick from typhoid fever, the Harrison Township Board of Health today was investigating the source of infection from which the disease has spread among residents of the Birdville district. Polluted spring water is blamed.

Staley Reedy, of the Birdville district, is reported to have died of the fever Tuesday night. Others have been stricken this week, the Board of Health reports.

The Birdville district is a residential section bordering on Tarentum. Homes are served by city water, the board says, although some spring and well water still is used. All residents have been requested to use city water whenever possible.

Morgan's Grounded Yacht Refloated

ISLESBORO, Me., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—J. P. Morgan's yacht Corsair left here today under her own power after an examination of her hull apparently failed to disclose any major damage resulting from her grounding on a reef Tuesday night. Her destination was not announced.

Local tugs and coast guard craft pulled the $2,500,000 floating palace into deep water at high tide last night after 200 tons of oil had been unloaded from her tanks.

OFFICERS GIVEN TRAFFIC RULES

The eighth traffic officer instruction card, dealing with special parking restrictions, was distributed by the education section of the Better Traffic Committee to all traffic officers and patrolmen at roll call this morning.

This week's lesson pointed out that it is a violation of the vehicle code to park or stand a vehicle in front of a private driveway, within 15 feet in either direction of a fire hydrant or the entrance to a fire station, within 25 feet from an intersection or its curb lines or, where there is no curb, within 15 feet of the intersection or its property lines.

Wool Lace With Cloth

In Women's Dresses and Ensembles

Here's a new kind of wool lace that is, technically, wool embroidery on chiffon—but it is so lacy in appearance it merits its title. Marita cloth, a very fine woolen fabric combines with it. The tunic dress has a blouse effect of wool lace. Another dress has a jacket of wool lace and skirt of cloth. The ensemble has a separate blouse of wool lace with skirt and coat of Marita cloth. Green, brown or black may be had in each model. Priced, $39.50.

Oftimes, my charming lady love and I
Attend the cinema—she loves it so.
And when the hero rolls a sexy eye,
Her breath comes fast—her cheeks appear to glow.

She looks at him—and then she looks at me.
And something chills in her casual glance.
Demotes a bit the evening's ecstasy
And throws a darkish hue on our romance.

No egotist am I—I'm well aware
That I am just an ordinary chap.
My nose and mouth—my eyes and ears and hair
Add up to form a mediocre map.

Yet no one that I ever chanced to know,
Mistook my little friend for Clara Bow!

—Don Wahn.

Imagine!

Phil Baer wants to know why days about the [illegible] was given a seat in a trap cop.

And he went looking for the theater where it could be used.

Ripley It or Not

Everything you hear on Broadway should go in one ear and out of the other. But if you were a columnist and you did that, you would get poor quicker.

Little things like this make big paragraphs like these. During a Saratoga crap game recently a local cripped Nick the Greek, for $80,000 after Nick cashed a $200 check for him—which bounced back!

And They Kill Time!

It really happened in one of the hot-spots. She appears in Earl Carroll's "Profanities." She poses in the nude.

Her father, it appears, is a minister. Maybe there was a good story behind that combination? So we asked her if the pappy was a man of the cloth. She admitted it.

"What," we said, "do you think your father would say if he saw you on the stage that way?"

"He'd say," she replied, "isn't she beautiful?"

Speakeasies in certain parts of New Jersey, says a reader, have a new stunt to let their patrons know when they receive a new supply of good beer.

Their placards in their windows read:

"Good BEvERages."

Americana

Our Danville (Ky.) ambassador reports that the first abdominal operation was performed by a Dr. McDowell. While the operation was being performed, a mob of Kentuckians stood outside the door with guns, knives and sundry other implements, ready to take the good surgeon's life if the operation was not a success. The operation was, however, and so the good citizens erected a monument in the doctor's honor.

This statue stands on a pedestal. One of the arms projects horizontally from the body. Every Halloween, the children hang a milk pail from his arm. At one time, in addition to the milk pail, someone placed an [illegible] on his head. Quel eh, what?

Quiteso, Quiteso

Baraka Verdict, who has produced [illegible] melodramatic hits, than any of his contemporaries, was watching his newest Dunningham production, "That's the Woman," being put through its paces. There was some misunderstanding how a certain scene should be played.

"But," butted someone important, "you have them directing their lines at the balcony and gallery. The people down front will feel slighted."

"I am not concerned about them so much," indifferently responded Bavard. "I am merely trying to please the folks upstairs who are not in on passes."

By Way of Report

Watch for a sensational announcement of a system of standing rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of erring New York city officials. Rewards will be one year's salary of the sinning salesmen, jail a magistrate and collect ten grand, and you will be amazed who is offering the money.

The Retort Terrible

It happened in front of the Lambs Club. The club, you might have heard, has been having an unpleasant time of it getting the army of unemployed actor members to pay their dues.

Lynn Overman, the lead in "Dancing Partner," Tony Hughes and other players were grouped in front of their club. Overman had just told a funny story and all were laughing heartily. A drunk staggered up.

"Aw," flipped the sensitive stew, "you don't have to laugh at me. If you guys could pay your dues, you could go inside!"

Lord Castlerosse, visiting New York for the Cup Races, comes highly recommended as one of England's better journalists and gossips. Writing in the New York Daily Mirror, he says in part: "There is nothing so true as that men and women hate reading the truth about themselves. Conversely there is nothing they like better than to read the truth about others. So they buy papers to find out whether they are mentioned and that point settled they gloat over comments on their friends."

Scandal, he means to say, is always interesting when it is about the other fellow. When it's about you it's a D—— LIE.'

Boy Trapper Killed In 300-Foot Fall

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—An inquest was to be held today over the body of Harry Richards, 15, who lost his footing and fell 300 feet to his death at the bottom of a quarry here while trying to trap pigeons.

In order to get at the nests young Richards attempted to descend a perpendicular wall of the quarry. When 10 feet down a stone gave away and his body hurtled 300 feet to the water. His neck was broken.

"Suffered 30 Years With Indigestion"

Misery Goes Quick With Amazing New Formula Acidine

Mrs. Donna Green of Detroit, Michigan for the first time in over thirty years is enjoying a fit stomach. She tried many different remedies without success until Acidine brought her happy relief from acid indigestion. She says "Acidine has helped my digestion more than anything else I have ever taken after having suffered from acid indigestion for over thirty years." Burning acid stomach, pain after eating, belching, gas, bloating, heartburn, dizziness, and the resulting nervousness, sleeplessness, and colds won't trouble you if you use new formula, Acidine. It gives relief where all other remedies fail because it is entirely different. Contains an effective starch digestant, Japtase, which promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy foods, in laboratory tests. Five other ingredients neutralize burning acid, stop gas formation and soothe irritated stomach lining. Cleans up the troubles that commonly lead to stomach distress quicker than you would believe possible. Acidine is safe, harmless and pleasant for adults and children. Used by millions of people. Eat, drink, smoke what you want. Acidine is sold under a satisfaction or money back guarantee. Get Acidine at any drug store today, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Retired Capitalist Dies in New York

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Ralph Ellis, 71, retired New York capitalist, died at his home yesterday. He was a Harvard classmate and close friend of Theodore Roosevelt, and for years was one of the foremost yachtsmen in America.

PHOEBE MACKAY
Plays "Effie Watts"

A COUGH or even a slight huskiness may mean the loss of a lot of money to a radio star. Phoebe Mackay, one of the most popular members of the "Real Folks" cast has found a sure way to keep her throat in condition and prevent colds, and she recommends it to you. At bedtime she sniffs a little "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly into her nose. It spreads a protective film over the sensitive membranes, soothes inflammation, and helps prevent germs from getting a foothold.

If Miss Mackay experiences the slightest tickle or raspiness in her throat, she immediately swallows a spoonful of "Vaseline" Jelly. It's so soothing, and perfectly safe to take internally.

You can hear Phoebe Mackay in the part of Mrs. Watts, the cockney boarding house keeper in "Real Folks" any Monday night at 9:30 over station WJZ or KDKA. And do buy some "Vaseline" Jelly and try her sensible preventive for coughs and colds.

U. S. WAR DEBT CUT ONE THIRD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—America's gigantic war debt of $26,596,701,000 has been reduced by more than one-third in 11 years since the debt reached its peak on August 31, 1919.

The Treasury statement showed the public debt on August 31, this year, to total $16,187,636,000. This was a slight increase over a month ago, but this situation resulted from delay in applying the sinking fund to the retirement it was said, and is only temporary.

During the first 10 years after the World War, the debt was slashed by more than one billion annually. This was accomplished through the regular sinking fund appropriation and the application of the annual surpluses, amounting to almost $500,000,000.

The Treasury statement for the close of August, the second month of the new fiscal year, showed an increasing deficit for this period over a year ago. Of course, the September 15 tax payments are counted on to take care of this deficit.

YOUTHS CAUGHT ROBBING STORE

After forcing a door in the rear of the storeroom, three Uniontown youths were captured in a chair store on MacFarland road, Mt. Lebanon, early today, according to township police.

The prisoners, Frank McCaffery, 20; George Anderson, 20, and Clarence McCann, 19, all of Uniontown, in whose machine parked nearby, police say they found clothing taken from a laundry truck, were lodged in the Mt. Lebanon Police Station.

CITY BIDS SET RECORD

Opening of 491 bids today marked the record number ever received by the Department of Public Works on proposed improvement projects, Director Edward G. Lang declared.

The bids were on 35 projects, including grading and paving, sewer, waterline, park and playground improvements. Director Lang cited the lack of building projects as the possible reason for the number of bidders. Award will be made within five days.

NEW RCA RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE

Now priced within reach of all!

A NEW radio . . . new in its thrilling performance . . . new in its scientific excellence . . . new in its exquisite beauty . . . new in its amazing value!

The greatest achievement of the world's most brilliant group of radio engineers . . . the climax of 7 years' research by RCA, sole sponsors of the Super-Heterodyne since 1923 . . . the result of millions of dollars invested in developing the Super-Heterodyne for home entertainment at its best.

The new Radiola has intriguing new features . . . new developments never before offered . . . three exquisite models . . . thrilling new tone that is rich, mellow, pure and lifelike . . . an instrument 4 times more "alert" than any recent model in bringing you the finest broadcast programs . . . an instrument 3 times more selective in getting the ONE station you want—without interference from others . . . an instrument worthy of the finest home . . . in performance and in beauty!

Broadcasting conditions change. Stations vary . . . some have more power . . . some have less. Whatever changes occur, you are safe in owning this highly developed set designed by the same engineers who build great broadcasting stations.

Sensationally low priced

Never before such prices . . . absolutely unheard of . . . four years ago the Radiola Super-Heterodyne console cost $570 . . . the model shown on this page, vastly superior in every way, is now yours for $142.50, less Radiotrons. You'll be thrilled by the beauty of the cabinets . . . you'll be amazed that such a remarkable instrument, housed in such a beautiful cabinet, could cost so little.

Since the best now costs no more, why not own the best?

NEW RADIOLA SUPER-HETERODYNE model 80 illustrated—with screen-grid, nine tuned circuits, latest electro-dynamic speaker, illuminated precision dial, push-pull amplification, improved "local-distance" switch, no A.C. hum, and beautiful new cabinets by famous designers.

A nominal down payment secures immediate delivery from most dealers. Ask your dealer about easy terms and liberal trade-in allowance on your present set.

MUSIC BATTLE HELD FUTILE

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Walter Damrosch, orchestra conductor, urged American musicians to give up their fight against sound reproducing devices on his return from Europe. He said:

"It is as futile as the efforts the hand weavers once made to stop the development of the machine age. I am deeply concerned over the plight of those who are being deprived of a livelihood by the introduction of sound-reproducing machines into theaters and motion picture houses.

"But nothing can stop the progress of these inventions, and I am convinced they will help in the musical development of the American people."

He said he believed a growing interest in fine music will result in the formation of symphony orchestras in many of the cities.

—BELL SYSTEM POLICY

GROWING

in Scope, Usefulness and Value

A YOUNG COUPLE marry and move into a home of their own . . . A telephone is installed.

Perhaps you are a friend of the bride or the groom. Perhaps they are strangers today, but some time soon you will meet them and add them to your circle of friends.

Their new telephone makes your telephone service more valuable. Your Telephone Directory assumes new importance because their name is in it.

Or, again, a drug-store opens in your neighborhood . . . A telephone is installed. A sudden need arises for drugs or refreshments . . . you call up and order what you want. Your telephone provides you with a new convenience.

EVERY day, more and more homes, stores and offices are brought within reach of your telephone. As the telephone system grows, your service grows in scope, usefulness and value.

Imperceptibly, perhaps—but surely—the growing value of a growing telephone service makes itself felt. Your service today is measurably more valuable to you than it was a year ago.

BANDITS FIGHT POSSE, 4 SHOT

TOLSTOY, S. D., Sept. 4 (AP)—A gun battle between a posse and three bank robbers fortified in the basement of a house resulted in the wounding of two of the robbers and two of the possemen.

The bandits had held up the First State Bank of Hoven, nine miles west of here. They fled in a car, but as the posse gained on them they took refuge in the basement, opening fire on their pursuers. Returning the fire, the possemen surrounded the place. Two of the bandits were wounded, one critically, when they dashed out in an attempt to escape. The third surrendered.

Eugene Harboldt, banker, and Howard Purdy, garagemen, both of Tolstoy, were the wounded possemen. A bag containing $1,000 in loot was recovered in the car abandoned by the robbers.

STAR REVEALS 1927 WEDDING

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Dorothy Britton, who rose to a stellar role in the current "Vanities" from a start as "Miss Jersey City" in a beauty contest, announced plans to go through a second marriage ceremony with her husband of three years' standing.

The announcement disclosed for the first time that the actress was secretly married to Edward C. Harding, a Jersey City businessman. She said:

"Ever since Ned and I married, in Port Chester, N. Y., in 1927, I have wanted a real wedding."

So the families of the couple have been invited to a religious ceremony to be performed next Sunday.

Purina WHOLE WHEAT BREAD

LOAF 10¢

WHOLE Wheat Bread is highly recommended by physicians and dieticians for its abundance of wholesome health-giving properties.

A&P Purina Whole Wheat Bread is baked from 100% whole wheat flour of the finest quality, retaining all the natural food elements of the complete whole grain.

These golden brown loaves are baked in our own modern, spotless, daylight bakery, wrapped in a distinctive dust and moisture proof waxed paper and speeded on our fast trucks to your nearby A&P store. It is placed in your hands just as soon after baking as human efforts and modern transportation methods can do so—you just know it is fresh.

Serve A&P Purina Whole Wheat Bread for your evening dinner. You'll be delighted with its exceptionally fine flavor.

For those who do not care for the 100% whole wheat, A&P also bakes a whole wheat loaf containing 60% whole wheat flour and 40% white flour, being plentifully filled with luscious California seedless raisins, which adds greatly to the flavor of the loaf. This raisin loaf makes the most delicious toast.

"KONJOLA MADE ME FEEL LIKE ANOTHER MAN"

Pittsburgh Resident, Victim of Severe Stomach Ailment, Finds Relief in New Medicine

Medicines, like men, are known for their deeds, not for the claims that are made for them.

Konjola, the new and different medicine, is compounded of 32 ingredients and 22 of these are the juices of roots and herbs. It attacks ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness at their source. The experience of Mr. Harry L. Sheridan, 517 Burgess street, Pittsburgh, is but one of many with which the Konjola Man at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, is familiar. See him there at the first opportunity. Mr. Sheridan recently gave the Konjola Man his statement as follows:

"I suffered from stomach trouble for a long time. I bloated badly after meals and no matter how careful I was of my choice of food I still suffered afterward. I did not sleep well and rolled and tossed about at night. My nerves were badly shot and I was discouraged.

"Friends urged me to try Konjola and I finally gave this new medicine a chance. It began to benefit me almost from the very beginning. The first thing I noticed was that I slept well at night. When I arose in the morning I felt refreshed and full of energy. My stomach is now in excellent condition and my nerves are calm and quiet. Konjola made me feel like another man and I can never say enough in praise of this great medicine."

Konjola is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs or heart depressing chemicals. It is all pure medicine and can be used by all the family.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow drug store, Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow drug stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

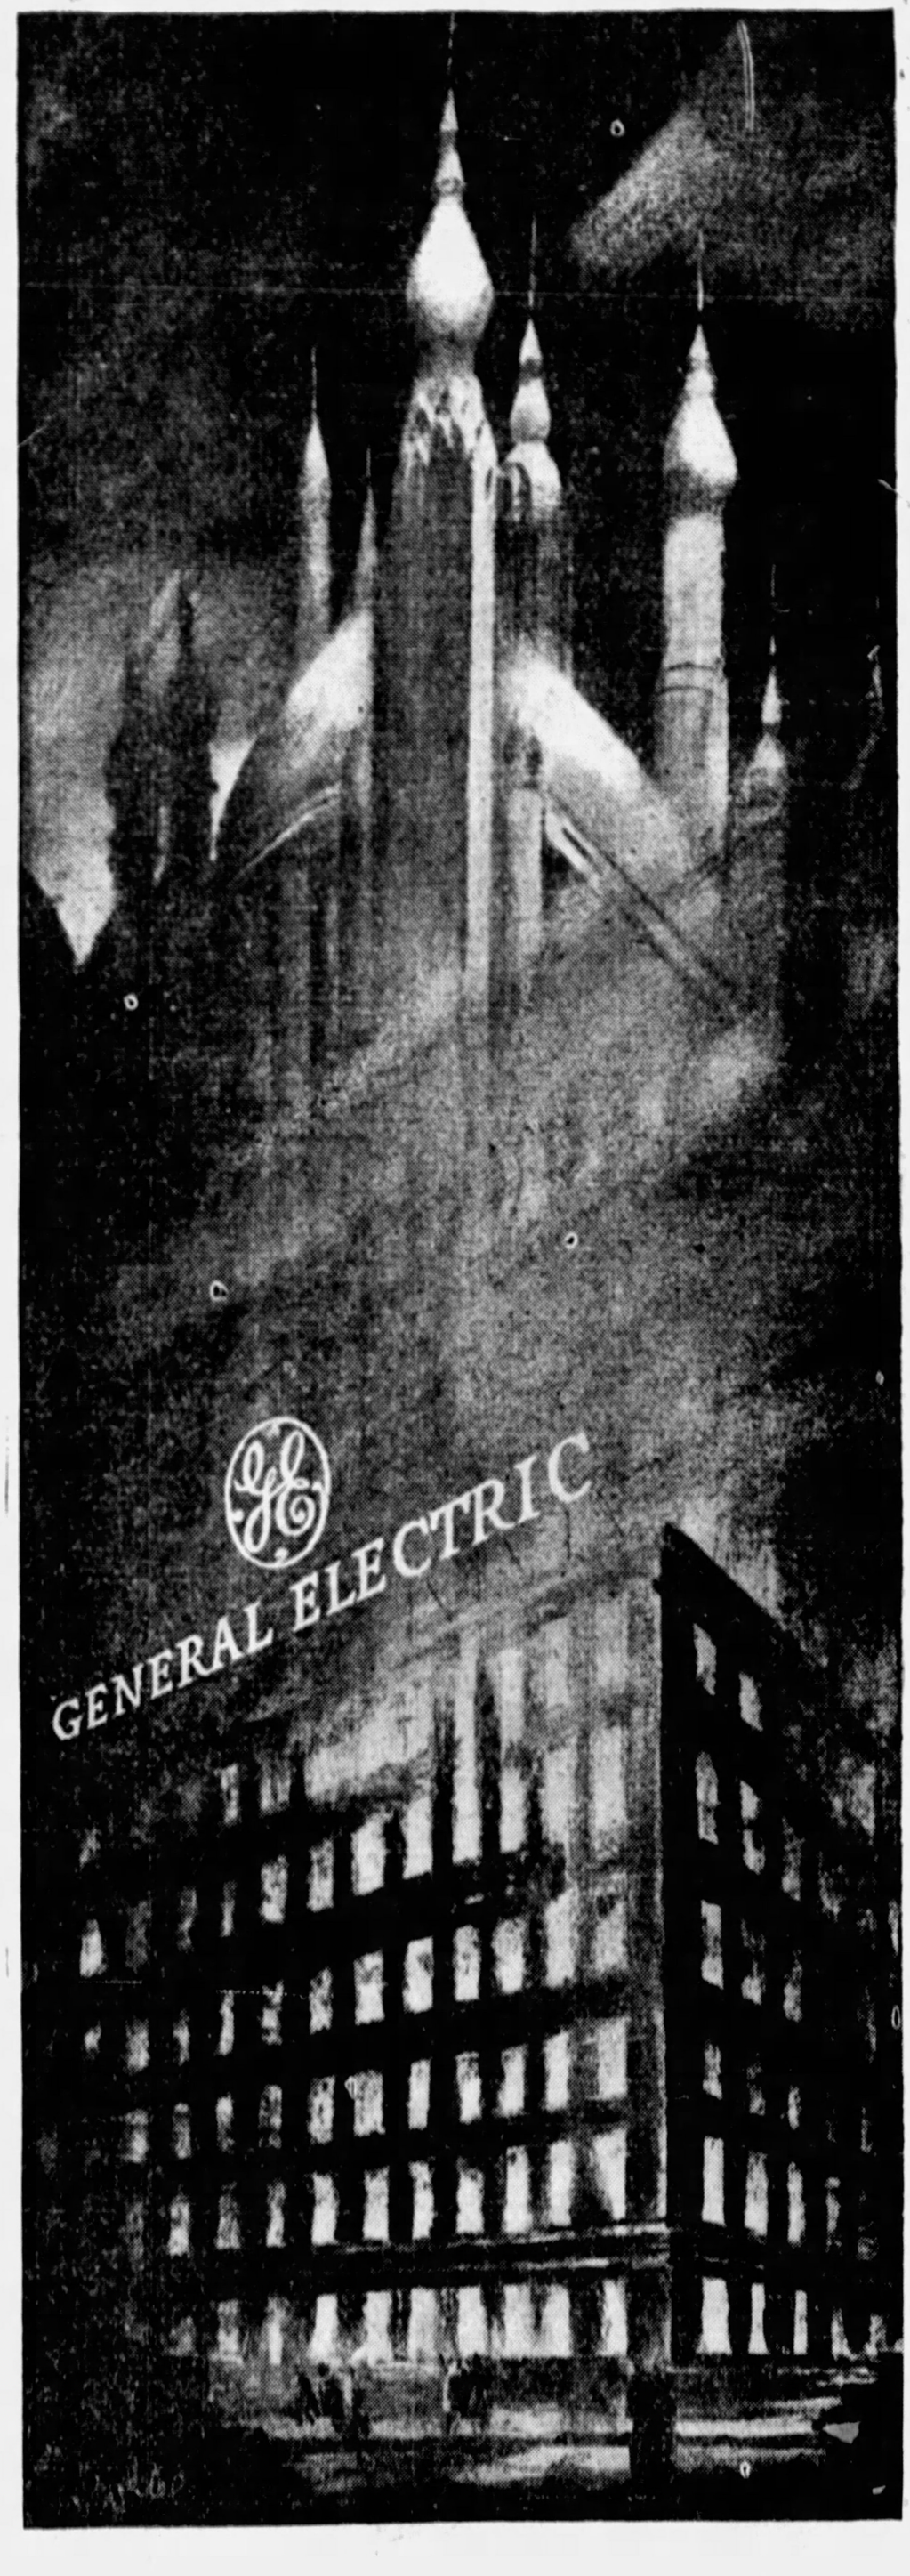
Out of the "House of Magic"

has come GENERAL ELECTRIC FULL RANGE RADIO



AFTER twenty-five years of pioneering and development, General Electric engineers and scientists present to the world a new-type radio... with

FULL RANGE SELECTIVITY... to give distinct, hair-line separation of stations.

READ THE FULL STORY

Pages of color describe it in this week's Saturday Evening Post and Collier's—a glowing story of radio triumph that will absorb you. Floyd Gibbons tells of General Electric's part in the development of Radio.

HEAR THIS RADIO PAGEANT

Radio's greatest "Pageant of the Air" honors the new General Electric Radio from coast to coast next Saturday night over 46 N.B.C. stations—a program filled with names known to fame.

Practical Dress for Small Tot
Pattern 2014
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Smocking is very smart this season, and particularly attractive on dresses for small girls who love pretty things. The model sketched today has effective collar and cuffs, a chic yoke, and comfy, practical sleeves. There are bloomers, too.

Pattern 2014 is adorable made of gingham, pique, percale, cotton broadcloth or linen. If a print is selected, the smocking may be done in the predominating color. If you have no time for the hand work, gathering or shirring will do very nicely. The Smocking Pattern 568 is 15 cents additional.

May be obtained only in sizes 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 36-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

OUR NEW FALL AND WINTER FASHION BOOK, containing exquisite models for adults and children and an excellent assortment of transfer patterns and stamped novelties, is NOW READY. Price FIFTEEN CENTS. Book with pattern, 25 cents. Address all mail and orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to

BANK BANDITS GET $14,500

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—After locking seven employes, including two women, in a vault, and scooping up cash estimated at $14,500, two bandits kidnaped G. T. Smothers, cashier of the National Bank and Trust Company here and escaped.

Smothers later was freed by the bandits a short distance from the bank and the imprisoned employes extricated themselves from the vault before Kansas City police who had been summoned arrived.

HOTEL OWNER ENDS LIFE

DETROIT, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Paul Kamper, 33, hotel owner, architect and member of a prominent Detroit family, was found shot to death yesterday in an apartment of the Madrid Hotel, of which he was part owner. Police, after an investigation, said Kamper had shot himself with a pistol found by his side.

Kamper was associated with his father, Louis Kamper, in architectural work. The two designed several buildings, including the LaSalle Hotel, scene recently of the killing of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator.

Sheriff Gets Pair In 25-Mile Chase

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Alfred Weimer and D. A. Dewitt, both of Oakland, Md., were arrested here after a 25-mile chase which started at Kingwood, where the men were alleged to have taken an automobile owned by the County and used by Sheriff W. W. Williams.

Williams, hearing the car start, gave chase, fired several shots and upon reaching Morgantown enlisted the aid of city police.

Big Snake Vanishes, Reported Stolen

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Stolen. An 18-foot python! Proprietors of a show are sure their missing reptile could not have got out of the building under its own power. Not a clue was found in the Coliseum.

HIGHWAY DEATH UNSOLVED

SPANGLER, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A body found along a highway near Cresson, and which at first was identified as that of Donald P. McNeelis, of Spangler, who later was found to be alive, was determined to be that of Harry Earl Myers, 43, of Roaring Springs, Blair County. Identification was made at an undertaker's establishment here by brothers and sisters of Myers.

Myers went to the Ebensburg fair on Monday with a sister. The manner in which he came to his death was not definitely determined.

Members of the family said Myers had $150 in his pockets when he started for the fair. There were only 20 cents found on the body. Whether he spent the money, or was robbed, were among the problems State Police were trying to solve.

Thieves Loot Store Of Cash, 3 Watches

Thieves obtained $10 cash and three watches valued at $65 from the confectionery store of Charles Kairys, 307 Franklin street, police were notified today. They entered through a side window that had been left unlocked.

Stores Plan to Hire 2,000 More Workers

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Plans of three department stores to hire more than 2,000 persons within the next 12 weeks were announced today.

Officials of L. Bamberger & Co. said approximately 1,000 persons would be employed. Kresge department store managers said they would hire about 900, and Hahne & Co. planned to add at least 300 or 400 persons.

BEDROOM GROUP

Five Pieces
in this Complete Bedroom
$99.50

Included Are:
—Full Size Bed—Full Length 'Robe
—Choice of Dresser or Vanity
—50-Lb. Mattress—Coil Spring

Underpriced Exactly $50

Judge it from every angle—this suite is worth $50 more than advertised tomorrow. At $99.50 it is marked as low as suites of the same grade sold for back in 1915.

Despite the low price, it has NOT been sacrificed in quality, nor beauty. A clever design; of walnut in contrast with other fine woods. The bed is full size, with the popular straight end. Plenty of room in the spacious chiffe robe. Take your choice of the dresser or the newer style vanity. The mattress is heavily tufted, has thick roll edge. The coil spring is helical tied and very resilient. What a grouping for only $99.50—proof enough that furniture prices are again down.

Terms Are $8 Monthly!

LINER REJECTS DIAMOND

BREMEN Sept 4 INS Jack "Legs" Diamond was refused passage on the S S Berlin today and returned to police custody after the liner's captain announced the boat completely sold out."

The New York gangster is being held in charge of two detectives who placed him on the boat pending further decisions as to his disposal.

Bremen police it was learned later, started negotiations with officials of the United States lines to obtain passage aboard one of the American steamers for Diamond.

The gang leader linked by detention in jail at Aix-la-Chapell without resource to legal advice left a nickel tip for his table when he departed from his cell.

He accompanied the secret service man assigned to "deliver him to the captain of a steamer sailing soonest from the nearest port" without protest. He reiterated he was far from the bad man they pictured him in the newspapers back in New York but admitted he occasionally did a bit of bootleg business on the side.

PORTER CHOICE DATE SET

Joseph G Armstrong Republican county chairman today set 2 p m Saturday September 13 as a tentative date for the county committeemen and women of the Thirty-second Congressional District to meet in North Side Carnegie Music Hall to name a successor to the late Congressman Stephen G Porter as Republican nominee at the November election.

Porter died June 27 after receiving the Republican nomination at the May primary for what would have been his tenth consecutive term beginning next March.

The successor for the short session of the unexpired term between December and March can be chosen only at a special election called by proclamation of the Governor. It is generally believed Gov Fisher will order the election held on November 4 to avoid the expense of a special election.

Edmund F Erk who had been Porter's secretary for 20 years is considered a contender for the vacancy. Others named are Attorney Charles Lane Jr Ralph E Flinn and Public Works Director Edward G Lang.

Father Asks Aid In Search for Son

Albert Jerrit Sr of 7618 Hillard avenue Swissvale today asked Missing Persons Bureau operatives to search for his son Albert Jr 19 who disappeared Tuesday.

The father said the boy went to school Tuesday and then went to the Pittsburgh Country Club where he was employed as a caddy.

EDMONTON Alta Sept 4 (AP) A daring flight to Baillie Island in Beaufort Sea at the northernmost tip of Mackenzie province was under preparation today to carry late trappers to their winter quarters. Several trappers knowing they could not reach their hunting grounds by the usual means before the arrival of winter chartered a plane of the Commercial Airways to make the trip.

Hotel Sues Miami For Beauties' 'Keep'

MIAMI Fla Sept 4 (AP) Miami today heard a $4 999 echo of the international beauty pageant held here last March with the filing by Henry J Smith of a suit against the city for expenses incurred by various visiting beauties at his hotel the Alcazar.

The suit listed expenses for rooms and food and included an item of $183 allegedly incurred by G A Trice president of the beauty pageant association for entertainment.

Eruptions Disfigured Face Terribly. Healed by Cuticura.

"I suffered with pimples on my face for a whole year. They were in blotches and were hard and red. The pimples itched and burned causing me to scratch, and scratching caused eruptions that disfigured my face terribly.

"I tried everything I heard of but nothing helped me. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed, within two months." (Signed) Miss Millie R. Donesi, 703 Clymer St., Phila., Pa., Feb. 10, 1930.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. H, Malden, Mass."

DIVERS SALVAGE SHIP'S SILVER

BREST, France, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Calm weather has proved of great advantage to the Italian divers who are trying to salvage the millions in gold which lie 400 feet beneath the waves in the ill-fated liner Egypt off Armen Light.

The divers have succeeded in bringing to the surface a lot of silverware from the dining rooms and closets of the Peninsular and Oriental Line steamship which went to the bottom after a collision in 1922. They found several mail bags but most important of all the news they brought from the depths was the report that they had penetrated to within dynamiting distance of the purser's strong box, containing money and gold and silver bars variously estimated to be valued at from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000.

JOYCE MYSTERY STILL STANDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(INS)—The question of whether the mysterious death of State Senator John T. Joyce on August 16, last, was a murder, a suicide or an accident remained unsettled today, following a coroner's inquest.

The coroner's jury, in its official verdict yesterday, said "Senator Joyce came to his death from prussic acid poisoning administered by a person or persons unknown."

The jurors said the poison was administered within 30 minutes before death, but declared that "We are unable to determine by whom or how administered."

Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, coroner's chemist, testified tests for alcohol proved negative.

After the verdict Mrs. Mary Joyce, the widow, asserted her husband had been murdered by enemies, and that she would continue the investigation.

Derby Champion Out To Beat Hawks' Mark

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Wiley Post, Oklahoma City flier, who won the Los Angeles-Chicago non-stop air derby, will take off for California Friday to await favorable weather for an attempt to lower the transcontinental flight record of Capt. Frank Hawks, he announced here today.

Locomotive Jumps Track, Crew Injured

Railroad officials said Homer Applegate, engineer, was missing and believed dead beneath his overturned locomotive. Fireman La Vine was reported badly scalded. A Pullman car of passengers routed to Wenatchee, Wash., and attached to the train was not damaged. The passengers were reported unhurt.

NEW MEDICINE FOR RHEUMATISM DISCOVERED BY EXPERT MIXER OF HERBS

"It is a great medicine for rheumatism," says Nellie Levdonsky, Box 216, Mona, W. Va., "if anybody knows where to obtain it. I had a very severe attack of rheumatism, my legs swelled up like a sack of flour. I tried all kinds of medicine, but they didn't do me any good. After my husband sent $3.15 for Herb medicine and after two weeks use the Herb medicine helped me. My honest opinion is that anybody suffering from rheumatism should try Herb medicine. "The above statement was subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of January, 1930." John H. Shay, Notary Public. My commission expires March 16, 1933. Medicine is sold by Mr. P. WE HAVE joined with Firestone to cooperate, and take advantage of the low prices of rubber and cotton — cut manufacturing costs, sales and distributing cost, and with smaller profits per tire we give you their new line of quality tires at these low prices.

Firestone has taken the mystery out of tire buying and has furnished us with actual sections not only of Firestone tires but of others. Come in and examine them for yourself.

Firestone not only cooperates with dealers but cooperates with workmen. Every one of the 15,000 workmen in the great Firestone factories is a stockholder in the company. They back the quality of their product with their savings. We back it with our unlimited guarantee.

We have a department store of service for the motorist, and sell the complete Firestone line of Tires, Tubes, Batteries, Brake Lining, Rims and Accessories. Also Gasoline, Oils and Lubrication. We can save you money and serve you better.

Oh, for a March.

Bits of Compensation.
Foster the Reliable.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The only way that those universities of the land seeking increased enrollment will be able to compete with dear old Maine this fall is to establish schools of crooning.

Louis Reid.

Though most of the crooners in America today are coming from the campus, crooning has yet to receive the official sanction of the faculties. It seems to me the faculties would better place it upon a recognized plane, since now it offers not only wider social opportunity but greater financial rewards than football or bond selling. Show me a crooner without employment and I'll show you an Hawaiian ensemble without a ukelele.

* * *

When the M. Vallee put his restless fingers upon the Maine stein song he revolutionized collegiate exploitation. Colleges no longer have need of press agents. Even a winning football team is not essential. All they need is a good marching song and the crooners will do the rest.

Colleges Ransack Attics For Marching Songs

To whatever campus you turn your gaze you will see a concentrated ransacking of attics for old and forgotten marches as a means of telling the world of the charms of good old Siwash. The Maine stein song had been gathering dust for 20 years until Dr. Vallee, remembering its swinging tempo, asked for a pulmotor. He breathed new life into it.

Other internes of the dance floor rushed to his aid and supplemented his labors, with the result that the stein song is heard more than the songs of all the other colleges of the country combined. It put Maine definitely and irrevocably on the collegiate map. They will tell you on Broadway it also put Maine on the musical map, to rank with Carolina and Tennessee.

Composed by Emil A. Fenstad, now an army bandmaster, to words written by Lincoln Colcord while a student at Maine, it became the biggest song hit of the year—an answer to music publisher's prayers.

I wonder what ever become of Fenstad? In what isolated army post is he now leading his hornblowers through "The Star Spangled Banner? The royalties from his tune should make him independent for life.

The juciest musical morsels on the microphone menu for next season promise to be the concerts of the Philharmonic and Philadelphia Orchestras. The latter made its air debut last year in a series of three recitals made notable by the fact that its leader, Stokowski, did not play down to what he considered might be the tastes of the earcuppers. Stokowski's concerts were designed expresaly for radio and he offered the armchairs Debussy and Stravinsky whether they liked it or not. Most of them liked it. Most of them thanked Allah for a relief from the "Ride of the Valkyries" and the "New World Symphony."

Philharmonic Orchestra Pushes Radio Frontiers

The Philharmonic, hitherto confined in its radio appeal to the chair warmers of the Metropolitan district, is to advance its musical frontiers next fall to the Pacific Coast. It should be welcome news to 50,000,000 listeners.

To hear either the Philharmonic or the Philadelphia, particularly on Sundays, is to find compensation for topped golf drives, dented fenders, the abuse of bridge partners and delicatessen suppers.

Despite its beauty of tone the violincello is seldom heard as a solo instrument. But how the music men reach for the xylophone!

Jazz bands, I regret to say, show no inclination to get away from their recent doggy classification of "novelty orchestras." Jazz is too good a word to be weaseled.

Song writers are the last to recognize the prevalence of divorce. They have brought forth a ditty called "The Verdict Is Life With You."

Stephen Foster is the most reliable emergency-filler on the radio. Let the plans of the broadcasters suddenly go awry and a string trio is rushed to the microphone with an order to turn on "Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home." Of all the music that is aired that of Foster is far in the lead in the number of broadcasts. It is sure-fire.

I cannot quarrel with those archdukes of the air who declare that this decade will go down in history as the decade of discussion. More words have poured out of the loudspeakers in the last 10 years than in all the years since Webster replied to Hayne.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Frances Williamser

Vincent Lopez celebrates on WLW tonight at 11, our time. Lopez has been on the air nine years. To mark the occasion he will import a lot of high class talent headed by Frances Williams, beautiful blonde blues singer of the "Scandals."

Lopez humorously describes the first studio at WJZ as a telephone booth. "My banjo player had to be a contortionist to get in with the rest of the band," he writes.

Ruth Etting is to give Rudy Vallee a royal welcome home in the Sunshine Hour over WCAE at 8 p. m.

Our readers have responded very well in suggesting entertainers for this year's Radio Show at Duquesne Garden.

As for Pittsburgh artists, we received a deluge of requests for local announcers to appear on the stage.

* * *

They would rather see Jessica Dragonette than any other network star. Next they prefer Milton J. Cross and Bill Hay, the Amos and Andy announcer.

Wild Oscar and the Twenty Fingers of Sweetness appear to be choice of local talent, although numerous soloists are mentioned.

Harold Sanford and the NBC Players come to us again with one of Victor Herbert's beautiful operettas. Tonight it is "Princess Pat," on KDKA at 10.

"The Spaniard That Blighted My Life" is a Brad Browne-Al Llewelyn stunt on WJAS Mardi Gras at 8:45.

"How does one go about to secure an announcer's license?" asked Ted Rafferty, our color-gravure artist, yesterday.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

MAID, 2 YOUTHS HELD IN THEFT

Joseph Thomas, 20, of 1900 Eighteenth street extension, and Joseph Hirst, 20, of 124 South Twenty-first street, were held for court on robbery charges and Josephine Dyekonski, 17, of 1818 Wright way was held as an accessory before and after the fact, at a hearing before Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today.

Alleged to have entered the home of Mrs. Laura Block, of 2100 Wightman street, where the Dyekonski girl was employed as maid, the youths are said to have stolen clothing valued at $350.

Pete Delenko, 54, of 2 German square, was held on a charge of felonious shooting. Delenko is alleged to have shot his wife, Mildred, 38, at their home, 1105 Bingham street, on May 19.

Titusville Wife Shot, Mate Kills Himself

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Failing in an attempted reconciliation, Frank Bartok, 39, shot and probably fatally wounded his estranged wife, Mrs. Daisy Bartok, 29, of Titusville, Pa., early today, and then committed suicide by firing two shots into his head. Mrs. Bartok was shot eight times. The shooting took place in the home of Mrs. Bartok's mother, Mrs. Julia Payer. Two children survive.

Stepdaughter of U. S. Envoy Gets Divorce

RENO, Nev., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charlotte Potter Lewis, stepdaughter of Harry Guggenheim, U. S. Ambassador to Cuba, was granted a divorce here from Reginald M. Lewis, New York clubman.

Mrs. Lewis charged her husband with mental cruelty, alleging he nagged and found fault and furnished her with no amusements. A property settlement has been made out of court.

DETOUR BULLET THREAT ENDS

Louis Noll, of Bayley's Run road, East Deer township, who stopped traffic with a shotgun when township commissioners rerouted vehicles over a private road near his home, while the regular road was being repaired, has yielded, it developed in Common Pleas Court today.

Attorney S. M. Hazlett, counsel for the commissioners in their action to restrain Noll from interfering with the rerouted traffic, said today that the permanent injunction was signed when Noll withdrew his protest.

Last week the court temporarily restrained Noll from interfering, and today was set as the date for the hearing on the injunction.

FINED FOR FIGHT OVER 'NUMBERS'

James Poovay, 43, a Negro, of 17 Hemlock street, was fined $10 in North Side police court today after Charles Smith, 60, another Negro, had testified that Poovay, during a fight over a 10-cent "numbers" debt, broke Smith's leg.

Smith, who has been in a hospital since May 17, when the fight occurred, said Poovay had sold him some "numbers" on that date. Later, it was testified, Poovay returned to beat him because Poovay claimed he had given his customer too much change.

Good news! A big TITLE HUNT is starting soon; $1,500 in cash will be given away as cash prizes. Don't miss it!

TAHOE TAVERN, Cal., Sept. 4.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

It was a historic day for France Tuesday. They flew the ocean, and ran W. R. Hearst out of their country. That was a pretty cute statement he handed 'em back, but it will be lost on 'em. The Frenchmen individually have plenty of humor, but as a government they take everything mighty serious. Nothing can be as funny or as little as a nation when it tries to get back at somebody. If every country ran him out for publishing something they didn't want published, we would have had him exiled at birth, and he would now be residing in Siberia. Yours, WILL.

Cathie and Mother Buy Outfit for Wedding

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. She meets Gordon Moore of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Cathie is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes he has forgotten her. Cathie's mother falls seriously ill. To pay for hospital expenses and doctor bills she is forced to borrow heavily from Farnsworth. He is many years her senior, and completely overwhelms her when he proposes marriage with him as a way out of her financial difficulties. After a night of tears she accepts and agrees to an early marriage. Her mother believes that though Cathie does not really love Farnsworth, she respects and likes him, and hopes that this will grow into love.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

Cathie took her mother with her when she went to buy her trousseau. She felt that it would help, having Ma in her neat clothes and prim black silk gloves, it made it seem less . . . less cheap.

Not that there was to be anything cheap about the trousseau. The cheap part was in having to take Mr. Farnsworth's money before they were married. It would have been easier, more natural, to wait and buy things afterward. But Mr. Farnsworth wanted a wedding trip—his first real vacation in years—and he wanted her to look expensive, so she had to.

Besides it was fun, once she got started. There was the difficulty at first, of making the saleswomen bring out fine enough garments. They looked at her cheap little suit and Mary Paige's black silk gloves with the darned fingers, and showed them "sweet little models" from the $19.50 rack. But the last few months in an office had taught Cathie many things. Her noon hours of soda fountain lunches and 30 or 40 minutes of concentrated "window-shopping" in the fashionable Grant avenue district had given her a new knowledge of clothes. She could exercise it now, and she did, with an abandon that shocked and delighted her mother. She was surprised to discover how much her Cathie knew about style.

Buying Orgy

Mother Is Played Out From Buying

So the saleswoman, thoroughly interested now, steered them into the French room where the "sweet little models" were "good looking imports" at $98.50 and up.

Twenty-five hundred dollars to spend on clothes! The very sound of it was ridiculous. But the money was in the bank in her name, and once started on the buying orgy, it melted rapidly enough. Cathie wanted everything to be just right, to prove to Mr. Farnsworth that she had as good taste as anyone, even if she'd never had money before.

When she had bought a silver fox, and a two-piece tweed, and a top-coat with great flattering collar and cuffs of fur, and some little hats that were made on her head, and two evening dresses, and two afternoon dresses, and sport things Mary Paige declared she was "all played out," though Cathie hadn't seen her look so excited and girlish in years. But when the trunks and boxes and bandboxes began to arrive, and the delivery company men began running up the front steps two at a time, she couldn't conceal her delight. She unpacked every garment, felt every scrap of cloth, examined every stocking for a possible flaw.

Frank Visits

Wants Chance to Talk To Cathie

"Sure my girl has all that. A fur coat and diamonds besides," poor Mrs. Hennessey, who lived next door, said, coming over in her Juliets and her old garnet corduroy bathrobe with a kitchen apron tied around the middle to hold it together and ward off a few grease spots.

And Mary Paige's heart thumped, and sang with thanksgiving. For wasn't it the truth that few girls ever had so much, unless, alas, they were like Mrs. Hennessey's Lillian. Lillian, who had gone to school with Ruth, as nice and neat as you please. But even then her mouth had a certain loose look, and her eyes kept turning back, to look at boys.

Frank Prout came over, too. He came in the back way, as usual, but he was wearing his best suit, dark blue with a white stripe. His face was moist and shiny with excitement, and his straw-colored hair was soaked with brilliantine, and slicked back from his high forehead in a wet and slithering pompadour.

"Well, folks, how's everything? Thought I'd drop over and chew the fat with the kid for a while. Won't get much more chance. Where is she?"

His eyes searched the kitchen, as if he expected to find her hiding under the table, or up on the shelf alongside of the clock.

Offended

Tells Him to Mind Own Business

Mary Paige eyed him belligerently. This was a fine time to come asking for Cathie. Jean started to giggle, and once started was unable to stop. But Cathie didn't seem to think there was anything queer about it. "'Lo, Frank," she said, coming in from the back bedroom when she heard his voice.

They chatted for a few minutes in the kitchen, and then he said, "Well, get your hat!"

"Now! Oh, no, I've got too many things to do. I was just—"

"GET YOUR HAT! Pete's sake, you're getting to act like an old lady already. Got flat feet?"

"Frank, I'm tired, and I have too many things—"

"Aw just a little walk, Cath! Just around the block—"

"Well, then, just for a minute—"

"Mind you don't go far!" Mary Paige called after them. "Walkin' 20 miles in department stores and then startin' out all over again—"

"Well, it won't take me long to say my little piece. I'm not one of the silver-tongued boys. I'm right out with all the cards on the table. Cathie, it ain't too late yet. Cathie, don't

WIDER SCOPE FOR LABOR OFFICE

Grant Street Bureau Lends Facilities to Help Place Workers of All Kinds

As an emergency measure to help relieve unemployment in the Pittsburgh district, the state employment office here today announced a program of co-operation with various welfare organizations in getting jobs for those who ordinarily do not come under the scope of the department.

There are many jobless boys, men and women willing to do work of any kind, it was said, to tide them over until "better times" develop. This category includes those willing to mow lawns, do janitor work, act as day laborers, errand boys, handy men, domestics and maids. Even those for whom but a day's work can be provided will be given attention.

WIDER SCOPE NEEDED

The employment office, headed by J. F. Mitchell, superintendent, at 622 Grant street, will offer its facilities to job seekers, welfare societies and employers of labor until the depression ends, it was said.

In discussing the plan, Mitchell said:

"While the state employment office is primarily a business organization, with its purpose the providing jobs for special and skilled labor at no charge, we admit that the present conditions require a broadening of the scope of our activities.

"We want our organization to be a clearing house for all types of labor. We want to co-operate with the welfare groups in getting jobs for those who come under their jurisdiction and who are needy. With that thought in mind, I want to say that all men and women needing jobs are welcome to come here. If we have anything suitable they will be given every consideration. Welfare organizations may recommend men and women to us. If we can place them, we will do so as expeditiously as possible."

ORGANIZATIONS ASSIST

Among organizations with which the state will co-operate here are Munhall Community House, Soho Community Center, Woods Run Community House, Family Welfare Association, Goodwill Industries, Urban League, Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, and the Brashear Association.

OFFICER HURT, ASKS $20,000

J. W. Susa, motorcycle policeman for the City of Pittsburgh, has brought suit against the Consolidated Ice Company in Common Pleas Court for $20,000 damages for internal hurts he claims to have suffered when run down by a truck of the defendant company. The accident occurred at Foster and Forty-second streets, June 27, while Susa was in the discharge of his duties, he declares.

The policeman claims that the defendant company was negligent in the operation of the truck and gave no warning when it approached the intersection.

RUM IN AUTO, MAN ARRESTED

Henry Conforti, of 1219 Ridge avenue, North Side, was to be taken to the Allegheny County jail today in default of $1,000 bail to await trial on the charge of possession and transporting liquor.

Conforti was arrested last night by Motorcycle Patrolman William W. Berg, of Ben Avon, while driving an automobile through the borough. A search revealed 22 gallons of moonshine whisky, police said. Conforti was bound over to court by Justice of the Peace J. L. Degleman, of Ben Avon.

ORDER ELECTS OFFICERS

Archie S. Nichols, of William Thaw Council No. 396, Order of Independent Americans, was elected state councillor at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the state organization which closed yesterday in McKeesport. The election and installation of officers featured the final session of the convention.

Other officers elected were: A. S. Losh, of Riverside Council No. 37, New Cumberland, state vice councillor; Maurice H. Rasener, of Fairmount Council No. 321, Philadelphia, secretary; Charles A. Henderson, of Duquesne Council No. 110, Pittsburgh, state treasurer; R. I. Webber of Pottstown Council No. 263, member of finance committee, and Justus Schatz, of Hazelton Council No. 59, member of orphan commission.

Man Hurt in Fall Asks $10,000 of City

For injuries he claims he received when he fell on a broken boardwalk in front of 1032 Marena street, Theodore P Olszewski has brought suit against the City of Pittsburgh for $10,000 damages. The accident occurred September 23, 1928, in front of the residence of C. Mayer, it is said. He said that the city had warning about the bad condition of the walk.

Boy Hit by Auto Dies in Hospital

George Schuster, 4, of Midway, Washington County, died in the Mercy Hospital early today from injuries suffered last night when struck by an automobile near his home. The report submitted by hospital attaches to the coroner did not give details of the accident nor the identity of the driver of the machine.

Man Seeks Divorce, Charges Desertion

Walter R. Shaffer, of Rutherford avenue, Beechview, told Judge Frank P. Patterson in Divorce Court that his wife, Eliza L. Shaffer, did not like Pittsburgh and because he would not move away, deserted him. He asked the jurist to grant him a decree on those grounds. The wife is living with a sister in Ohio, he said. The couple wed in November, 1906, and separated February 28, 1928.

FELDMAN FFTE SET TONIGHT

A testimonal dinner honoring Harry Feldman, Republican chairman of the Fifth Ward, will be held tonight at the Roosevelt Hotel. The dinner will celebrate his return from Atlantic City.

Among the speakers will be John S. Herron, president of city council; Roy D. Schooley, city treasurer; Sheriff Robert Cain, Magistrate Leo Rothenburg, Attorneys Benjamin Steinberg, toastmaster; Alexander Cooper, H. D. Hirsh, Jerome Solomon and Robert Barrish, and Frank L. Swaney, secretary to Mayor Charles H. Kline.

N. Braddock Women Win Water Battle

Women volunteer firefighters of North Braddock won over the women of Chalfant in a water battle in Dravosburg last night. The neutral battleground was agreed upon by members of the two departments. Last night's battle gives North Braddock a score of two to one over Chalfant, each department having won in battles in the past. The battle was the last event of a four-day bazaar held by Dravosburg firemen.

WAGER STARTS HANDSHAKING

As the handshaking marathon passed its thirty-sixth hour today, Joseph Cue, 20, of 900 Chartiers avenue, and Charles Matthews, 24, of 316 Pennsdale street, decided they would continue to "shake" for 500 hours.

The stake is a $4 bet.

After engaging day and night managers it was announced that a 10-minute rest period would be taken each hour and it would be considered legitimate for one shaker to sleep provided the other kept on shaking. Using that method Cue got two hours sleep and Matthews slept for an hour early today.

WANDER ABOUT CITY

The contestants wander from the West End to the downtown district, accompanied by one of their managers, whose official duty is to see that at all times there are witnesses to the handshaking contest.

It all started in front of a Lorenz avenue confectionery store. Matthews met Cue and gave him one of those ultra friendly finger-crushing handshakes. Cue demanded to know what was the big idea and squeezed back.

WAGER STARTS CONTEST

"I'll bet you $5 I can outshake you," bet Matthews.

"Make it four bucks, that's all I've got," quoth Cue.

They put up the money and that's about all there is to it except shaking.

They shook until midnight on the one spot. Then they walked to the downtown district, shook all over Fifth avenue and other streets in the triangle, then shook their way over to the North Side and back to Elliott. An enterprising restaurant proprietor gave them free meals. A barber shop contributed free shaves. Both said that it is a bum idea, but neither wanted to quit.

Salvation Army Wedding To Climax Romance

Capt. Gertrude Gilbert and Capt. Ronald Irwin, fellow soldiers in the Salvation Army here, will be married tonight at Army headquarters. Lieut. Col. Charles B. Campbell, divisional commander, will officiate.

Members of the bridal party will be in full uniform. In addition to the bride and groom they will be Ensign Alice Grace, Philadelphia, bridesmaid; Capt. Frank Gibson, Meadville, best man; Capt. David Isaac, Carnegie, and Charles Sinclair, New Kensington, flag bearers. Vocal and instrumental music will be rendered by Capt. Eleanor Breen, Army's New York Training College, Adjt. Clara Pickering, Boston, soloists; Mrs. Alice Atkinson, pianist, and the Army band. Preceding the ceremony there will be a prayer by Mrs. Herbert Smith, major, and scripture reading by Lieut. Col. Campbell.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the bride's father will speak, after which felicitations will be extended by Mrs. Capt. Annie Appleby, Corry, and Capt. Gibson. Following talks by the bride and groom, the ceremony will conclude with the benediction by Staff Capt. T. Malpass.

Capt. Gilbert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gilbert, of Oneida street, Mt. Washington, and a graduate of South Hills High School. She has recently completed two years at the training college in New York. Capt. Irwin is a former resident of Oil City, and is organizer of the Army's Boy Scout and Girl Guard troops in Western Pennsylvania. Both will continue their Army careers.

Police Operator Held In Theft of Gun

Orville Mills, police operator recommended for dismissal by the Police Trial Board, was held for court for larceny in the theft of a machine gun from the detective emergency automobile by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today.

Detectives testified Mills took the gun August 2, and that shortly after tendered his resignation as a police signal service officer. Arrested two weeks after the gun was taken, Mills admitted the theft when the gun was found in his home, detectives testified.

Mills testified he had been drinking when he took the weapon and hid it in his home. He made no attempt to dispose of it, Mills said.

At the detective bureau it was said he will not be prosecuted on a second charge of illegally possessing a machine gun. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Missionary Circle Meet in Bellevue

The women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church were scheduled to meet today in the church parlors, with lunch served at noon by Circle No. 7, Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. Garnet Klein, chairman. Mrs. J. Kirkwood Craig, of Dormont, wife of secretary of the Allegheny County Sabbath School Association, was to speak on "Are Foreign Missions Still Necessary?"

950 Pupils in West View Schools

West View schools opened this year with an enrollment of 950, an increase of 50 over last year and the largest in the history of the borough, according to H. N. Hennon, supervising principal. This includes pupils of the grades and Junior High School. Senior high pupils attend school outside the borough. Four rooms of the new Ridgeview avenue school were placed in use.

BUILDING PERMITS REACH $5,586,084 IN AUGUST

Baldwin Township Folks Protest Against Mine Construction

$4,000,000 Project of Gulf Refining Company Gives Boost to City's Figures

Building permits amounting to $5,586,084 were issued in Pittsburgh in August, H. W. Correll, statistician of the Chamber of Commerce, said today. This was exceeded only by four other months since 1924, he said. Last month's figure was given a $4,000,000 boost when the Gulf Refining Company took out a permit for its new building at Seventh avenue and Grant street.

Permits taken in August provided for the erection of dwellings valued at $713,900. As a result there will be quarters for 131 families soon. Fifty-six per cent of those dwellings will be built in the Tenth, Fourteenth and Thirty-second wards.

The Fourteenth Ward will have quarters for 31 families including 23 single-family dwellings. Ten single-family dwellings have been planned for the Thirty-second Ward, and four for the Tenth Ward, in addition to double and apartment houses.

CAR PROTEST GROUP NAMED

A committee of three appointed by the Baldwin Township commissioners will protest today to the Pittsburgh Railways Company the abolition of street car service between Thirtieth and Thirty-sixth street on Carson street.

Chairman W. E. Armstrong, of the Baldwin board, named John Brinkman and John Reiland and himself on the committee to register the protest in behalf of the residents of the township near the Beck Run district. The street would be without bus or trolley service, they said, and the people would be compelled to walk.

Trade Board Report On Bridge Tonight

Reports on the new East Street Bridge will be made and discussed at a meeting of the North Side Board of Trade in the Old City Hall, Federal and Ohio streets, North Side, tonight. Speakers will be J. J. Kassouf, general chairman of the bridge committee, who will make the reports, and Charles Chapman, who will speak on "Fire Alarm and Police Signals."

PINCHOT CHOICE OF DE PRIEST

Support of Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, was urged by Oscar DePriest, Negro congressman from Chicago, in an address last night in the Rodman Street Baptist Church. About 500 Negroes attended the meeting, held under the auspices of the East Liberty Council of Colored Republican Women.

Congressman DePriest advised those present to stay in the Republican party and clean house from the inside. He declared that, although he is a pronounced wet, he was advising those present to support Pinchot on the grounds he is the Republican nominee and had been fair to Negroes during his previous administration.

Congressman P. J. Sullivan made the address of welcome. Other speakers were Magistrate W. J. Boost, city Republican chairman; Attorney William Randolph, Attorney Robert L. Vann, Evelyne Payne, president of the council, and Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, first vice president. Estella Sellers presided.

Quake Devastates District in India

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Disaster followed today in the wake of a serious earthquake in the Pyapon district of India, 80 miles southwest of Rangoon, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

Scores of natives were missing after the temblor, which demolished villages, destroyed crops and disorganized waterways.

Mencken and Bride Visit Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—H. L. Mencken, magazine editor, and his bride, the former Miss Sara Powell Haardt, have arrived here from Quebec. They plan to visit New England before returning to their home at Baltimore.

By coincidence Mencken renewed contact with members of the International Fire Fighters' Association, convening here. Several years ago, when the fire chiefs of North America held a convention in New Orleans, he was elected an honorary member and awarded a red hat.

'Honest John' Fined $25 for Fern Theft

"Honest John" Pressley, 52, of 1227 Sherman avenue, arrested again—after a chase—was fined $25 by Magistrate Schneider in North Side Police Court today. He was charged with stealing a fern from the Ludwig Floral Company, Federal street.

ROTARY DAY SET FOR SEPT. 11

Acting Mayor Charles A. Waldschmidt, in a proclamation late yesterday, set aside Thursday, September 11, as Rotary Day in honor of the visit to Pittsburgh of the United States Marine band, which will give two concerts in Syria Mosque.

Seats for these concerts, afternoon and evening, under the management of Eugene L. Connelly, are on sale at Mellor's, 604 Wood street.

Special children's tickets will be issued at the public schools for the matinee performance. These will entitle the pupils to any available seats on the floor or the first balcony at the general admission price of 25 cents.

30-Day Jail Term For Postal Thefts

Philip Timmis, 69, former postmaster at Whitaker, today was sentenced to serve one month in jail by Judge Nelson McVicar in Federal Court. He pleaded guilty to embezzling $1,126.01 of postal funds eight years ago. He had been a fugitive from justice until arrested two weeks ago at the home of his daughter in Cleveland. A surety company made good $1,000 of the shortage, the court was informed.

'SITTER' DARES CHALLENGER

Will Betty Fox, who perched on the Fort Pitt Hotel flagpole for 102 hours, and her brother, Benny Fox, the self-styled champion, accept the challenge hurled at them by Mr. and Mrs. "Skyrocket" Holmes, who also style themselves champions?

They may, and if the do—well, tune in on their conversation with a reporter:

Benny Fox (speaking for himself): "We champions are always pestered by these ham-and-eggers. But, however, I'll give him a break. If he'll play 'follow the leader' on the Fort Pitt roof with me, and do everything I do—then I'll accept his challenge. But I'll give him another break and sit two hours for every one he sits. No sleeping either, and he will have to put up a guarantee to cover expenses."

Benny Fox (speaking for Betty, whom he manages), said: "Of course Betty will accept Mrs. Skyrocket's challenge. I guess the Skyrocket's wife knows about as much about pole sitting as her husband; so Betty accepts under the same conditions as myself."

CAFETERIA FIRE ROUTS PATRONS

A number of patrons fled to the street when fire broke out in a ventilating shaft in the grill of the Phoenix Cafeteria, in the basement of the Roosevelt Hotel, late yesterday.

Grease igniting in the shaft filled the place with smoke. Firemen responding to a still alarm found the flames had damaged fixtures $1,000. The blaze attracted a large crowd.

FEAR NEW PLANT WOULD INJURE REAL ESTATE

Pittsburgh Coal Co. Agent Says Concern Will Build Bin, Trestle Regardless

Opposition to the proposed erection by the Pittsburgh Coal Company of a loading bin and trestle in Elwyn Hollow flared last night at a meeting of the Baldwin Township Commissioners.

Chairman W. E. Armstrong, of the commissioners declared that coal mine operations at that point would block development of from 250 to 300 acres of fine residential property along the McNeilly road, some of which already has been laid out in lots.

COMPANY TO FIGHT

Robert Greer, for the coal company, demanded that the company's request for a permit to build the loading apparatus be granted and declared the work of construction would go ahead even in face of a court battle.

Greer explained that the mine was working, but that the trestle and bin are needed to load the coal on trucks. There is a 5½-foot vein to be worked, he said, the same which runs from the Mansfield mine, Carnegie.

PROBE LAUNCHED

The Mansfield entrance is seven miles away and taking the coal from that entry is not feasible, he asserted.

There are five houses directly over the coal in the Flynn Hollow district, Greer said.

Chairman Armstrong named John Nurnberger, J. W. Augustine and Albert Bryer as a committee to investigate the coal company's proposal.

A petition of protest signed by 22 families was read. Action on the permit was postponed.

PARK SHOOTER ELUDES POLICE

Members of the homicide squad today were without trace of the assailant of Meyer Hymovitz, 23, who was shot below the heart in Herron Hill Reservoir Park early yesterday, in sight of his wife.

Eleven witnesses questioned by the detectives could throw no light on the shooting. Hymovitz, in Passavant Hospital, told police he was shot by a man whom he found sitting beside his wife, to whom he returned after going down to see if the lights in her mother's store, 3422 Milwaukee street, were extinguished.

The stranger fired at Hymovitz when the husband challenged him.

Hymovitz and his wife, separated because of financial straits, went to the park to discuss their future plans, they said. Mrs. Hymovitz declared she did not know the man was beside her until the shot was fired.

TOWNSHIP RUM DRIVE ORDERED

Baldwin township officials ordered its police force, J. H. Erbel, to visit an alleged "mooney joint" on the Glass Run road today following a visit of Mrs. V. Gensler to the commissioners' meeting last night. She told the board, pointing to them individually:

"Those drunks are lying around down there. You know the place, Harry, and you and you and you."

Chairman W. E. Armstrong replied:

"It strikes us as a bolt of lightning, but we'll have it attended to, since our constables are busy in the blind men's parade."

The eight commissioners were presented at the meeting with eight gold badges, which now proclaims them police officers. They were sworn in at a previous meeting.

Ohio Group to Hold Picnic on Saturday

The fifteenth annual reunion and basket picnic of the Monroe County (O.) Society of Pittsburgh, will be held Saturday at the Athletic Shelter House No. 1, near the race track oval, Schenley Park, according to President John W. Weber.

The sports program will include a mushball game and a motorcycle race. Musical selections, including yodeling and accordian numbers, will be given by the Ambassador Male Quartet, of Hannibal, O.

Workman Injured, Taken to Hospital

Frank Summerville, 28, was in a critical condition at the Braddock General Hospital today, where he was suffering from internal injuries sustained while at work last night at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company plant, East Pittsburgh. The Camera Question Box

Today's question — The system of towing illegally parked automobiles to garages has brought many complaints. What better methods of impressing motorists with the necessity of obeying parking rules could you suggest?

MRS. B. KLEINDIENST, shop owner, Sewickley—Why, I don't see anything wrong with that method. The very fact that people complain about it shows that it is effective and that they realize the necessity of obeying the rules.

Mrs. Kleindienst

JOSEPH BLACKHURST, chauffeur, Sewickley—I think that if heavier fines were made the penalty for illegal parking there would be less of it. Also I think something ought to be done about parking on both sides of the street.

Jos. Blackhurst

MISS BETTY HEULER, clerk, Sewickley — I don't see why this method shouldn't be continued. Let the people complain if they want to, and when they see that complaint does no good they'll stop.

Miss Heuler

E. P. GROGAN, clerk, Sewickley — I think more parking places should be arranged for, and more conveniently situated. Something will have to be done soon about all this traffic trouble.

E. P. Grogan

MISS FRANCES MASTERSON, clerk, Sewickley—I think that towing the cars in is the most effective method by which this problem can be handled. It has seemed to work so far, so why change it?

Miss Masterson

CLIFFORD L. KRYDER, Conway — That's by far the best way to impress people with the necessity of obeying traffic rules. It's at least a method that they will remember well enough not to violate the rules soon again.

PARKVIEW JAIL PLANS TO PROVIDE WINDOWS IN CELLS

STATE REJECTS IDEA OF LIGHT FROM WALLS

County Architect's Drawing Will Be Revised to Meet Demand, Judge Announces

Plans for the proposed jail at Parkview will have to be revised to conform to the recommendations of the State Welfare Department, which disapproved details of the project, Judge James R. Macfarlane said yesterday. He declared the report of the state department will be turned over to a subcommittee of the county prison board.

Judge Macfarlane said the plans of Stanley Roush, county architect, did not provide for windows in the cells. Light and ventilation for the cell blocks would be obtained from windows in the jail wall in Roush's plan. The Welfare Department requires windows in each cell.

The sub-committee of the county prison board appointed by Judge Macfarlane, is composed of Judges James H. Gray and Frank P. Patterson, and Controller Robert G. Woodside.

SAFETY, TOPIC OF CONGRESS

"Can the Vocational Schools Turn Out Safe Workers?" will be the subject of an address by Dr. Frank H. Leavitt, associate superintendent of schools, at one of the sessions of the nineteenth annual Safety Congress, to be held in Pittsburgh September 29 to October 3.

Dr. Harry C. McKown, of the department of secondary education, University of Pittsburgh, will speak on "Teaching Safety Through Activities." Addresses on safety subjects also will be given by R. M. Sherrard and Ben G. Graham, the latter acting superintendent of schools.

C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, today warned automobile drivers to be careful in driving on streets covered by dry leaves, pointing to numerous accidents which have been caused by automobiles skidding where leaves covered the highway.

BANKERS TO GO ON FARM TOUR

One representative from every bank in Allegheny County will take part in the annual Allegheny County Bankers' farm tour September 9. They will meet on the Butler Plank road between Millvale and Etna at 9 a. m., and begin the tour under the leadership of Henry R. Eby, Allegheny County farm agent.

They will visit many sections of the county during the day. Bankers making the trip are enrolling with William H. Fawcett, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Pittsburgh.

North Side Vets Open Street Fair

The eleventh annual street carnival of Observatory Post, No. 81, American Legion, opened yesterday and will continue until Saturday in Marshall avenue, near Perrysville avenue, North Side. Street dancing is a feature of the program. Henry J. Yute is general chairman in charge. A program of band music is presented each evening.

Leaders Will Aid In Fire Prevention

Men prominent in national fire prevention work will be in Pittsburgh during the annual Fire Prevention Week October 6 to 11, Charles Donley, of the campaign committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said today. He said that 150,000 school children have been enlisted to take part in the drive to lower fire hazards.

RECOUNT BARES VOTE FRAUDS

In the numbered list of 419 voters in the Thirty-third District of the Fourth Ward, the last 132 were written by the same person, a report by the Recount Board, filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday, revealed.

It also stated that 80 Republican ballots cast at the election May 20, were segregated because they bore "phantom marks." The board segregated 65 other Republican ballots because of two kinds of lead pencil marks, indelible and black.

The report of the board's findings in the recount of the First District of the First Ward, Wilkinsburg, indicated that the vote was close, but there were irregularities.

Eight Republican ballots were voided, the report said, on account of erasures, alterations and double markings. Thirteen Republican ballots also were segregater because of pin perforations, and four Democratic ballots were made void because of erasures.

CITY REFUSES COURT DOCTOR

Although the state department of health examiner has been withdrawn from Morals Court, the city health department does not intend to carry on the work, Director Charles B. Maits of the city department has announced.

Dr. John R. Conover, county director of health, said yesterday that the state had demonstrated the need for a medical officer at the court and feels that it should no longer keep up the service. The state has maintained a physician in Morals Court for six years.

Dr. Elizabeth R. Childs, who has been clinician in the court, was notified the work was discontinued August 15. Dr. Conover said the clinic was operated only to demonstrate the need for it and now the work must be carried on by a city physician. Dr. Maits said the city would take no action toward furnishing a physician for the court, remarking:

"The city has never done anything along this line and has no facilities for taking over the work. It has been a state function for a long time and has been so efficiently conducted that the city has made no move in that direction."

Philip Kerklow, 8, of Spring street, McKeesport, today was in the McKeesport Hospital suffering from a fractured left leg as a result, police said, of having been struck by an automobile driven by Alvin Darling at Fifth avenue and Sinclair street, McKeesport.

PITTSBURGHERS NAMED CHURCH OFFICERS

Dr. Allen Again Elected President of Methodist Protestant Conference

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Sept. 4.—The ninety-seventh session of the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Protestant Church opened here yesterday in the First Church with 100 ministers and lay delegates, representing 50 churches in the tri-state district, present. The Rev. Charles M. Smith, pastor, welcomed the delegates.

The Rev. Dr. A. J. Allen, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected president. Others elected were: Secretary, the Rev. Alden J. Green, Sheraden; journal clerk, the Rev. Charles M. Smith, New Brighton; treasurer, the Rev. H. M. Peterson, Fordyce; statistical secretary, the Rev. O. W. Bolton, New Cumberland, W. Va.; conference historian, the Rev. T. M. Gladden, Rogersville, Pa.

On the stationing committee were named the Rev. Dr. Allen, chairman; the Rev. Dr. E. J. Headley, Castle Shannon; the Rev. C. L. Dougherty, Pittsburgh; James M. Johnson, New Brighton; Robert McKelvie, Mt. Washington, Pittsburgh.

NO UNION DISCUSSION

This committee will report Monday at 10 a. m. There will be no discussion of church unions. The business of the conference will be largely routine, except for reports Saturday morning of the committee on moral reform, of which the Rev. A. R. Mansberger, Turtle Creek, is chairman, and of the committee on prohibition, of which the Rev. J. C. Carpenter is chairman. The Rev. H. H. Martin, Beaver Falls, president of the National Reform Association, and Dr. Charles F. Swift, Philadelphia, formerly of the Anti-Saloon League, are expected to speak. The communion sermon last night was given by the Rev. Mr. Mansberger.

REPORTS RECEIVED

Reports of commissions on new century service, evangelism and Christian education, and of general conference representatives on board of church extension were made today. The program tonight will be in charge of the women's auxiliary and the address will be made by the Rev. Paul Warner, missionary to Japan. Friday morning Dr. William L. Mudge, Harrisburg, of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, will speak. At the evening service Dr. Richard L. Shipley, Newark, N. J., will speak.

LUCKY GIRL
BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

marry that old billy goat . . . aw, Cathie, don't get sore. I didn't mean it that way, honest! Only it ain't right. You're just doing it for that damn family of yours—"

"Frank Prout, will you mind your own business!" Cathie's voice quivered with anger. She stopped short, right in the middle of the street.

"You don't know what you're doing!"

Frank Angry
Cathie Refuses to Listen To Him

"Will you kindly mind your own business!"

"No, I won't. Not until I tell you what I know about your Mr. A. A. Farnsworth!"

"You don't know anything about him!"

"I don't huh? I don't know about the shady deals him and his father was mixed up in when Schmidt was mayor? But did they get it in the neck? No, not them. They had the dough. And now he wants to marry you. You, a young, decent girl! God, I could take my two fists and batter his ugly face to a jelly, the lowdown hypocrite, the stinking—"

Cathie had not waited for any more. She had turned on her heel and gone back home.

He caught up to her at the back gate. "Listen, honey . . . oh, for God's sake. I wouldn't have had this happen for all the . . . listen, Cath, I just thought, maybe, you'd change your mind. Gosh, kid, you won't ever forget this. I sure put the hoof in the warm asphalt. I guess I better go blow my brains out to make it a really happy wedding for you. Not that you'd care much, I guess—"

"Aw, Cath, you're a darb Shake? You'll forget it?"

He moved slightly, and the light from the kitchen window fell on his working face.

"Oh, Frank, let's be friends—always!"

"Sure, kid."

They kissed, for the last time.

In spite of all their misgivings, in spite of the tears Cathie shed the night before, and the wakefulness and worry what with Ma tiptoeing in every hour or two to see if she was resting well, and little Jean having a nightmare and talking in her sleep, Cathie woke starry-eyed and pleasantly excited on her wedding day.

Jean brought her breakfast to bed. Sliced figs drowned in thick cream, hot coffee, crispy toast, and a glassy, slipping, sliding poached egg.

Her wedding things were all laid out on the bed when she came back from her bath, slightly dizzy from the aromatic fragrance of the bath crystals she had been saving and sniffing at in the glass bottle for a week, and too much steam.

"Now don't hurry darling. Take your time!" Mary Paige kept begging her, shaking out the creamy French lingerie, getting the green tweed going away suit that she was to be married in off of its padded silk hanger.

Ruth and Jean hung in the doorway, offering suggestions, making her fingers clumsy.

"Just a SHADE more lipstick, Cathie—oh no! That's too much!"

"Pull the hat a little more to the left, dear . . . it IS a smart outfit, that hat and suit and even the pumps matching . . . imagine, green shoes! What next? As long as you wouldn't have the white dress and veil, it's the next best thing, though some say dove-grey for a bride's going away—"

"Remember to speak up clearly, Cathie. If there's anything I hate it's a bride that mumbles—"

The door bell!

The car already. The car for Cathie. The car with the chauffeur in a uniform.

"Ma, your hat's too far back on your head! Ruth, watch that she doesn't get it too far back. Jean, PLEASE don't bite your nails . . . Ruth, do I look all right?"

"Cathie—wait, your bouquet!" Mrs. Hennessey in her juliets and the spotted garnet bathrobe, bringing Cathie's gardenias. The florist sent them so early that Ma took them over to put in Mrs. Hennessey's icebox, to make sure they'd keep fresh and here they'd almost forgotten them!

Mrs. Hennessey pinned the long spray with the waxy creamy blossoms and shining green leaves, on Cathie's coat where the fox fur wouldn't rub. She was the only one whose fingers were steady enough by that time.

"Cathie, hurry! Mr. Farnsworth will be waiting!"

Mr. Farnsworth. Cathie had forgotten him again, in the excitement of dressing. Yes, he'd be waiting. She gave a last look at herself in the mirror, a last kiss for Ma, and she was ready. Mr. Farnsworth mustn't be kept waiting, after he had been so kind.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

First Stage Group Play On Dec. 9

All sorts of exciting things are happening or are about to happen now that folks are back, and more on their way home. Such a galaxy of plans for the really big things, socially, for fall are being made, that I don't know quite where to begin. Before I tell you about the Pittsburgh Hunt Show Committee's further plans I want to tell you about the opening of the Stage and Play Society for this year.

The opening night will be December 8 in the Twentieth Century Club instead of in Carnegie Music Hall, where all the organization's plays have been given for several years.

Miss Eleanor Turner Grier and Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner are in charge of the program, which has been placed late on the winter calendar because the new Twentieth Century Club will not be ready for occupancy until some time in November.

Most of the members of Stage and Play have spent the summer out of town. Mrs. Wilmer Marshall Jacoby assistant secretary and treasurer of the society, returned a fortnight ago with Wilhelmina Balken from a summer in Europe.

Varied Travel

And Carroll Fitzhugh, president of Stage and Play, and Mrs. Fitzhugh are at their summer home in Coburg, Canada, where they'll remain until October.

The John Henry King Burgwins are at their summer place in Provincetown, on Cape Cod. They may go abroad soon. Mrs. Burgwin is a vice president of Stage and Play.

Miss Madelaine McClintock, a member of the board, returned a few days ago from Glacier Park, and Mrs. William Singer Moorhead, also a board member, will return early next week with her family from popular Watch Hill.

The new Pittsburgh Hunt clubhouse will be formally opened with a tea the afternoon of the first day of the Hunt's show, to be held September 12 and 13. All the members of the Western Pennsylvania hunts and all exhibitors are invited.

Open House

And arrangements for the opening are being made by Gordon Coltart King, chairman of the entertainment committee. On the second day of the show there'll be a dinner for Pittsburgh Hunt members and their friends.

On Monday the clubhouse, painted cream with green trim, will be furnished. On the first floor are a large sunroom, a lounge, dining room, kitchen and women's locker rooms. And then there are long porches to give an air of comfortable hospitality. On the second floor are quarters for the huntsmen and locker rooms for the men.

Junior Club Opens Year Saturday

A neat little green-and-white bound year book has been put out by the Junior Oakmont Woman's Club this season. From president's day, the bridge tea in the Alcoma Club Saturday afternoon, these girls will go on to their other meetings with programs covering a variety of subjects. Glen U. Cleeton, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, will talk on "Psychology Applied" next month; Mrs. H. D. James discussing "French Churches" in November and December bringing a Christmas program with music.

The January meeting will be held in the Willows, with the senior club members as guests, and Miss Eleanor J. Flynn, of Pennsylvania College for Women, as the speaker. The drama committee will furnish the next program, which will be witnessed by the Juniors of the New Kensington Tri-Borough Club. Marie Tello Phillips Jaegle will present book reviews in April and the year will close with the annual business meeting in May.

STYLISTS STRESS NECESSITY OF SIMPLICITY IN FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The couturiers, this season, are very stringent about simplicity. Elegance means unobstrusive perfection, and so the truly magnificent fabrics to be used for autumn and winter have been most simply, in some cases, almost severely, handled. See to it, that your frock is not too elaborate, however opulent the material, and group your accessories into a harmonious blend. In that direction lies sartorial success without an alarming expenditure. The mode is not an affair of mammon alone, good taste and a restricted budget can achieve far more than poor taste.

DURING THE SPRING and summer, when taffeta came into its long-neglected own, one saw everywhere the refreshing pompadour taffeta, an ideal fabric for the dance frock for the younger woman. And so, this winter we are to dance away the hours in frocks of pompadour lame, a most delicate and delightful material. Many couturiers have included it in their collections, and have found that dresses of it are most acceptable. Lucile Paray has used pompadour lame for the evening dress here sketched. The simple round-necked bodice is slightly pulled in at the narrow piped edge and is drawn into a small bowknot at the waistline. Over the narrow piped skirt are placed three tiers of slightly circular flounces, set on flat with the fulness gathered at the sides. The lowest flounce reaches to the instep, being somewhat longer than the under skirt. This dress is an elegant example of the effective simple treatment of a rich material.

THE ALLURING DINNER frock is from the new collection shown by Lucien Lelong, and approximates to his idea of the perfect frock for informal functions and dinners. Of black ring velvet, it has an all-around bolero, a princess waistline and a box-pleated skirt. The pleats, clustered at the front and back, are graduated in width. They start from narrow stitched pieces set in to the skirt, and are released further down to form box-pleats with insets of black tulle between each pleat. The skirt is but ankle length, a new note and one to be found at present only in the more informal models.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

Raquel and Greta Visit Alphonse's Offices

CHAPTER XLIV.

Raquel followed Greta into an elevator that reminded her of an ornate bird cage. Greta pressed a button. The cage mounted slowly, magically. By the same magic it stopped.

They disembarked into a small room barren of furnishings except for a desk under a window. Yes, and a carpet. A carpet like brown leaves that have hidden away under the snow until springtime.

The man sitting behind the desk had only one arm. There were many medals and bright colored ribbons on his chest, like the one who ran the elevator in the Continental. He pressed a button on the desk. A bell rang musically, somewhere beyond.

Another moment and a double door at the back of the small room parted noiselessly to admit a young woman in a tight black dress with starched collar and cuffs of glossy whiteness.

She seemed to slide forward without effort. Her eyes had engulfed Greta and Raquel at a glance.

"Good morning," she said tonelessly. "Won't you come in?" She turned toward the open doors.

"Whadda you think?" Greta whispered. "She got us just like that. Did you see her turn the old welcome mat over on us?"

Inside one walked over more woven leaves. Ankle-deep they seemed. There was only an occasional piece of furniture along the broad high hall, and yet it seemed filled. The walls gave that effect. They were the color of everything lovely under the sun, and yet they were no color.

Enormous Room

The way led into a room twice as large as the sand room Raquel had found so overpowering in the house of the Bosarts in New York. Here the carpet like strewn leaves took on a deeper tone. The walls were even more alive. Long, low benches, with carved legs and deep cushions of velvet, brown-green like moss, were placed here and there with deliberate carelessness. A single sheaf of roses, their petals blood-red on the inner side, waxy orange on the outer side, stood on a carved table under the life-sized portrait of a gorgeous woman in a violet velvet gown.

No flesh and blood woman, this one of the portrait. She was Vanity. From the top of her powdery coiffure to her tiny waist that could be spanned by thumbs and forefingers, and the pointed tip of her absurdly small brocaded boot. Vanity!

The room was at once the acme of severity and the essense of luxury. It was the creation of an exquisite, aesthete.

"Let's sit down," said Greta, herself quelled by the atmosphere of something she could not define. "And take a load off our feet," she added, defiantly.

"Bon jour, Mademoiselles." Alphonse greeted them gaily, smilingly, advancing toward the bench on which they sat. Raquel had not seen him enter the room. "You slept late. That is good. There is a busy day before us. We must meet it with freshness, with vivacity."

Other Girls Present

"I'm all set. Let's go," said Greta.

"And Mademoiselle?" Alphonse beamed at Raquel. There was not a hint of what had happened the night before in a beautiful garden, despoiled, for a while, by his spleen.

"I too am anxious to begin," she said, giving him her smile.

"Then I will put you in the hands of Georgette. She will show you to your dressing rooms, and see that you are comfortable. Such things as you are to show will be brought to you. Come."

In the hall they were met by a jolly little round dumpling of a woman in the uniform of a black dress with white cuffs and collar they had seen outside.

"But I do know heem," protested Georgette, pouting. "I know heem ver' well."

"There. You see?" he said with a gesture of outspread hands. "This Georgette is an English scholar. She could give lessons to Her Majesty."

Raquel noticed girls, women of various ages, of varied but pronounced coloring, flitting through the hall. A small group of them had gathered at the end of the hall, staring unashamed at her and at Greta. They chattered, tossed their heads, shrugged their shoulders.

Disturbed by their chatter, Alphonse turned.

"Alle," he called sharply.

Amused by Maid

Raquel and Greta learned they were to share one of the large dressing-rooms. This room was lined with mirrors. There were two chaise-lounges against opposite walls. No other furniture. Not even a chair, nor a table.

"The robes are to bring. The eat, she is at 12. For two hours," chirped Georgette. And left them with a flirt of her black skirt.

"Now I ask you!" Greta flung herself on one of the lounges convulsed with laughter. "Can you tie it? Everything's just as clear as mud. I hope Georgette sticks around. She's a laugh a minute, and laughs look scarcer than a rooster's molars around here."

Raquel said:

"I'm glad we're to be together."

"You better be," said Greta ominously. "Did you see that flock of Frenchies up at the end of the hall?"

"You mean the ones Monsieur Alphonse sent away?"

"Sent away? Sent out on their little pink ears!"

"Yes, I noticed them. Who were they?"

"The ladies of the anvil chorus, dearie. They were giving us the O. O. And did they like us? Ouch! Just as a sick cat likes sour cream."

"But how do they know whether they like us or not?" asked Raquel wonderingly. "We are strangers to them."

Models Peeved

"You betchu my life we are," Greta exclaimed. "Strangers and nothing but. An American model in this burg is just the same as a pain in the neck to those dames. Right now they're sharpening their claws and getting ready to scratch us. But don't worry, dearie. I'm some little pussy myself when it comes to scratching."

"But if we haven't done anything to them—"

"Yes, but we have. We've hit them in their pocketbooks. Than which there is nothing worse to a lady who is working to collect a lump sum so she can nab herself a husband. Did you ever hear of a dowry?"

"Yes—"

"Well, dowries were invented by Frenchmen. Dowry is Chinese for bonus. It means 'Take the woman, and here's your money for your trouble.' No money, no trouble."

"You mean these girls cannot marry unless they have money to give to their husbands?"

"You got the idea, old dear. Pay as you enter, or stay outside and take your chances some careless bimbo will come along and invite you to commit matrimony as is."

"But what has our being here got to do with that?"

Greta giggled gleefully.

"We take the places of two French models, and we collect the wages of a couple of dozen of 'em. And do they bleat!"

"Monsieur say to tell the Meesus Dexter is wait," she said.

AROUND FIVE-THIRTY THE GUY WITH THE GROCERIES IS A MORE WELCOME SIGHT THAN A MOVIE STAR

By FAY KING

In this day the blare of publicity and the glare of the spotlight seems to be somewhat of an epidemic.

Fortunately not everyone is seized with this mania of personal exploitation, and some prefer to be what they are.

It would be a sorry world indeed, if all those whose faithful work is so necessary to the welfare of everyday life should be seized with this calcium complex and seek glory at the expense of our comfort.

Th faithful milkmen are not deserting their routes.

When the elevator is stuck, or a water pipe bursts, or the phone is out of order, or meal time approaches, we are much more interested in those who can help us than in those who are breaking records.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Steels Herself For Momentous Meeting.

For a long minute after Lillian said that only Providence could help her and direct her what to say to dying Robert Savarin, there was silence in the room where she and I stood facing each other.

"What do you wish me to do first?" she asked docilely.

"Lie down." I returned promptly, "and relax if you can while I go down to supper and until your tea tray comes up. No," as she flung out her hand with a shuddering little protest at the idea of food—it is not a meal, only a pot of tea and a bit of bread and butter—just medicine as it were, which you must swallow for me. Then you are to rest again for a few minutes, and then I'll help you to get into that dress which Robert loved. It will be so covered up by your coat that only he need see it, and so there will be no comment, oral or unspoken, to annoy you. Come, now, the first part of the prescription."

I drew her toward the bed and made her lie down.

"Try to sleep if you can," I adjured her, but as I hurried down to my waiting supper I knew that the admonition was so much wasted breath. But I hoped that she could relax the tension of her nerves for a few minutes, or even seconds.

"You don't want that tea tray sent up until after you've had your supper, do you?" Mrs. Hasbrouck asked, and beamed approval at my negative answer.

"That's what I thought," she said. "Now you come in here and have a good meal, for I can see you're carrying the biggest burden of all this."

"Indeed no," I protested, but Mrs. Hasbrouck paid no attention to anything I said, and enlarged upon what she dubbed my "cleverness" giving the word the old-fashioned meaning of "good-heartedness," until in sheer self-defense as well as from a prodding reminder that I must keep faith with Harry Underwood, I switched the subject to the espionage I wished her to keep over Mary Harrison.

"Please do not mistake me," I said when I told her that I wished her to know where Mary was every minute of the time that I was away from the house. "My niece is a high-minded girl, incapable of any wrongdoing. But she is adventurous and high-spirited, and she might think it was a romantic thing to go for a moonlight walk along this country road."

"Nothing would happen to her if she did," Mrs. Hasbrouck said with a little smile. "It's too late for the summer vacationers and we're not on the beaten path of the bootleggers, so she'd be as safe as if she were parading the hall in here."

"I'm sure of that," I told her, "but— I can't explain very well—" desperately flogging my imagination for an excuse which would seem plausible to her—"it's connected with some property matter, but it's necessary that somebody be able to testify as to her whereabouts and conduct during every hour of the day."

"I understand," Mrs. Hasbrouck answered promptly. "It's like those cases I've read of where a girl is to inherit a lot of money if she doesn't smoke cigarettes or drink for a certain number of years. But just one drink or one cigarette will throw her out of the property, and of course the other heirs are watching her like hawks all the time."

Her glance at me as she finished was one of inquiry, and I nodded, feeling that Sapphira was not only my middle name as Harry Underwood would have said, but my first and last as well.

"I can see how you wouldn't want her walking out alone," Mrs. Hasbrouck went on, "and I'll look out for her every minute that you're not here yourself. Let me give you some more of this meat pie."

"Not another morsel," I stipulated. "I have eaten far more than I expected to already."

"Well, I don't know what you expected," my hostess retorted, "a little birdseed, I guess—you haven't eaten much more than that. But I know there's no use doing anything with you until after you come back from Cosgrove's. Then I warn you, I'm going to stand over you with a blacksnake whip if I can't make you eat any other way."

"You won't need anything but your food," I told her placatingly as I left the room with her promise to send Mrs. Underwood's tray directly. A half hour later, with Lillian attired in Robert Savarin's favorite frock under her big coat, and fortified by the hot tea which I had made her swallow, I went again to the Cosgrove home, and leaving Lillian with Mrs. Cosgrove, made my way upstairs to the room where the nurse had prepared Robert Savarin for my coming.

Household Hints

Sometimes baby develops a scale of dandruff on top of his little bald head and we wonder how to get rid of it. Each day during his bath wash his head with castile soap and then rub a little white vaseline over the dandruff. In a very short time the scale will loosen and come right off.

The rinse water for chamois gloves should be clean but just as soapy as the water in which they were washed in order for them to dry nice and soft. Slip them off your hands, squeeze them in a towel, blow out the fingers and hang in a current of air to dry.

Love's Assets and Liabilities

The darkest hour of married life is the breakfast hour, when the average woman looks like a witch—and the average man feels like an ogre.

In the days of cotton stockings, the stenographer used to be one of the biggest assets around the office; now, she is more likely to be one of its greatest liabilities.

things they "gave up" in order to get married, they are taking the first step toward divorce.

The girl who once cultivated "pretty manners" and practiced her piano lessons, now has a daughter, who puts her faith in a lipstick, a permanent wave and a concentrated study of the "It-girls" of the movies.

When you realize that marriage is a bank, and that what you get out of it depends entirely on what you put INTO it, you have won the first handicap in the race for happiness.

Some men seem to think that they have not done their social duty by a woman, unless they "break her heart." But, by the time she is twenty, the modern girl's heart has been "broken" in so many places that it is nothing but a bundle of chips.

If Heaven ... a place where there is no marriage or giving in marriage, then, perhaps, Purgatory is a place where there is divorce.

These overnight marriages, which end in the divorce court a week or two later, would be easier to forgive if they were based on the intoxication of a mad infatuation, instead of on a few cocktails and a dare.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Treating the Common Ills of Baby

Little babies have a great many things to bother them. They have ailments, some big, some little.

DR COPELAND

Vomiting is a sympton indicating that something is wrong.

Anything that interferes with comfortable digestion that "upsets the stomach," usually produces vomiting. Scarlet fever and many other diseases of childhood begin with vomiting.

Mothers are happy just so long as baby is normal and well. When its eating and sleeping are interfered with by indigestion then everybody is unhappy.

It is a common thing for a young baby to vomit shortly after eating. Only a few minutes after feeding some of the food is expelled. This the mother does not worry about.

But vomiting a quantity of sour material as much as an hour after feeding is quite another matter. The chances are that the baby has been overfed or has been fed too fast. If so the stomach was overcrowded and naturally the excess material was thrown off.

The milk or food mixture may be the best in the world. But if a child gulps it down hurriedly in its hungry eagerness, vomiting is sure to follow.

Perhaps the rubber nipple has too large a hole in it. If that is the case the bottle could be emptied in five minutes, which is altogether too short a time for a baby to be fed. A quarter of an hour is not too much time for the baby to take its food.

Too much fat, or cream, in the milk may be responsible for your baby's vomiting. This is rather a common cause for trouble.

The bottle-fed baby needs a certain amount of sugar in its food. Milk sugar or corn sugar is the best. Most authorities do not favor cane sugar for this purpose.

Of course, some babies seem to thrive in spite of the vomiting. You cannot be sure that the sugar is the cause of frequent vomiting. But it would be wise to change to another kind if cane sugar has been used.

Whenever a baby has more than the mildest form of vomiting it is wise to have a doctor see what is wrong. Do not wait too long.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Pretty little movie fans beholding beaded eyelashes on their idols think how much they'd like to black-soot their soul-window curtains. Mustn't do. Beading is accomplished with heated oils, and it is not something that any small child can do. One splash in the eye, and there will be trouble enough. Furthermore, all such make-up is for the stage or the screen. In the honest light of day eyelash-beading looks decidedly messy and untidy. The lightest touch of dark brown mascara is permitted. Or the eyelash pencil can be used with care and discrimination.

Tranquillity of mind is a preservative of youth and good looks. It woos sleep, it aids the digestion, it wards wrinkles away. It is a fairy godmother that keeps a woman fair and happy. Yet how many women give mental health a thought? They're too busy pushing and jostling frantic buyers at the cosmetic counters. Cosmetics are all right. Very necessary. But they can't combat the forces of Fretfulness and Worry.

Cornmeal makes a good medium for the dry shampoo. Shake it from a kitchen salt shaker onto the scalp. Remove with a firm bristled hair brush. Cornmeal doesn't stick like orris root, the old-time agent for the dry shampoo. Cornmeal absorbs oily deposits on scalp and hair, and carries away atmospheric dust and loose dandruff.

"Colgate's is to be preferred . . ." says Dr. H. H. Bunzell

DR. H. H. BUNZELL

Ph.D., University of Chicago; Director of the Bunzell Research Laboratories, New York City; formerly Bio-Chemist, U. S. Government; recent Professor of Bio-Chemistry, University of Cincinnati; Medical School.

"What can a dentifrice really do?" Dr. Bunzell makes public his findings after years of study on the subject in a great eastern university—and he reveals some important truths.

Dr. Bunzell says:

"A dentifrice whose sole object is to clean the teeth, such as Colgate's, and which is made primarily from the most effective cleansing agents, is to be preferred to one which relies on ingredients put in to affect other objects such as the attempts to correct the acidity of the saliva.

"No relationship can be found between the conditions of the teeth and the degree of acidity found in the saliva."

A DENTIFRICE, Dr. H. H. Bunzell believes, is made with one object—and only one—to clean the teeth. And so he approves Colgate's. Colgate's—with its penetrating foam; Colgate's—with its power of reaching the hidden surfaces where food lodges and is most apt to cause decay.

Ordinary toothpastes—sluggish, pasty dentifrices—are not active enough.

Tests show Colgate's superiority. And dentists encourage its use. For 50 years they have been advising this one toothpaste. More people use it today than any other.

Agreeing with Dr. Bunzell are such eminent authorities as Dr. Hardee Chamblin, Ph. D., Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health, New York City, and scores of others equally well known who have been retained to make analytical tests and to render their expert opinions.

And, despite its high quality, this superior toothpaste sells at only 25 cents the tube. Your teeth need, your teeth deserve, this daily care.

25c The price is important—but the quality—not the price—has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

The Average Girl Has as Many Breaks as Her Brother.

"Women always get the worst of it."

No, you're wrong. This startling statement is not made by some Pretty Female. It is made by a Big Boy named Dan, who is shocked, disgusted, outraged, and peeved because Albert suggested that ladies who desired to be "stepped out" should pay their half.

Dan thinks the dear girls have enough load to carry, anyway, without being forced to pay for their own entertainment. And the rest of his sentiments are equally big-hearted.

No, Clara, I do not know his address, and I wouldn't give it to you if I did. For he jingles to me like the sort of a lad I need badly myself!

"Dear Sally—

"That Albert, who wants the girls to go out with him 50-50, is all right in his way, but he doesn't weigh a lot. I am a young fellow myself, working for a living and what pleasures come my way, while I keep my eyes open for the Girl of my Dreams.

"Here are a few of the reasons why I believe that women should not share the cost of the evening's entertainment when they're asked out.

"First—Men are so egotistical as a whole that it is only fair that a woman should have her way paid in return for having to listen all the evening to some bozo telling the world and her what a great guy he is.

"Second—Taking life as a whole, it must be admitted that women hoe the rougher row. From the start to the finish they are the ones who work and pay dearly for their pleasures. A man, by nature, takes life pretty much as it goes along, but a woman has foresight to see into the future. She realizes what her lot in life is to be, and more times than not she makes less noise about it than does a man telling about his 'tough luck' and so forth. A woman, therefore, deserves all the enjoyment she can get, and what's more, a man owes it to her to 'put out without a holler.'

"Third — Women generally don't ask anyone to take them out. If a man takes it upon himself to invite a girl to 'to places' he should be willing to accept the cost it entails, without squawking. To a working fellow, still on his first thousand, a girl friend is a luxury. Luxuries cost money. On the same basis, an automobile for pleasure is a luxury. No fellow would buy a car and then expect the manufacturer to buy his gas and oil for him. If you aren't willing to pay the cost, don't go out until you have saved enough, and have realized it is a man's part to do it.

"Fourth—A fellow who would have a girl pay for part of an evening's pleasure is not yet a man, but a very small boy in his attitude toward life. He wants something for nothing, and hasn't yet realized that 'what's worth having is worth paying for.'

"Fifth—What if a girl does save her money while her boy friend takes her out? Who is she saving it for, indirectly, but for her future permanent boy friend whom she will marry? To make herself a better wife, socially, culturally and physically. It is indeed a narrow, short-sighted man who intends to some day be married, who can't see that a girl's saving her money will benefit him, or some other fellow, some day.

"Sixth—You get what you pay for. Taking it for granted that a fellow chooses his girl friends with some amount of discrimination, he will enjoy himself exactly in proportion to the amount that he contributes toward the evening's fun. Pay half the bill, and you'll enjoy half the fun. Pay all of it and you'll feel like a regular host who has invited a guest to honor him. So, until you can gladly and economically pay for the pleasure of a girl friend's company, you will not enjoy life to its full.

"Personally, the idea of any of my dates (I have all I can afford and no more) paying for the pleasure of my company is no less than insulting. Frankly, I think this Albert is crazy.

"DAN."

Those are noble sentiments, Dan. And as before hinted, I'm for you a million. But I'm afraid I'll have to blast a few of your illusions, in the interests of justice.

You mean well, kid, but you've a lot to learn. Particularly concerning the sad, sad lot of the average female. Evidently someone has spent a lot of time filling you up with the grand old wheeze about Us Girls being martyrs and always getting it in the neck. And once, perhaps, we were. But no longer!

The average girl of 1930 has just as many breaks as her brother. And she doesn't need any more coddling. Nor is she any more in the "luxury" class than he.

If her boy friend is thrilled to take her out, she's just as thrilled to be taken. And he's no more indebted to her than she is to him. So why shouldn't she be willing to put a dent into her pay check as she is into his?

But how about a man's pride?

Well—how about her pride?

She's standing as straight on her own feet as he is on his. Then why should he be allowed to make all the lordly gestures?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Guest of Honor of the Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When wedding invitations are sent out, should invitations be sent to the parents and brothers and sisters of the groom?

2. When the double ring ceremony is used, is the groom's ring of the same general type as the bride's ring? M.

1. Yes, most emphatically. These invitations to the parents, brothers, and sisters of the groom are very important ones since the family of the groom are the guests of honor of the wedding. (That is why they sit on the right of the important aisle of the church, and why at the wedding feast, the mother of the groom sits on the right of the father of the bride, and the father of the groom sits on the right of the mother of the bride.)

To the mother and father of the groom, the invitations should be addressed: Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hamilton.

Each sister of the groom and each brother should be sent a separate invitation.

2. Not usually. Nowadays the bride's ring is usually of platinum or white gold, a very narrow band, often engraved and sometimes set with small stones. The groom's ring is of yellow gold, a rather narrow plain band.

The Surprise Party

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. If a surprise party is given on anyone, who should thank the guests for calling, the person giving the party, or the person for whom the party is given?

2. What should the hostess say when some one drinks a toast to her on her birthday?

CONSTANT READER

1. The person giving the party, the hostess, should thank the guests for coming, and it is polite for the guests of honor to tell each guest, as he or she is leaving, how delightful it was to see the person.

2. A charming, gracious bow with a friendly "Thank you," or "Thank you. That is most kind" is enough.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, September 5

Although the lunar configuration for this day points to lively and unexpected opportunities and change, yet the mutual figures are found to hold a note of mutually malevolent and disturbing conditions. These show disruptive and disintegrating forces suddenly precipitating positions of stress and peril, radically affecting the finances and probably endangering the finances and probably endangering the physical well-being as well. It would be wise to be on guard against all manner of loss and abrupt visitation in business as well as personal affairs. Shun loans and borrowing also.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of change which may hold some unexpected benefit, but at the same time they may be beset with unforeseen losses or physical peril. It would be well to arm against disintegrating forces and to safeguard the property against loss by loans or treachery.

A child born on this day may be ingenious, original and adventurous, but it may incline to rash, impetuous and headstrong and headlong actions, which may prove the means of self-undoing, unless these be disciplined in infancy.

SAVE MONEY... but not at the expense of Food Quality

A talk to 10,000,000 American consumers of margarine who are allowed to spend their MONEY but not to know the FACTS

ONE of the biggest compliments the producers of Nucoa ever had was when they were once accused of making a "snob" margarine.

A margarine could be sold for 5 cents a pound less than Nucoa. But we couldn't call it Nucoa . . . because it would not be Nucoa.

We are not interested in cheap materials, cheap equipment or cheap methods.

We are interested in the best materials the market provides; the best brains we can engage and the best scientific equipment obtainable. We pay the prices for brains, materials and equipment.

If this is snobbery then it's the kind of snobbery that gives the American housewife the benefit.

How Far Can Cheapness Go?

There is always a temptation to make food products cheaper and cheaper in order to attract the housewife with price bait.

Sooner or later this policy works against the woman buyer.

The time comes when she can no longer trust the quality. Bothersome questions pop up in her mind.

Now is the time to bring these questions about the margarine you use to the front.

Does it have an "oldish" taste?
This means that the oils are inferior or that it is not fresh.

Does it have a slightly grayish color?
Again inferior oils.

Does it leave an after-taste of odd, disturbing flavor?
Many details of slip-shod manufacture can cause this.

Is it absolutely pure?
Here you have to take the word of the maker.

Whose Word Can You Take About Margarine?

Some people still think that one margarine is just about the same as another.

They do not recognize that quality margarine should be a food delicacy and not a cheap commercial article.

The makers of Nucoa . . . who do recognize that Nucoa is a food delicacy . . . not only maintain the highest standard of quality in America (and perhaps the whole world) but they also created this standard.

Here's how they maintain this standard:

Tests for clearness of color. The whiter the margarine the better the oils. Nucoa is snowy white. The color wafer supplied you with each pound of Nucoa is absolutely pure and is approved by the U. S. Government. By coloring Nucoa yourself you can obtain the color you prefer for your own table use.

Tests for texture. Tests for flavor. Nucoa is rich and delicious. Remember, also, that Nucoa is absolutely free from animal fats.

The Expensive Secret . . . CONTROL

Then the Master Control . . . that costly system of distribution and checking that assures freshness.

Nucoa is shipped fresh every day. It is sold faster by your grocer and delivered to him more frequently than any other margarine, by carefully selected distributors who have years of experience in handling perishable foods and delicacies.

No matter where you live you buy Nucoa with our sure knowledge that it is strictly fresh, for the Best Foods Central Laboratory in New York City has a "checking sample" of the Nucoa your grocer sells you. This "checking sample" is regularly tested for quality and freshness.

No other margarine is guarded by controlled freshness. No other margarine has the distributive organization and Master Control.

Remember these FACTS when you go to the store for your margarine supply.

The Hot-Toast Test is Your Personal Margarine Test
Take a piece of hot toast and spread liberally with Nucoa. Notice how the good wholesome elements of this delicacy begin to register on the taste buds . . . those wonderful little taste-centers at the base of the tongue. Notice the sweet and appetizing satisfaction . . . the clean body and "bloom" of flavor.
The Hot-Toast Test will prove to you that Nucoa is UNLIKE any other margarine.

GOSSIP ABOUT HOLLYWOOD AND NEWS OF AMUSEMENTS

Greatest German Shows Were Oberammergau And Hagenbeck

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THEATRICALLY the two most interesting exhibitions in Germany this year have been Hagenbeck's Zoo at Hamburg and the Passion Play at Oberammergau. This may seem a curious combination, but Hagenbeck has dramatized all his animals and set them in appropriate scenery, while Oberammergau certainly is the finest dramatic spectacle in the world.

One Pittsburgh school teacher who attended the performances this year stayed two weeks and saw the Passion Play four times. That is how it gets the spectator.

George Seibel

Think of attending the Passion Play is like a trip to the Holy Land, a day in Hagenbeck's Zoo is like an excursion from North Pole to Equator and a dash south with Amundsen.

If a visit to Oberammergau duplicates the entire village with a population of only 2,400 putting on a dramatic spectacle in which almost 1,000 people are used. And no outsider has a chance to get into the cast.

So they had to import 24 policemen from Munich to look after the public safety, because all the regular police force were Scribes or Pharisees or Roman soldiers.

But why should they need any policemen during the Passion Play when there are only two thieves in Oberammergau?

Perhaps it is to watch the visitors from foreign parts. Oberammergau this summer was an American town. You heard little but English on the streets. You had to go to the theater to hear German—and occasionally a little Bavarian.

ON HIGH ART PLANE

When sometimes a juicy "sh" sound would remind you of that story in the book of Judges where the Gileadites massacre their enemies who can't pronounce "shibboleth," it only served to emphasize the high artistic level of the whole performance. Here were simple villagers who played with the finish of professionals.

Pilate was the best actor, played by Melchior Breitsamter. Hugo Rutz as Caiaphas, Anton Lechner as Annas, and Guido Mayr as Judas should rank next. You note that the "villains" play better than the "righteous ones." Of course they have better opportunities.

Alois Lang as Christus is more of an oriental ascetic than Anton Lang could have been. He plays his role almost as a fatalist. His diction and his dignity were above reproach.

PORTRAYAL TENDER

Anni Rutz played Mary with a tender simplicity that brought tears to many eyes.

But it is as a spectacle, a prodigious mass production, that the Passion Play must be judged. The mobs are well managed, the gruesome realism of the Crucifixion makes you shudder, the tableaux are as beautiful as Italian paintings and the choruses are perfectly trained.

All of which is remarkable when you consider that the text is often mere doggerel, and the music a regurgitation of Haydn and Handel with a dash of Mozart.

OTHER GREAT SHOW

Surpassing all my anticipations, the Passion Play is the most vivid memory of a tour that included 27 cities in 41 days. And the next most impressive spectacle was Hagenbeck's Zoo at Hamburg.

He seems to have got his idea from the Garden of Eden. Here is a paradise in which you could walk around for a whole day and visit the tiger in his native jungle, the Polar bear on his eternal ice, the mountain goat looks down upon you from miniature Himalayas, while the flamingo wades in an imitation Nile.

Every animal lives here amid surroundings similar to those from which it was taken. Under such circumstances it must be a very grumpy lion or zebra that would get homesick.

At first you wonder why the animals do not escape or devour one another. But soon you learn that Herr Hagenbeck is a very clever man. He knows how far each animal can jump, and he

COMING ATTRACTIONS LISTED FOR STAGE AND SCREEN

Eric von Stroheim has the main supporting role opposite Constance Bennett in "Three Faces East," which opens in the Stanley today. Gene Morgan presents "Noah's Lark" on the stage.

Mabel Kroman will be very much at home in the role of the Swedish girl Christine Sederholm, in "Your Uncle Dudley," the George Sharp Players offering in the Pitt next week. Miss Kroman was born in Denmark and speaks the language of her country fluently, and there is a marked similarity between the Danish and Swedish tongues.

Although the film production of the John Galsworthy play, "Escape," coming to the Sheridan Square tomorrow, was produced in England, a complete staff of cameramen, recordists and assistant directors from RKO's Hollywood studios worked with Basil Dean, the producer and director.

"GOOD NEWS" FOR PENN

Mary Lawlor, who created the ingenue lead in the original stage presentation of "Good News," repeats this performance in the motion picture version which opens in the Penn tomorrow. The cast includes Bessie Love, Gus Shy, Stanley Smith, Dorothy McNulty, Billy Taft and Cliff Edwards.

"On Your Back" is the title of the film which will open in the Enright tomorrow. H. B. Warner, Irene Rich, Marion Shilling and Raymond Hackett have the featured roles. Dick Powell will offer "College Capers" on the stage.

SHOWBOAT DRAMA

"Sweetest Girl in Dixie," heralded as a romance of the South, will be presented by the Capt. Menke players on the Golden Rod Showboat, located at Montrose, next week. It will mark the eighth week of the Goldenrod's local engagement.

Walter Winchell Will Be Found Today on Page 8

From England

Edna Best has leading feminine role in "Escape," picture coming tomorrow to the Sheridan Square. It was filmed in England and Miss Best is an English actress.

Lowell Sherman Winning Success as Movie Actor-Director

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.

A NOTABLE success has been scored by Lowell Sherman as an actor-director at RKO.

Lowell is spoken of at the studio as a man who knows what he wants. He finishes pictures a week ahead of schedule, which makes him thrice blessed in the eyes of the business office.

One of the fruits of William Le Baron's visit to New York is the purchase of Robert E. Sherwood's comedy "The Queen's Husband" as a directorial and starring vehicle for Sherman. This is a satirical piece about royalty which first was produced in New York in September, 1929. Roland Young took the lead. Later, on the coast, Edward Everett Horton did the play.

Lowell Sherman.

"The Queen's Husband" will be Sherman's third venture under his double-duty contract at RKO.

WHAT'S THIS?

They do be saying that Darryl Zanuck, head of Warners scenario department, took a sock at a director in an argument over cutting a picture. This causes a ripple of excitement in the colony, for Zanuck is a small man and none too husky. It develops, however, that he used to be an amateur boxer. Other directors will take notice.

SISTER WORKS, TOO

Marie Prevost's sister, Peggy, is going over to Tiffany to dress sets and oversee the wardrobe department. She's been a set-dresser at MGM now for about two years. In former days, Peggy was a leading woman, too. Likewise, a swell ballroom dancer.

Stardom is said to be just around the corner for Robert Montgomery, the young Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer leading man who has created an impression by his work in "The Divorcee" and in "The Big House."

The studio feels that he might easily be starred now, but will postpone the promotion at least until he has played opposite Joan Crawford in "Within the Law."

Joan Crawford

I believe the final contracts are still unsigned for this picture, but there is small likelihood of the deal falling through. Bayard Veiller is the author of the original melodrama.

DOUBLING UP

An unusual procedure is being followed by Warner Brothers in the filming of "Fifty Million Frenchmen." There are two companies working under different directors. Lloyd Bacon has the main job, while Ray Enright is helping. The object of the doubling up is to finish the picture quicker. As all the principals do not appear in every episode, the plan is working out nicely.

BILL'S LEAD

English actresses seem to relate towards the film versions of Frederick Lonsdale's plays.

Paramount vouchsafes the information that Juliette Compton is to play opposite William Powell in "New Morals," which, if I am not mistaken, is a direct descendant of the English writer's "Spring Cleaning."

Miss Compton was a little slow to take on in the film colony, but did excellent work in "Anybody's Woman" and in "Morocco."

SEPTEMBER REPLETE WITH FEATURES

NOT IN MANY years has the sport world known a month so busy or so jammed with major features as the present one will be. One big number after after another is to be the order during September. The scheduled events are as varied as they are numerous, with hardly any branch of competition left out, the championship automobile and power boat races of Labor Day to be followed by high spots in polo, yachting, lawn tennis, golf, boxing, horse racing, baseball and football.

Charles Tremayne

At Meadow Brook, L. I., next Saturday, Capt. Charles Tremayne will lead Great Britain's polo team against the defending American four in the first game of the international cup match, the second game being slated for September 10, and the third, if necessary, for September 13. The annual tournament for the men's lawn tennis championship of the United States in singles will also be inaugurated next Saturday at Forest Hills, and on the same day horse-racing at Belmont Park will be featured by the Lawrence Realization Stakes, with the champion Gallant Fox among the starters.

NEXT MONDAY THE Professional Golf Association's championship tournament will open on the Fresh Meadow course at Flushing, L. I., continuing until the following Saturday. The first race in the series for the America's Cup between the defending Enterprise and the challenging Shamrock V will be sailed off Newport on September 13, with a race on each succeeding day, Sundays excepted, until one of the yachts has won the required number.

The United States amateur championship golf tournament will start at Merion on September 22, continuing through six days. The $100,000 Futurity and the Grand National Steeplechase will be run at Belmont Park on September 13, and the Jockey Gold Cup is booked for September 17. In boxing, Al Singer meets Jimmy McLarnin in New York on September 11 and Jack Sharkey encounters Victorio Campolo on the 25th. The college football season will open in Pittsburgh on September 19 and in other cities on the 20th or 27th. The big league baseball pennant races will be decided by September 28, as well as the home run Derby between Babe Ruth and Hack Wilson, and there is a chance that the world series will start as early as September 30. Quite a month.

ELMER LAYDEN, director of athletics at Duquesne University and of Four Horseman football fame at Notre Dame, may be found filling a new role in Pittsburgh sports the coming winter. There is a possibility of his becoming secretary and business manager of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club to succeed Garry Schmeelk.

Elmer Layden

President James F. Callahan says the double post has been offered to Layden, in view of the prospect that the team will remain here, and Elmer is considering it, though he has not yet decided to accept. It would not interfere with his gridiron coaching duties, as hockey will not come in until after the football season, and there is no question that he would be a popular addition to the local ice organization.

THE YANKEES BROKE the grip of a long persistent pitching hoodoo when they defeated the Senators yesterday, which was only their fourth victory over Washington in 19 games this year. They won a decision over a former team mate, Sad Sam Jones, whom they had not defeated since George Pipgras bested him, 3 to 2, on May 29, 1928. In the meantime, Jones had downed them eight times in a row—three times during the remainder of 1928, twice last year and three times this season. In all since they released him to Washington late in 1927, Jones has trimmed the Yanks nine times in 21 games pitched against them.*

ANOTHER CHANGE OF pitching luck in the opposite way was a feature of the same game. Though he was forced to retire in the ninth inning, Ed Wells received credit for the Yankees' victory, and it was his first win over the only club that has marred his record this season.

Wells leads the American League pitchers in percentage of games won, with 11 victories and only three defeats, and all three of his reverses were suffered at the hands of the Senators. The former Bethany College southpaw has beaten the Red Sox and Browns three times each, the Tigers twice, and the Indians, White Sox and Senators once each.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT John McGraw has signed a new contract to manage the Giants for the next five years causes no more surprise than would one to the effect that the Pittsburgh club had decided to retain Lloyd Waner.

John McGraw

Without McGraw it wouldn't be the New York club and the New York club wouldn't be the Giants. He has come to be considered an inseparable and indispensable part of the Gotham outfit and of the National League, consequently no one had taken seriously the reports that he was about to quit his old post to attempt to buy the Pirates or to hook up with the American League.

IT WAS ONLY on account of those rumors that the signing of McGraw was announced before the expiration of his present contract at the end of this season, though the new agreement is said to have been reached several months ago. McGraw has been manager of the Giants for 28 years, the only pilot in the big show who has headed one club for a longer period being Connie Mack. The latter is serving his thirtieth season as boss of the A's. Under McGraw's leadership the Giants have won 10 pennants, finished second ten times, third three times, fourth twice, fifth once and last once.*

McGRAW'S ONLY TAIL-END finish came in 1915, and he rebuilt the club so quickly that two years later it was a pennant winner and a world series contender. In 28 years, counting the present season, McGraw's clubs have landed in the second division only twice.

The Giant leader's closest rival for pennant-winning honors is Mack, who has piloted his club to the flag seven times, and is about to win another. The late Miller Huggins produced six pennant winners as manager of the Yankees. Cap Anson, Frank Selee and Ned Hanlon each won five pennants, and Fred Clarke and Frank Chance each captured four.

MASTER MIND TO CONTINUE AS PILOT

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—John J. McGraw, generally given credit for transforming New York from a joke city in the major leagues to one of the best baseball cities in the country, will be at the helm of the Giants for at least five more years.

McGraw put his name on a contract yesterday and thus quieted all rumors that the man, who has been in charge of the Giants since 1903 and is a stockholder and vice president of the club, would not be back next year and the years to follow. McGraw's present contract expires at the close of this season but Charles A. Stoneham, president of the club, and McGraw reached an agreement six months ago. The signing yesterday was merely a formality.

OLD AGREEMENT

McGraw himself handed a statement from President Stoneham to newspaper men at the downtown offices of the Giants yesterday afternoon.

"Mr. Stoneham and I reached an agreement six months ago," he said, "and another contract would have been signed about the beginning of the new year, but with these foolish stories going around that I would manage another club, or even leave the National for the American League, caused us to conclude the business now."

Rumors have persisted since the Giants went on their last Western trip without the manager, that the man who has been in charge of the Giants since 1903, and is a stockholder and vice president of the club, would not retain his place.

It was explained that ill health has kept the manager from the bench. McGraw's health is reported much improved, but his physician warned him that he could not hope to regain his health if he insisted on braving the heat and humidity of the bench.

Manager McGraw is hopeful that his 1930 team will win his eleventh championship for him.

RACE NOT OVER

"No, the race is not over yet by a long shot," he said. "We certainly have a chance."

"Will you be able to take a seat on the bench if the Giants get in the world series?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes," was the reply, accompanied by the famous McGraw smile.

"I am sure, in that event, the docter would permit."

The formal statement from President Stoneham read:

"John J. McGraw today signed a contract with the New York Giants for five years, commencing at the expiration of his present contract, which does not terminate until the end of this year.

"It had not been the intention to make a new contract until the expiration of the present contract, but in view of the persistent rumors to the effect that Mr. McGraw intends not only to leave the Giants, but to transfer his activities to the American League, Mr. McGraw and Mr. Stoneham today agreed upon this long-term contract.

"It has always been Mr. McGraw's intention to wind up his

SANDLOT TITLE GAMES TODAY

Verona Community qualified to meet the Homestead Aces in the playoffs for the West Penn League championship last evening by defeating Wilmerding, 7 to 6, at the Concourse grounds. The series will start next week, because Verona will have to leave Pittsburgh soon for Cincinnati to represent this district in the Class A eliminations.

This evening the third game of the City League championship series will be played at Olympia Park. Homewood and Book Shoe each have won one game, so that battle can be classed as the crucial game. Otey probably will oppose Bimmy Steele on the mound.

At the Pleasant Valley field, Reliance Life will meet the Homestead Aces in a feature game for the Greater Pittsburgh second half title.

Verona and Edgewood will meet in the Invitation series at Verona.

The fourth game of the Allegheny-Kiski Valley baseball championship will be staged this evening at the Birdville grounds. Springdale has copped two games out of the three played, and the Pioneer team of Brackenridge, is eager to even the series.

Immaculate Heart and Ray Riddle's North Siders will clash at the Troy Hills grounds this evening in the first game of the North Side Twilight League's title series.

World Records Fall In Grand Circuit

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Two world records were smashed yesterday in the grand circuit races here. The first came when Hollywood Chief came home in 2:06½ to win the final heat of the Empire state $10,000 trotting handicap, that time being the fastest ever made by a trotter from a standing start.

The second was in the Yates Hotel 2-year-old pacing event when Handy Dillon was chased home in 2:04¼, lowering the record of Calumet Adam for 2-year-old pacers by one quarter of a second.

NET ENTRIES TO CLOSE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Entries in men's singles for the revival of the Allegheny County tennis championships will close at 6 p. m. tomorrow. Names of prospective contestants will be received until that hour by Chairman Sam Keller at 512 Peoples Bank building, McKeesport. Keller may be reached by telephone at McKeesport 5513 or at McKeesport 8254. The men's doubles list will remain open until Monday evening, while feminine singles performers may slip in under the wire as late as Tuesday night.

Play in the man-to-man division will get under way at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the clay courts of the Carnegie Library Club at Duquesne, Pa. Already, with invitations out not more than a few days, the total of contenders is well on the way toward the two-score mark and includes such crack racqueters as Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace and 1928 Western Pennsylvania premier; Billy O'Loughlin and Jack Lauler, likewise stars of the Winged Head; Jack Beatty, Bill Spindler, Karl Wolfe and George Henderson, powerful Stanton Heights quartet; John Brown and Edgar Alcorn, Mount Lebanon luminaries, who have shone in district tournaments the past month; Capt. Frank Smith and Andy Smeaton, mainstays of the P. T. A. League champion Edgewood team; Johnny Hecker, College Hill stylist; Bill Servick, Regis Bullion, Dr. Aber, Frank Casey and Sam Keller, ranking netmen of the home club; and a flock of others. By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

That five-year document just signed by John J. McGraw is big stuff in the Giant camp, but if you talked to any of the Cubs today you would find that they, too, have a pretty big contract on their hands. The problem facing the Bears concerns the way and means of defeating a club that generally raises the dickens with them. The reference, of course, is to the Pirates.

About one year ago this time, the Bruins came to Pittsburgh with a lead so great that the runnerup Buccos had no thought of catching up with them, yet they did harass the invaders to the extent of trimming them four times in succession, and just missed out in the fifth battle.

BUCS COP FIRST

Well, the present series consists of five fights, counting the one scheduled for Sunday in Chicago. The Pirates jumped off aright yesterday by winning, 9 to 6, and to say that the Bears are apprehensive this morning is treating the subject with moderation.

The McCarthy Clan today is only three and one-half games ahead of the Giants and one game better so far as the third-place Cardinals are concerned—and don't count those Redbirds out, for they are one of the best outfits in the sport, all things considered.

The Men of McGraw kicked away a beautiful chance in the second game of yesterday. Bill Walker had a lead of three runs as late as the eighth inning of a game wherein victory would have reduced the gap separating them from the Cubs to two and one-half games. But the Giants could not hold the fort.

For today the Cubs, as well as the fans, will get a peek at Charley Wood, the wonder worker from the wheat fields of Kansas.

Nick Altrock Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—I knew times were tough and men were being laid off, but I didn't think that would cause Babe Ruth to cut down on the production of home runs. You would think the Babe was waiting for Congress to put a higher tariff on them, the way he is hanging back with his bat.

Nick Altrock

A couple of weeks ago the Robins were getting measured for limousines and diamond rings and today they are just a ball team trying to keep from spilling over into the second division. When they snapped out of that last Western trip, they just found themselves flagpole sitting at half-mast.

JONES DISCUSSES CHANGES IN GRID RULES

COACH CERTAIN COLLEGE GAME IMPROVED

By TAD JONES

Member All America Board of Football

No early-season comment with regard to the coming football campaign would be quite complete without a brief discussion of the rules and rule changes. To the casual observer the changes which were made last winter are of relative importance. To the close student of the game however and those who really love the sport the changes slight as they were are of great significance. I refer to the rule changes effecting the shift and the screening of forward pass receivers.

From the very beginning of the American game of football starting before the ball has been passed has not been permissable either by the offensive or the defensive team. For violations of this rule the offside penalty has always been inflicted. In the old days of "set" formations there was little danger of one team gaining a decided advantage over the other by starting ahead of the ball for such illegal starting was easy to detect.

With the development of the shifting attack however which depended upon speed as well as deception for its effectiveness a real danger slowly crept in which for a time threatened the integrity of the game. The shift in the early stages of its development was a comparatively slow maneuver but as this method of attack improved and its great possibilities were fully realized it became increasingly difficult because of the speed of the play to detect an illegal start—that is "beating the ball."

WOULD HAVE ADVANTAGE

It must be apparent to all who are interested in athletics that a sprinter off to a flying start would have a very distinct advantage over one who starts with the gun. Beating the gun in sprinting is strictly paralled with starting before the ball is passed in football and is subject to a penalty. When the Rules Committee a few years ago legislated that all members of a team employing the shift must come to a full stop of approximately one second, a wave of criticism of that body swept the country. The rules committee was accussed of having legislated against one of the most popular, interesting and effective phases of modern football strategy.

That this was not the case has already been proved. The action was not aimed at the shift—but at illegal and unfair starting. Two years of football under this rule have left the shift more firmly established than before, with the possibilities from this method of attack, far from being exhausted. There has, however, been some misunderstanding on the part of both coaches and officials, regarding the full stop of "approximately" one second between the end of the shift and the start of the play. A definite interval of a full second has now been established to protect this style of play, with an official empowered to employ a split second watch to determine legality. To some this again may appear as legislation unfavorable to the shifting attack, but I am firmly convinced that this opinion will be disproved before the playing season is two weeks old. A ragged shift will of course be penalized and properly so, but a well executed shift correctly timed will be highly effective and will lose no part of its strategic value.

In 1906 when the forward pass was first introduced I was playing on the Yale eleven. Our coaches were quick to see the advantage to the passing team of a forward pass play which would prevent by passive interference an opponent from getting at the ball. Such a play was developed and its success was immediate. It was a screened pass and came into being with the forward pass itself. In the early days of the forward pass this type of play was not a particularly serious handicap to the defending team for a pass of any kind was considered highly dangerous and was rarely used. As the forward pass developed in strategy and execution however, involving as it did actual interference, the taking out or blocking off of defense men, the burden on the defending team became increasingly greater and finally created a situation which made it necessary to legislate against the screening of a forward pass, in order that a proper balance between the kicking, running and passing games might be maintained. Actual interference therefore became illegal. It soon developed however that passive interference—simply getting in the way of an opponent—could be made almost as effective as actual interference, and as a result it became necessary to maintain the proper balance of attack by eliminating all forms of screening the passive as well as the active interference with defense men until the pass has been completed.

CHANGES IMPORTANT

We enter upon the new season with these changes which I have discussed in effect. They are minor in detail and will I believe, go unnoticed by the great majority of spectators. Without doubt however, they are of great significance and importance to the game itself.

The definite stop interval placed on the shift will result in perfect timing and execution of this style of play. The elimination of the screened pass will very soon produce a forward passing attack far more brilliant in conception and execution than ever before. As you watch your football this year, you will see without fully realizing it, perhaps, our game of football at its very best, a fairer game than at any time in its history, with highest possible values on speed, precision of play and strategy.

THREE GOLF EVENTS TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Women's competition marks the golf card for today, what with an invitation event being held at the Youghiogheny Country Club, a mixed foursome affair at the Pittsburgh Field Club and the qualifying round for the club championship at the South Hills Country Club.

A special match will be played by county officials to test out the new South Park public links this afternoon.

Yesterday was a big day afinks for employes of Allegheny County at the Wildwood Country Club, a goodly crowd turning out for the event. The official committee in charge, John Jay Burke, chairman, George W. Snodgrass, Jr., and Frank Lobert, saw that everything went over smoothly. Following the golf, a dinner was held in the clubhouse.

While only few scores were returned for the competition, C. M. Ward won top honors, it was a blind bogey tourney.

The big event of the day was registered by the blushing assistant district attorney, Roy T. Clunk, of the Youghiogheny Country Club, who took his faithful mashie-niblick to score an ace on the 121-yard fourth hole. The ball landed short of the cup—and rolled right in.

Stanton Heights has been selected as the scene for the annual championship of assistant professionals and caddie-masters. It will be held September 18 and 19. Only members in good standing are eligible to play.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 4

In a game between Kentucky and Vanderbilt, a forward pass is tossed by Edwards, of Vanderbilt, and Armstrong, playing in the line for Vanderbilt and ineligible to receive the pass, charges through and takes such a position as to be in the right of way and view of Kentucky's defensive halfback.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER.

This brings up another new approved ruling of the 1930 code. Although there was no contact on this play in the way of interference, the referee rules that there has been interference on the part of the passing side and Vanderbilt is penalized 15 yards from the spot where the ball was put into play.

tion Stakes at Belmont Park on Saturday have been dashed by an injury to Gallant Knight that will prevent that horse from starting.

Gallant Knight gave the Fox a hard race in the American Classic at Chicago in July and looked good to make him extend himself again in the Realization. But with the star of the Audley farm withdrawn, Gallant Fox is expected to have the race at his mercy and will go to the post a top-heavy favorite.

Jackie Rodgers

JACKIE RODGERS, outstanding Negro boxer of this district, may be forced to remain out of the ring indefinitely, and all of his prospective matches probably will have to be called off. In his bout with Johnny Erickson, of New York, in Millvale last Thursday night, one of Rodgers' eyes was injured severely during the second round, and Jackie says its sight was lost for the remainder of the fight. On account of the injury, he asked for a postponemen. of his match with Johnny Datto, scheduled for September 18 at the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock, whereupon the boxing commission ordered an examination by a commission doctor. The latter reported Rodgers unable to fight as the result of a hemorrhage of the eye and a detached retina. A specialist who is treating Rodgers is considering the advisability of an operation next week, but says that even if this is performed there will be no assurance of an early full recovery of the vision, which is at present only 15 per cent., he reports. The commission has instructed the North Braddock club to abandon its plan for holding the Rodgers-Datto bout on September 22, the new date that had been selected.

THE GIANTS BOOTED awa. a golden opportunity for a healthy gain on the Cubs by blowing the second game of yesterday's doubleheader with the Braves. A dual win would have cut Chicago's pennant lead to two and a half games, but as it was, the Bruins lost only a half game to their nearest rivals and are three and a half box scores ahead of the New Yorkers. The loss of the important second game when they had a three-run lead going into the eighth inning strengthens the opinion held by many fans that the Giants lack the pitching strength and steadiness required to make a successful fight against the Cubs for top honors.

The A's drove another spike into the American League pennant by beating the Red Sox while the Senators were losing to the Yankees. To beat out the Mackmen now, the Senators would have to win nine more games in the 22 they have yet to play than the A's win in their 19 remaining contests. If the A's should win 10 of their remaining 19 numbers, or little better than fifty-fifty ball, Washington would have to win 21 out of 32 to beat them out.

PANTHERS TO HOLD FIRST SCRIMMAGE TODAY

197 REPORT FOR DUKES' PRACTICE

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 4. With three full days of calisthenics, passing, kicking, running signals, the tackling dummy and the sled, the Pitt Panthers today were ready for the first scrimmage session of the year. And they were scheduled to have it.

The squad has come along nicely and is ready for more strenuous work. Yesterday afternoon the men donned jerseys and shoulder pads for the first time. The linemen had a long session with the sled, under the watchful eyes of Bill Kern, Ray Montgomery and Joe Donchess.

AFTER KICKERS

Last evening, after the men had put another of Alex Williams' good dinners under their belts, the kickers, centers and some receivers went out for an extra session under Andy Gustafson, backfield coach. Andy is determined to find a kicker who can help out Eddie Baker in the punting department and right now he is centering his attention on Brown and Heller, sophomore backs.

Gustafson also is giving his backs plenty of passing drills and they have passed the ball 15 and 20 minutes at a stretch.

Today the battle for positions is on. With the first scrimmage the sophomores and reserves have their opportunity to displace the letter men who have had the call in the signal drill lineup.

There seems to be some doubt as to where Jim McMurdo will fit into the picture, at end, or back to his old tackle berth.

FIGHT FOR BERTHS

Eddie Hirschberg is making a valiant bid for the end job opposite Rip Collins, and if he continues to show well, Coach Sutherland may decide to send McMurdo back to tackle.

That will provide another battle, for Jess Quatse is showing such determination that it will be difficult to keep him out of one of the positions. But McMurdo, Quatse and Chuck Tully can't play the tackle positions at the same time. Tully is the veteran of the tackles, with two letters to his credit.

There likely will be more scrimmaging tomorrow, and Saturday one light workout. Coach Sutherland is going to New York this week end to sit in at the rules interpretation meeting.

DUKES' SQUAD LARGE

It might have been free sample day in Scotland yesterday afternoon, judging by the crowd, only that most of the individuals were Irish and the place was the Duquesne University campus training grounds. The freshman rule went formally into effect yesterday with the appearance of the first squad in the history of the university and the racket they made in doing it sounded like the shot heard round the world.

Freshman Coach Buff Donnelli stepped out for his first day's duties as yearling mentor and was confronted by more than 100 candidates, a figure which had risen half again by the afternoon practice session and which checked at 151 freshmen as the new men seated themselves for the evening meal. The Duke varsity checked at 44 at the close of training yesterday and with the appearance of two latecomers, 46 veterans had added themselves to a huge army of 197 football candidates, at bedtime last night. And Head Coach Elmer Layden declares the freshmen will increase considerably today.

That routine conference of the coaches, when Head Coach Layden, Joe Bach, line coach, and Freshman Coach Buff Donnelli, put their heads together was entirely necessary yesterday. What to do with and how to handle such an unwieldy mass of players certainly required discussion. Limbering drills solved the difficulty and there was much passing, kicking and running both morning and afternoon.

TECH WORKS HARD

Looking forward only to a Saturday afternoon and entire Sunday of rest, Carnegie Tech's football squad today started its fourth day of practice. The coaches have attempted to make the sessions as interesting as possible by constantly changing the routine work, but the blazing sun of the last few days and the necessary drudgery that must be done to prepare the team for the opening of the season, little more than two weeks away, have made those holidays, so near and yet so far, loom as oases in the desert of fall training.

The first injury occurred yesterday, but fortunately it was not a serious one. Murry Armentrout, tall halfback, was bumped in a scrimmage and was excused for the rest of the afternoon. The big fellow was not seriously hurt, but no chances were taken and he was dispatched forthwith to Trainer Bert Munhall, who pronounced that he would be ready for duty again today.

Yesterday was a full day for the quarterbacks and fullbacks. In addition to their usual required attendance at the two workouts on the field, after lunch they were assembled for a special lecture. Just what is expected of the men who expect to play these two positions was outlined, and the weaknesses of each and methods to correct such faults were pointed out.

SOUTHERN RECOVERING

Outfielder Denny Southern this morning was recovering from an ugly spike wound which was self-inflicted. Subbing for Paul Waner, who was supposed to get a rest day on account of a sore arm, Southern fell in rounding third in the first inning. The former Philly tumbled in such a manner as to have a spike tear the flesh of one of his legs near the knee. He was taken to the Pirate clubhouse where two stitches were required to sew up the wound. Paul Waner immediately took Denny's place and stayed in the game to the finish. He may remain on the job today.

The Pirates put over a great sixth-inning rally to snatch victory away from the Cubs in the opener. They were trailing by three runs when the inning started, but six home tallies were recorded and the Bears were held in check for the remainder of the game.

STEVE RELIEVES GLENN

Glenn Spencer was credited with the victory although the reliable Steve Swetonic had to turn in a neat and prolonged relief trick to make the contest safe. Spencer made way for Pinch-hitter Ervin Brame, who was a big hero of the game. It was Brame's fine single with the bases jammed in the noisy sixth that put the Pirates out in front. Five of the six markers of the inning were made with two out.

Bud Teachout started for the Cubs, but Blake Nelson and Sheely all had a hand in the contest before the Buccos got finished with the hitting.

Blair started the game with a long fly to left which was falling near the foul line when Comorosky muffed the loft as he raced over the line. Blair reached third on the error, and he romped over a moment later on English's fine hit to right.

Denny Southern, subbing for Paul Waner, who has a sore throwing arm, nicked Teachout for a double to left center at the start of the Pirates' first round. L. Waner singled to center, but Southern fell and spiked himself as he whirled around third. He scrambled back to that bag, but he had to leave the game, P. Waner taking his place on the paths. Paul scored while the Cubs were making a double play on Comorosky and L. Waner.

TAKE LEAD IN THIRD

Bell started the Chicago push of the fifth that put the enemy in front. He singled to right. Teachout fanned, but Blair singled past Traynor, moving Bell to second. P. Waner made a fine catch to retire English. Bell racing to third. Cuyler then came through with a single to center, scoring Bell. Blair stopping at second. Wilson's single to right scored Blair.

The Pirate play was loose in the sixth, as the Cubs added two more. Kelly beat out a tap on the infield and George hustled to third on a wild pitch. Hartnett singled to left, scoring Kelly. Bell reached first on a fumble by Grantham, Hartnett taking second. Teachout tried to sacrifice, but he forced Hartnett. Blair forced Teachout as Bell went to third and then Bell and Blair worked the double steal for a run.

COMMY DOUBLES

Comorosky started the winning drive of the Pirates in the sixth with one out. He doubled to left. Traynor singled to right to score Comorosky, Grantham doubled to right, Traynor taking third. Blake relieved Teachout and Bartell made the move to look good when he hit to English, who nailed Traynor at the plate. Suhr walked to fill the bases. Mosolf batted for Hemsley and drew a pass that scored Grantham. Brame batted for Spencer and singled over two runs, Mosolf taking third. Sankey ran for Brame.

Suhr's homer gave the Pirates a safety run in the eighth, the Cubs scoring in the ninth on English's homer.

GIZZY MEETS GOLDBERG TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

That perpetual motion fighting machine, Battling Gizzy, of Donora, goes to the post again tonight, meeting Al (Rube) Goldberg, of New York, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale. This Goldberg chap has boxed a few fellows that you've read about, such as Johnny Dundee, Al Singer, Dominick Petrone, Al Ridgway, Georgie Mack, Pancho Dencio and Bobby Brady. Dundee is a former featherweight champion and Singer is the present lightweight champion.

Battling Gizzy

Gizzy's most recent appearance was at the Meyers Bowl, where he punched Georgie Balduc, of New York, dizzy in 10 rounds. He likely will find a more fit opponent in Goldberg, who has been around and seen things and knows a little bit about what to do when he heads into a storm of leather.

Bud Ciccerone, of Braddock, takes the place of Russ Powers, of Youngstown, against George Bretsch, North Side welterweight socker, in the eight-round semi-final. Paul Balint, of the North Side, and Don Framer, of the Hill, local bantamweight rivals, box the second bout of six rounds, and Sol Lippo, of Philadelphia, and Jerry Morrison, of Denison, O., are in the opener, scheduled for 8:45 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Other bouts carded around the country tonight include Freddie Miller vs. Babe Risko, Columbus, O.; Tony Falco vs. Harry (Kid) Decker and Tommy Watson vs. Jack White, Philadelphia, and Harry Smith vs. Gorilla Jones, New York.

Chuck Taggert, Butler heavyweight, who boxes Harry Williams, local Negro, in the eight-round semi-final to the Tom Hevner-George Panka 10-round feature bottle at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night, boasts quite a record. He claims to have had 11 amateur bouts and won all of them by knockouts and to have registered eight knockout victories in 13 professional starts, winning three of the other bouts by the decision route and losing two.

The outdoor boxing season is decidedly on the wane here. The Meyers Bowl has only two of three more dates. Following the Hevner-Panka show it is doubtful if the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Dattilo match can be rearranged for September 22, and the club may close on this date or run until September 29 at the latest. The Hickey Park management is casting about for an indoor spot into which it can move after a few more shows. Promoter Francis Flynn will open up at the Moose Temple two weeks from tomorrow night. McKeesport ushers in its indoor season Thursday night of next week and Motor Square Garden pries off its lid on October 6. Flynn hopes to match Joe Trippe and Jimmy Delmont for his second and final outdoor offering at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. Friday night of next week.

Andy Tomasky, of Wilmerding, who has been kept on the sidelines all summer by a bad knee, is almost ready to resume training. He has been named coach of the new amateur boxing team that will represent Lodge Tribe No. 692, Improved Order of Red Men, of Wilmerding, of which he is a member.

LITZ RESENTS SHORT RACE

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 4.—Billy Arnold, Chicago youth, who won Altoona's 200-mile classic Monday, may be champion of the American Automobile Association to the rest of the world, but to Deacon Litz, who finished less than a lap behind Arnold, he is just another race driver.

Litz, in an interview today, challenged the victory of the champion, saying that, had the event gone the full 200 miles instead of being called at the ninety-third lap because of rain, he would have been the first under the checkered flag.

GENERALS COP FIRST M.-A. SERIES TILT

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Mickey Noonan's bat provided the winning punch for the Clarksburg Generals in the opening game of the Middle Atlantic League post-season series last night, and Clarksburg won, 5 to 4. The pudgy shortstop drove out four hits to account for three of the Generals' five runs.

After Noonan had given the visitors a two-run lead in the first with a home run clout over the left field wall with Neale on second base, Pritchard gave the Johnnies the advantage in the third with a home run swat over the left field wall with Thomas and Good on the bags. Four hits and an error gave the Generals three runs in the eighth and decided issue.

The second game will be played here tonight. The score:

Shorty Levine, Local Floor Star, Is Dead

Samuel (Shorty) Levine, star forward on the Fifth Avenue High School basketball team, winner of the city scholastic championship and a contestant in the W. P. I. A. L. elimination series last winter, died this morning as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Erie several months ago.

Levine, who was a sophomore at Fifth Avenue High School, was one of the outstanding performers in local basketball circles and he was expected to be one of the mainstays of this year's quintet.

Levine was aged 17 years and resided with his parents in 1714 Colwell street.

Edwards Drills St. Vincent Backs

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 4.—With the arrival of Gene (Red) Edwards at St. Vincent College, the preliminary practice took on another aspect. The prospective backfield men were turned over to Edwards, who is running them through the different passing formations. Crowe continued to work with the linmen.

THATCHER NEAR DEATH

TOLEDO, Sept. 4.—A. Thatcher, who, with Tex Rickard, staged the Jess Willard-Jack Dempsey heavyweight championship bout here in 1919, is near death in Mercy Hospital.

Three Jockeys Injured in Race Spill

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Three jockeys were injured at the Timonium Fair, Baltimore County, in a spill in the sixth race at the half-mile track yesterday. J. O'Malley was brought to a Baltimore hospital with injuries said to be critical. R. Haines was also taken to a hospital, but with less serious hurts, and J. Shanks was able to hobble to the jockeys' quarters.

BASS BEATS ANDERSON

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, retained his welterweight championship when given a newspaper decision over Eddie Anderson, of Chicago, in their 10-round main go at the Coliseum last night. Louis Maio, Des Moines referee, and Charley Arthur, Newark, N. J., drew as the 10-round semi-windup.

FRED BARONI NEAR TOP

SALISBURY PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Billy Burke, of the Round Hill Country Club, Greenwich, Conn., and Charles Lacey, of the Pine Valley Country Club, Clementon, N. J., were tied for first place with cards of 69 at the end of the first 18 holes of the Joseph J. Lannin Memorial open played yesterday over No. 4 course of the Salisbury Country Club.

A stroke behind the leaders were Craig Wood, of Bloomfield, N. J., and Bobby Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y., each scoring 70. Two strokes behind were Bob Shave, of Cleveland; Bill Mehlhorn, of Pensacola, and Sol de Buono, of Larchmont. Lacey, who played the first nine holes in one under par, closed with a rush with a 33 on the homeward trip to tie Burke.

Among others under 80 were:

Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal.	37-35	72
Ed Williams, Cleveland,	37
38		75

Master Mysteries

Scrimley's Ghost

THE PROCESSION TO THE HOUSE WAS MADE IN SILENCE
HAND CLUTCHING A PIECE OF PAPER
DALE WAS STANDING NEARBY WHEN THE COVER WAS THROWN OFF AND FOR A MOMENT HE STOOD SPELLBOUND FOR THE HAND WHICH CLUTCHED THE MAP WAS PRIED OPEN AND THE PAPER GONE!

Robin Dale sets out to investigate the reappearance of Scrimley's ghost in a sparsely-inhabited section of Long Island. Scrimley was reputed to have been a boatswain on Capt. Kidd's pirate ship. Upon an earlier appearance of the ghost a tragic death had resulted. Dale moves into the Rolfe cottage. Stephanie Rolfe is being wooed by Avery Boyleston, whose father was connected with the first tragedy of the ghost. The specter is supposed to haunt the Boyleston farm. Stephanie gets a ghostly warning not to marry Avery. Avery rushes out. A moment later his agonized shriek is heard. A ghostly apparition is seen aboard the battered hulk of an old wreck on the beach. A searching party, headed by Dale, discovers Avery at the bottom of the hulk dead!

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER IV.

It was a difficult task to get the body out of the old hulk. While this was being done, Robin Dale noticed that there was something clutched in the right hand of Avery Boyleston. The fingers were clenched tightly and although Dale made the effort he found it impossible to pry them open. What the fingers held was yellowish parchment. It protruded sufficiently to indicate that it was the mysterious map of which Old Gabriel had spoken. The edge visible appeared to have been torn as though Avery Boyleston had snatched and held it during a struggle.

The procession to the house was made in silence. Someone at the head lighted the way with a single torch. One of the men had been sent on to notify the police and break the news to the womenfolk.

When the coterie entered the house no one was present except the man who had been in touch with the police. The body was laid on the lounge and a covering placed over it. In the few silent minutes which elapsed, prior to the arrival of the police, Robin Dale had the first opportunity to study those about him.

"What'd the police say, Oliver?" he finally asked without turning.

The one who answered was the youngest in the group, a dark-haired, dark-eyed, handsome lad not over 25. All the others were probably 10 years older than that, or more. The handsome lad was Oliver Albright, then. No wonder Stephanie Rolfe preferred him to Avery, mused Dale. Old Gabriel had mentioned a poor cousin who lived with and worked for the Boylestons. Oliver Albright . . .

There were two others in the room. Dale remembered that one of them had been addressed as John . . . John Keefe, John was seated near the door, his hands clasped in his lap. There was a look of dread in his eyes, wrinkling his brow. He was tall and slender but, somehow, he looked small and puny with his spine curved and his head drooped forward staring in horror at the thing upon the lounge. John Keefe was handsome after a fashion; piercing brown eyes, a mask of dark, curly hair hanging loosely over his forehead.

The other must be Fred Doreen, business manager of the farm, accountant, overseer of the place. Doreen paced up and down nervously. Of moderate height, chunky in build, with a stolid face and pale blue, expressionless eyes. He was not altogether unprepossessing, but rather a colorless, plodding type of humanity. Nothing of what was going on within him was visible upon his bland features.

Only one other Dale thought, whom he had not seen . . . Mrs. Harley Boyleston, who had been Mrs. Joe Keefe. Undoubtedly she had been warned to keep away so that she might be spared the horror.

Chief Wingate soon arrived. With him were a police officer and Dr. Endress, who acted as county medical officer. Dale took it upon himself to explain what had happened as Dr. Endress examined the body.

Dale was standing nearby when the cover was thrown off and, for a moment he stood spellbound, for the hand which had clutched the map was pried open and the paper was gone! He decided to remain silent about it, to mention it would serve only to put the criminal on guard.

By the time Robin Dale had finished his recital Dr. Endress had completed his work.

"No signs of violence. As nearly as I can tell death due to drowning. An autopsy may tell us more."

"Will you arrange to have the body taken to the county hospital doctor?" As Dr. Endress went to the telephone, Chief Wingate turned to Dale. "Looks as if that ghost might have done it!"

"A very live ghost," Dale replied. "A flesh-and-blood specter. Chief, more cunning and diabolical than a real ghost could ever be. I'm rather intrigued. May I work along with you? You know, there'll be plenty to do, I assure you."

Chief Wingate agreed readily enough. He was doubtless familiar with Robin Dale's past exploits. But, though Dale assisted him in the first questionings, nothing further came to light that night. Ernest Boyleston had been in the sitting room with Mrs. Boyleston reading when the shriek was heard. He then ran out into the yard.

Fred Doreen was in the little office building, adjacent to the poultry houses, bringing his accounts up to date. Oliver Albright was locking up the poultry houses for the night. John was in his room in the bungalow, preparing to retire for the day. It developed that only members of the Boyleston family lived in the main homestead . . . Doreen, young Oliver, and John had their sleeping quarters in the three rooms of the bungalow.

When Chief Wingate departed he left the police officer on guard. Dale walked slowly to the Rolfe cottage. The first gray streaks of dawn were in the east before he stretched wearily in bed and fell instantly into deep slumber. He had spent many hours trying to piece the tragedy together, realizing at the end that there were many things he had still to learn.

The following forenoon he spent almost two hours in the hull of the wreck without any gratifying results. He had lunch with Chief Wingate and received the complete report of Dr. Endress. Avery Boyleston's death had been due to drowning. Wingate was at a loss to proceed, there was, in fact, no actual proof that a murder had been committed. Dale suggested that there might be something for him to work on after certain interviews during the afternoon.

Toward evening Dale called on Mrs. Boyleston. He found her alone in the sitting room, very nervous and frightened. She was a pleasant lady, old even beyond her years, which were probably 60. She was mild-mannered, almost meek, and seemed to be a sweet old lady. She was proud to make a valiant effort to hide her agitation.

"I don't like to make the ordeal any harder, Mrs. Boyleston," Dale said, "but there are some things I'd rather hear from you than anyone else. I'm afraid I can't believe in ghosts, and if there's a fiend loose in this house the sooner the truth is learned the better chance there is to avoid a repetition of the tragedy."

"I'll try to help you," she said, in a low, even tone.

"I'd like to know about Mr. Boyleston's will. How were things left?"

"The estate was left equally to Avery and Ernest, but I was to remain here and enjoy it as long as I lived. If they died first the only other living relative was Oliver Albright. The estate would then descend to him when I died. That was all."

It was rather less complicated than Robin Dale had anticipated, yet, it opened a new channel for consideration.

"Of course, if either Avery or Ernest married and had a child it would have been different. If they died the child would be the heir." Mrs. Boyleston thought a moment and then nodded.

STOCK MARKET PRICES MOVE NARROWLY

Shares Fluctuate While Traders Appear to Await Clearer Business Trend

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.) Speculative activity in today's stock market lacked the vitality to move share prices far in either direction.

The meager success of bearish efforts was somewhat encouraging, too, operators working for higher prices, but not encouraging enough to inspire any vigorous action. The market appeared to be waiting for a clearer outline of the probable course of autumn business progress.

The market rallied after the opening sold off during the morning and crept higher in very dull trading after midday. Most shares fluctuated narrowly. Allied Chemical dropped 4 however then rebounded 5. Eastman also a wide mover, sold up 4. Fox gained more than a point on an announcement of a 40 per cent increase in business over last year and the reopening of several theaters closed during the summer. Paramount, Loews, Radio, Byers, Johns Manville, DuPont, United Aircraft and Canadian gained a point or two. During the morning such shares as American Telephone, Goodyear, American Smelting, Atchison and Electric Power and Light sold off 2 or more.

STREET PERPLEXED

Wall street is becoming highly perplexed as to where equity shares belong in the present scheme of things. That public speculation in common stocks was carried to excess last year is now acknowledged almost everywhere but for the moment Wall street seems to have no means of gauging what the residue of public appetite for common shares will be when readjustments have been finally completed.

Many issues are still selling at rather high levels on the basis of earnings, when compared to the levels reached in previous periods of deflation but no necessity for further deflation is apparent at this time. The inability of bearish professionals to bring out any considerable liquidation is regarded in brokerage circles as indicating that prices have found a bottom. It is acknowledged however, that if business recovery this autumn is a complete disappointment, further deflation may be necessary.

On the other hand, stocks refuse to respond with any alacrity to bullish stimulation. What with the enormous trading machinery that has been built up during the last year or two, the situation could scarcely be less satisfactory to the brokerage fraternity.

INDUSTRIAL NEWS

The day's industrial news was subject to interpretation according to the mood. The mercantile organizations' wholesale price indices as announced for August, however, showed signs of regaining stability. A few rail and chain store heads reported mild improvement. Electrical power consumption, as reported for the latest week, however, failed to continue the slow climb of previous weeks, although it was less than 1 per cent under the previous week, and 5 per cent above the like week of two years ago.

Call money continued firm at 2½ per cent, reflecting the belated effects of September 1 settlements, but other monetary accommodations were unchanged.

Anthracite Rates Held Unreasonable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today held that freight rates on anthracite in carloads from Pennsylvania mines to certain destinations in New Jersey were unreasonable and unduly prejudicial and preferential.

The commission prescribed a rate of $2.39 per ton on prepared sizes and $2.27 on smaller sizes and ordered the railroads to put the new rates into effect on or before November 24, next.

WALL STREET HEARS

That the long rumored extra dividend by U. S. Steel will not be declared until there is a decided turn for the better in the industry.

That recent strength in Bethlehem Steel was based on rumors of an amicable settlement of the controversy over the merger with Youngstown Sheet and Tube, but these rumors are emphatically denied.

That Chesapeake and Ohio new stock has been attracting considerable investment buying.

That motion picture trade circles still insist that the $3 dividend rate on Loews will be increased before the end of the year.

Stock Exchange Topics

Selling of the utilities, which was carried on rather aggressively at times, was ascribed chiefly to the efforts of professional traders to make capital out of the remarks of Gov. Roosevelt at Rochester attacking the methods of some of the power companies operating in New York state. The governor's statements seemed to serve as a reminder of the fact that speculation in the utilities in the next month or two will have to contend with a good deal of political discussion, though the latter phase of the situation naturally will not alter the fundamentals of this vast industry. After all the governor developed nothing new bearing on the utilities and as a matter of fact was not nearly so bitter as he had been in previous utterances bearing on the power and light industry.

The drop of $90,849,228 reported by the stock exchange in member collateral borrowings as of the end of August makes the cumulative reduction from the peak last year $4,950,750,000 representing a cut of 5 per cent. More impressive, however, is the fact that the current total stands only about $381,233,000 above the mean low of $2,676,400,000 reported as of the end of May 1926, shortly after the stock exchange adopted the procedure of making public the figures each month. In the meantime the value of collateral listed on the stock exchange has more than doubled. The foregoing comparisons bear out the assertion of many leading houses that they are carrying less stock than at any time in recent years.

American Cyanamid B stock on the New York Curb Exchange has been rather actively liquidated for some time and there is believed to be a fairly large short interest harbored through the decline from the highs above 60 last year. The speculative position is believed to be small and considerable stock has passed into the hands of investors optimistic on the outlook for the chemical industry, where Cyanamid is one of the largest units. At a price of 20, the shares are selling to yield around 8 per cent, one of the best returns available on this type of stock seen for several years.

Bethlehem Steel, leading independent, has been more or less neglected in the recent price upturn, due to the litigation still in progress over the Youngstown situation. Interests usually in the know have been reported accumulating the stock in anticipation of a much improved market when this matter is finally disposed of. Earnings for the first half of this year were equal to $4.46 per share of common, and were generally considered a satisfactory showing. The recent upward trend of operations in the steel industry augurs an improvement in profits for the latter six months of 1930, and earnings for the full year may reach $10 per share. This is more than sufficient to take care of annual dividend requirements of $6, the latter affording a reutrn of approximately 7 per cent at current levels.

Chesapeake and Ohio is regarded as one of the most attractive holdings in the rail group, and with the admission of the new stock to dealings, it is expected to rank as the outstanding trading and investment favorite in this section of the general list. Earnings of this system have made the best comparative showing this year of any important road, with profits for the first seven months equal to $2.29 per share, as compared with $2.39 in the like period of 1929. Dividends have been inaugurated on a $2.50 annual basis, providing a return of 5 per cent at prevailing quotations.

DuPont, in addition to returning into speculative favor on its own merits, is expected to keep stride with General Motors, in which it holds an important interest, when the widely touted move of the latter gets under way. Although earnings in the first half of the year amounting to $2.85 per share were sharply below the $3.84 reported in the corresponding period of 1929, the latter included the extra dividend from General Motors. As one of the pivotal industrial issues, it should be in the forefront of any further sustained upturn.

New Castle Sheet Mill to Run 100%

General Manager D. S. Pyle, of the New Castle (Pa.) works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, announced that the plant will run on full time again this week. All hot mills will operate.

Bank of England Rate Unchanged

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The Bank of England made no change in its discount rate of 3 per cent.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Raw sugar was unchanged today with no fresh business reported, although it is generally believed that yesterday's transactions in duty free sugars, mostly at the 3.16 delivered level, were much larger than reported out and there were further offerings at the 3.16 level early today.

The withdrawal demand for refined sugar was reported of fair proportions, with prices unchanged at 4.35@4.45 for fine granulated.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The curb ticker tape told the same old story of narrow and irregular price movements in the active shares today. Speculative sentiment was confused and considerable disappointment was expressed in some quarters over the non-appearance of any public demand after the Labor Day holiday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange giving all stocks and bonds traded in, 00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list.

Forbes

To Prosper, Let 'Em Have Best Money Can Buy.

—By B. C. FORBES—

THE WEST as well as Canada knows how to make travel comfortable. I have never enjoyed more luxurious trains than on a 12,000-mile trip just completed. Prosperity or no prosperity, our railways find that people want absolutely the best when they make long journeys. The fact that the Labor Day exodus from New York was tremendous suggests that depression is sitting lightly on this wonderful nation.

Mr. Forbes

JAMES KEELEY, vice president of the Pullman Company, gives me extraordinary facts [illegible] of the public's love for the name of comfort. The recently introduced plan for allowing one person to occupy a whole section at the reduced cost of a lower berth rate plus one-half of the upper at once multiplied section sales sevenfold. Here is an interesting incident:

When Mr. Pullman just after the Civil War built the first sleepers approximating the modern style the Michigan Central wanted to use them but hesitated because it would require increasing the Chicago-Detroit rate from $1.50 to $2.00. So the superior car was put on the same trains with the old and the public allowed to decide. In a few weeks the old cars had been emptied into the new ones and had to be taken off. That experience is now being repeated in the demand for the single occupancy section.

A number of large corporations have notified their men that in the future they will approve in expense accounts the use of sections instead of lowers on the theory that increased efficiency results from the greater comfort.

"Our conductors," says Mr. Keeley, "are now transferring over 40 times as many passengers, actually on train, from berths to sections, as they did a year ago. All of which demonstrates that if you have something really superior to sell, the public will buy, precisely as it did 65 years ago."

SYMBOLIC OF THE progressiveness of Pacific Coast railroads is a new lounge car placed in service by Paul Shoup's Southern Pacific between Portland and San Francisco. This car has been painted on the exterior with aluminum paint because of its unusual heat-resisting qualities. Then, the windows are of emerald green glass, resistant to the passage of heat and glare and producing a very restful effect upon the eyes. This new glass was used in these cars for the first time in American railroad car construction.

This car has a large solarium with luxurious chairs and davenports, a soda fountain, club compartment with built-in card tables, shower baths for men and women and a barber shop. The general appearance is of a beautiful living room.

THE GREAT NORTHERN, created by Jim Hill, the empire builder, and now being skillfully developed by President Ralph Budd, backed by Arthur Curtiss James, reputedly the largest owner of railway stocks in the world, has also gone in for brand new superior equipment. Having built a passenger train new from locomotive pilot to the tail light and embodying luxuries not before imagined, the Great Northern cut down the running time between Chicago and the Northwest enough to save a whole business day.

The other day the Pullman Company turned out four parlor cars of unparalleled magnificence. Two were put on between Seattle and Portland by the Great Northern, the other two going to the New Haven for its extra-fare flyer between New York and Boston. (There are no extra-fare trains in the Northwest.)

The Great Northern lately has been doing big things. It has spent $25,000,000 in rebuilding and electrifying 35 miles of line, including the longest railroad bore (eight miles) in the Western Hemisphere, through the Cascade mountains, thus saving time and transportation cost. The company is now busy pushing its line into California, where a connection with the Western Pacific will give it entry into the San Francisco territory, and connection with the Santa Fe, which leads into Southern California and Arizona. This represents victory in a battle waged since the days of E. H. Harriman, the most spectacular wizard the world has ever known.

SIR HENRY THORNTON, who has wrought marvels with the Canadian National Railway system, has instituted a line of crack steamers between Seattle and Canadian ports. Here too, one found the most delightful appointments. From Vancouver to Toronto Sir Henry has put on the Confederate, a train not excelled in thoughtful conveniences and luxuries by any in the United States—indeed it impressed me as having a few wrinkles which our railway managers have not yet caught on to.

[illegible] afford it [illegible] wonders and the [illegible] resources of this wonderful continent of ours. Its most attractive asset of all is its hospitable people.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—AP.—The bond market made quiet progress in most departments of the domestic list today. A sprinkling of new highs for the year or longer emphasized the current demand for the best grade issues, which is beginning to extend from the rails and utilities into the industrials.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—AP.—Transactions in the stock and curb bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, omitting in sales under $1,000 and listed bonds in dollars and thirty seconds of dollars:

Railroads Plan to Fight New Rate-Base Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Echoes of the celebrated O'Fallon decision by the Supreme Court will reverberate in Congress next session when hearings are opened on the Howell bill to provid a method of arriving at a rate-base for determining railway earnings.

The provisions of the bill by Senator Howell (Rep.), Nebraska, center around the value of the railroads and also would require that earnings above 6 per cent be held in trust, one-half for investors and one-half for the United States.

Determined opposition to the measure already has been expressed in a brief filed with the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee by Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives.

Thom contended the bill would be an "insidious and dangerous" approach to government ownership and management" and the principles enunciated by the Supreme Court in the O'Fallon decision.

Court Ruling Cited

IN THIS DECISION, handed down last year, the court ruled the Interstate Commerce Commission, in fixing a valuation of the St. Louis and O'Fallon Railroad, had not given sufficient consideration to cost of reproduction.

The brief by Thom insisted the Howell proposal for determining a rate-base was contrary to the O'Fallon decision and that the figure arrived at would be far less than actual value.

"It is respectfully submitted," the brief asserted, "that Congress will not accept so flagrant a defiance of the court and of the Constitution."

Thom added there was no danger to the public from strong and prosperous railroads, contending that even if they had "the purpose to oppress they are already so regulated as to make oppression impossible."

The hearings will be before the Interstate Commerce Committee of which Senator Couzens (Rep.), Michigan, is chairman.

Rhodes Scholar on I. C. C.

A RHODES SCHOLAR is now a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He is Charles D. Mahaffie, former finance director of the commission, who was sworn in Tuesday to succeed Thomas F. Woodlock, resigned.

Mahaffie, who has been with the commission since 1922, is a lawyer by profession. He was born in Olathe, Kansas, in 1884 and was graduated from Kingfisher College, Oklahoma, in 1905.

From 1905 to 1908 he was a Rhodes scholar from Oklahoma at Oxford University, England. Returning to the United States, he became an instructor of jurisprudence at Princeton University and later practiced law in Oklahoma and Oregon.

In 1916 he entered government service as solicitor of the Interior Department. From 1921 until he became connected with the commission he was an attorney for the United States railroad administration.

Woodlock, a New York financial writer, was appointed to the commission by President Coolidge in 1925. He resigned to accept another position.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale produce markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets ruled firm; demand fair, supply nominal, without change in quotations.

Car-lot supplies were nominal with 4[illegible] cars on track. Arrivals included five cars of apples, equalboxes, 11 cantaloupes, 3 California grapes, 1 cucumbers, 12 grapes, 5 lettuce, 2 onions, 3 oranges, 26 peaches, 1 pineapples, 1 prunes, 10 potatoes, 3 sweet potatoes, 2 peppers and 2 watermelons.

Anaconda Copper Operating 70% Of Capacity

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Using 1929 as 100 per cent, the Anaconda Copper Company is now operating on about 70 per cent of capacity and is doing better than the average copper company because of its electrical business and diversifications, John D. Ryan, chairman of the board, said on returning from a vacation abroad. He said the copper business is running along like any other business, and will improve with an upturn in general conditions.

DAILY TRUE STORY

When "they say" that over on Avenue A they have Paris styles months ahead of the very ritzy shops on the Avenue, they tell a lot of truth.

On the Avenue they come direct from "Paree."

Away over by the East River the gowns are made on the premises.

How do they do it?

What do the shop girls care so long as they can appear in a $15.75 gown that for cut and style is a duplicate of the one that Miss Vere de Vere young society deb wears a month later?

To one of these "creations" that is sold on the Avenue for $127.89 there are probably five hundred sold in the little side-street shops at $100 less.

They get advance information. They have clever people who can see these models over in Paris come away and sketch them to every detail from memory.

Take the big firm of Baumson & Sombaum for instance. They put out great quantities of "the newest thing" in sport, afternoon, evening and street apparel—and half the time they are actually weeks ahead of the styles that come through customs paid direct from the Paris modistes.

It was at Baumson & Sombaum's place that "Miss" Smith worked.

"Miss" Smith was really Samuel Hadley Smith and he was no pansy, despite his soft, suave, somewhat gushing mannerisms when talking to lady buyers seeking the latest models.

Sam had been reared by two maiden aunts. They called him "Samsie"—they were like that—and to those who did not know Sam Smith he did appear to deserve his title of "Miss" Smith.

Sam was such an efficient man in the big office that they wouldn't let him go, although it almost broke Sombaum's heart.

Fired Twice

The reason was that Baumson had a daughter, Queenie, and Sombaum had a son, Milton. Sombaum and his son were both quite anxious for Milton to marry Queenie. That would bring Milton into the firm. As it was, Baumson owned three-quarters of the stock in their company.

It was Milton, also working in the place, who gave Sam the name of "Miss" Smith.

He didn't like the way Sam Smith hung around Queenie and he didn't like the way Queenie seemed to enjoy it.

Twice Sombaum fired Sam, but on the second time Baumson had one of his rare few words with his partner. He said, "Sam is worth money to us—he stays."

Myra Rawlin lived in Paris. She had lived there some 12 years on an excellent salary from Baumsom & Sombaum. Myra went here and there and at least twice a week there came from her parents certain notes and sketches that enabled Baumsom & Sombaum to turn out advance copies of the creations society would be wearing a few weeks later.

Myra Rawlin had worked 12 years without a vacation. Then she got married. She was going to take a year, a honeymoon, around the world.

Sombaum said, "Milton can do that work—he speaks French and he sketches pretty well."

"Smith speaks French, also, Baumson—he's great on holding a model in his mind—"

"Should the son of your partner be turned down for just a clerk?" Sombaum demanded.

To save argument, Milton went over. He sent some glowing accounts of the life there. He sent Queenie some nice presents and then he sent some sketches.

Baumson looked at them and then at his partner.

"All the swell places on the Avenue have been selling this line for months," he said. "We'll send Sam Smith over."

Sombaum knew better than to argue. But he sent a letter to his Milton; it was a long letter. It contained extra money from the old man.

Part of it was, "Get him in with a fast, sporty crowd. He takes a drink himself now and then, so see he is so busy having fun he doesn't get anything."

Milton's Plans

Milton did better. He went to Mons. Tradeau, who maintained a building full of small private studios. In these studios some score of experts did much to sway the styles throughout the world, and each one had his particular line.

"I shall introduce him," Milton said, "and you will see that he does not remain sober enough to get a line on anything. By this means I protect you, as an old pal, and I pay the wine bill. They call him 'Miss' Smith—he's that way. It will be easy."

Mons. Tradeau agreed.

Milton had posed as a friend of his and had never let on that he was trying to cop off advance styles.

Before Sam Smith sailed, he went out with Queenie Baumson. They had a nice dinner, saw a good show and enjoyed dancing at a night club. When Sam took her home and kissed her good night Queenie whispered, "Make good for my sake, Sam."

"Try and stop me," Sam promised.

Milton may stay over if so watch out, he's tricky," she warned.

If Milton bothers me 'Miss' Smith will slap his ears down," Sam declared.

He pretended never to mind the name Milton had given him although he did very much.

Milton went to meet Sam but Sam had stopped off in England. Later he flew over. He was there a full week looking about and glorying in his French, which his aunts had taught him—it seemed to work beautifully before Milton ran across him at the shop window of Florret et Cie. Sam was getting an eyeful of the models.

"They shipped a lot of those over last week," Milton informed him, "but come and meet some friends—designers—you'll get along fine with them."

So Milton Sombaum introduced Sam to Mons. Tradeau. Sam played around with them several nights and learned little.

Milton went over to Mons. Tradeau's with Sam. Everything had been planned. They were to have one grand party.

The programme was to get him thoroughly soused, rob him and have him taken to a far and dismal corner of the city and leave him.

Milton dare not remain, as he might be held guilty. He claimed a date after a while and departed.

Gets Sketches

Sam became a good fellow at once. Mons. Tradeau had three American cocktails that Sam mixed and promptly took him around to the boys at their little studios.

Sam kept busy. They all went to Mons. Tradeau's big basement apartment.

Sam told a lot of stories—he was able to translate them into French sufficiently well to have them laughed at. And he deftly mixed this and that for them and drank with them.

One by one, they slumped down here and there, whispering, "Vive, Monsieur Smeet!"

Mons. Tradeau was the last to go, but a long Tom Collins made with cognac instead of gin put him beautifully to sleep.

Sam went from room to room, studio to studio. He made a sketch here and filched one there and finally he left with a priceless amount of information about advance styles. He took them to his hotel and locked them in his trunk. He went back to the house of Mons. Tradeau.

That worthy was blinking.

"Where you've been, Monsieur Smeet?" he asked.

Mons. Tradeau groaned.

"Ha, my dear friend, I shall pick you up with a Crone's crime," Sam said.

He took two-thirds Scotch and one-third Maraschino and put them in a glass. He forced Mons. Tradeau to drink. In 15 minutes Mons. Tradeau was feeling as lively as a cricket.

One by one Sam gave those boys a Crone's crime, the world's most potent pick-me-up.

One by one the boys felt as good as new.

They marveled at Sam. They wanted another one of those "Magnifique crime of a Crone," but Sam warned them that a second one would undo all the good that the first one had done. One chap didn't believe it, but collapsed soon after taking it.

Returns Home

When Milton showed up the next night he found them going strong. Mons. Tradeau confessed that he had been unable to drink the Monsieur Smeet under the table, but that he was now a greatly beloved member of their crowd.

Sam met several assistants then, and from one of these, an intelligent woman of 30, he got assurance that she would secretly get hold of advance styles and mail sketches and he promised her so much for each one. He gave her an advance and sailed back home again.

He wanted to see Queenie.

"You should not come back until I say it," Baumsom told him.

Sam showed his sketches.

He explained about the clever woman who was to send more sketches at so much per sketch.

Baumson scored a big hit with all of this material. He was so well impressed that he didn't offer much of an objection when Sam and Queenie announced their coming marriage.

Milton Sombaum wrote his father that evidently Sam Smith had gone to the dogs entirely, as he could find no trace of him.

Milton got a cable from his father to come home at once. He got another cable which read:

"Hurry home to our wedding, Queenie and Miss Smith."

Isn't It About Time To Start the Campaign?

It would be better for Pennsylvania to have a good Democrat as governor than a bad or indifferent Republican. Some day, it is to be hoped, the state will have a good Democrat in the executive mansion at Harrisburg—it would have a healthy effect on Pennsylvania politics. This year, unfortunately, the Democratic candidate, John M. Hemphill, has little to commend him except his opposition to prohibition.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny County apparently would like to see prohibition repealed, but there is no chance of doing it through the election of a governor. And since the platform of Gifford Pinchot, the Republican nominee, is, in other respects—notably in his stand against public utilities profiteering and the coal and iron police evil—superior to that of Hemphill, the Forester is to be preferred for the governorship.

The election is less than two months distant. The candidates are making speeches, advertisements are appearing, and "statements" are being issued by the various headquarters. But Joseph G. Armstrong, Republican county chairman for Allegheny County, has given no indication as yet that the organization will conduct its usual campaign. Today is the first of the registration days for voters, but Armstrong has not even made the customary remarks about the desirability of registering.

There is every indication that Hemphill is going to wage an aggressive fight. He probably will have plenty of money to spend, for he has the backing of many wealthy men not only in Pennsylvania but also outside the state. Word comes from Philadelphia that some of the Republican ward leaders there will support Hemphill. He is undoubtedly a power to be reckoned with; it will not do this year to laugh at the idea of a Democrat being elected governor of Pennsylvania.

In the primary Armstrong supported Pinchot's opponent, Francis Shunk Brown; but, professing to be a loyal Republican, he has said he would suport the ticket in the November election. The most convincing way in which he can show his sincerity is by action.

When are you going to open the campaign in Allegheny County, Mr. Armstrong?

19 Counties in State Show Population Loss

Some interesting problems are presented, and perhaps some valuable lessons taught, by Pennsylvania's 1930 population figures, as recently given out by the Bureau of the Census.

While the state's population (9,640,802) shows an increase of 920,785, or 10.6 per cent, over the figures for 1920, decreases are reported by each of 19 counties—Bedford, Bradford, Cameron, Clarion, Clearfield, Clinton, Elk, Forest, Fulton, Huntingdon, Indiana, Jefferson, Juniata, Perry, Potter, Somerset, Sullivan, Susquehanna and Tioga.

Eleven of these 19 counties now have fewer inhabitants than they had in 1900. The population of some of them has dwindled to such a low figure that it is questionable if they should continue to maintain a county government. The borough of Coraopolis, with 10,718 inhabitants, has more people than the combined populations of Forest County, with 5,172, and Cameron County, with 5,307. So it is no wonder that some of the people of Forest County have suggested that it would be better for them to consolidate with one of the contiguous counties and thus relieve themselves of part of the expense involved in having their own county officials and courthouse.

There are a number of other counties in the same boat as Forest. For instance, neither Fulton, Pike nor Sullivan County has as large a population as the borough of Bellevue, with 10,250 people.

When some of the counties showing the most marked losses in population were in their heyday the people depended for a living almost exclusively on the lumber industry. The forests from which the wood-working industries drew their material were not handled as a renewable crop, but were exhausted as if they were a mine, with the result that the sawmills and other plants had to be removed elsewhere, and the workers went with them.

There are places in some of these counties that were occupied 20 or 30 years ago by towns of several thousand inhabitants, but are now practically deserted. Some of these municipalities—Cross Creek, in Potter County, for example—when in their prime issued bonds for school and other purposes which they would have been unable to redeem if the state had not come to the rescue and taken over whole townships for forest reserves.

The lesson in the experience of these counties seems to be that it is dangerous to put all your eggs in one basket—that the sensible thing is to have diversified industries. Another lesson is that forests should be scientifically managed, with new trees grown to replace those cut, if permanence is sought for the wood-working industries dependent on them.

How to Recover From The Effects of Vacation

Pittsburghers who enjoyed their vacations "not wisely but too well," as well as those who did not have a vacation, may find the advice of Dr. J. Bruce McCreary profitable. Dr. McCreary, an official of the State Health Department, has taken official cognizance of a fact that is well known to most of us, namely, that a great many people come back from their annual two-week "rest" a good deal more tired and in worse physical shape than before they started. This has moved the doctor to offer a prescription.

He prescribes "the adoption of a daily life which will involve long walks, sufficient sleep, proper amounts and types of food, and the elimination of devitalizing habits," and says it will do more to restore strength and vitality than a two-week vacation will, even if taken for the express purpose of building up a reserve of health and vigor.

How many Pittsburghers went to Canadian and other resorts this summer for a "good time" and got it at the expense of intemperances, late hours and nerve-wracking amusements! They should find comfort in Dr. McCreary's assurance that they still have time to get themselves in good shape to resist the hazards of sickness that lie in wait for the unfit during the winter months.

Don't Cut That Tree -:- -:-

You with the ax, observe that tree—
The more you think about it
The less you'll want to cut it, for
You cannot do without it.

That tree, if cut, will bear no fruit
Without which all must perish,
It is a tree which common sense
Bids us preserve and cherish.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

On the Curb

The most amazing sidewalk is the curb of the Palace Theater on Broadway. That's where the vaudevillians stand waiting, as Violinski said, for the talkies to blow over.

"Bugs" Baer

The talkies haven't blown over. But they have blown everything else over.

There was a time when the small-time variety performer could appear in the flesh. Now he must appear in technicolor or nothing.

The struggle between the dramatic stage and the talkies seems to have ended in a tie game. There is room for both of them and the warring factions finally seem to realize it.

But there doesn't seem to be room for the oldtime number one acts. A number one act is the performance that opens a vaudeville show and plays to good audiences in the aisles.

Unfortunate indeed, and this line may have been wired for a brutal sound, but you can multiply a number one act by a million and still have a number one act.

The number one actors were never going anywhere. They just plugged along for years, unhonored, unrecognized and unstung by critics. Now he has been crowded loose by the short-reel comedies, the animated cartoons and the news celluloid.

When you walk along the curb you can recognize them by the way they stand and gesture. The boys with the baggy knees are the mammy singers. The ones with the scorched teeth are the flame-breathers who touched powerful carbons to their lips and then blew little forest-fires over old ladies in the fifth row.

The Arabian acrobats are easily spotted because they spend the day leaning on each other. The little man is a spy for the midgets and goes around finding out what the big people are doing.

Over against the wall is a crippled sword swallower who foolishly took a bow in the middle of his act and sawed himself in half. The most difficult group to pass is a knot of 11 ventriloquists who stand there day after day. The conversation is loud and intelligent without a single one of the 11 saying a word.

The policeman on the beat has given up the job of making the huddle of ventriloquists unhuddle themselves because he gets plenty of insults and cannot locate them.

Barrel jumpers, jugglers, contortionists, clay modelers and wire-walkers are all lined up waiting for the talkies to get a cold in the head. The man who played the hind legs of a clown horse is there with knees bent from a successful tour back in 1896.

AIR TRANSPORT OF FUTURE

By Archibald Henderson

One of the most tremendous problems of the day, now attracting the attention of the entire civilized world, is the future of air transport. At the beginning of the development of the automobile industry a motor car was regarded as a luxury—a rich man's toy. Today the development of the industry is so great as to affect, either directly or indirectly, almost every one now living. The future of air transport is not confronted with many obstacles, for there are no good roads to be built at the cost of billions of dollars. Guide routes and beacons are all that are needed in the way of roads. The principal task is the construction of suitable landing fields.

In this country aviation is regulated by the Department of Commerce. The rules and regulations set up have for their purpose the conserving of life and property. Under the air commerce act of 1926 the aeronautics branch was established. Increase in safety, the promotion of the science of aeronautics and the development of flying are the major objectives.

The three factors in aviation constantly kept in the foreground are sound design, reliable construction and intelligent operation of aircraft.

The human mind reacts unfavorably to the idea of delay in arriving at destinations when important issues are at stake. No one wants to lose time, if it can be avoided. In consequence, man will continue to prosecute efforts to reduce the time in transit from point to point. This is the psychological factor which promises to give rise to great development in speed of air travel in the near future. Already, the continent has been traversed by airplane at an average rate of more than 200 miles an hour. This extraordinary development is a feature of the growth of commercial aviation, which has existed for only about five years. Prior to 1925 there were some passenger air lines operating in Europe; and in this country only air service of limited scope had been developed.

At the present moment air transport may be said to be in a state of unstable equilibrium. Although a very large percentage of the Americans have traveled in the air, mostly in single flights with a trained pilot, the prohibitive cost of a first-class passenger plane is seriously retarding the industry. Although air travel is now safer than any one would have believed possible only a few years ago, many people are still unwilling to risk their lives in the air.

People understand accidents in surface transportation, and discount them accordingly. But airplane or dirigible accidents are mysterious, and not fully understood, even by experts. Some time will be required to inspire the general public with confidence in the safety of aircraft. Aviation, generally, will take a great step forward when a safe and economical airplane is put on the market, a machine as well within the reach of every man as the inexpensive motor car.

"In the near future we shall surely have passenger air service on a twenty-four hour basis. Already huge passenger planes are being constructed or are already in service. Air travel is more expensive; but the increase in the size of the passenger planes on the main lines of air travel will greatly reduce the cost of operation per passenger. Greater speed of passenger aircraft will rapidly be attained. And there are almost no limits to the possible development of the dirigible.

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

Why do so many modern young wives refuse to have babies? Here's an honest answer. You may not like it—but what argument can you put up against it?

Dear Miss Robinson:

I would like to challenge your statement that all normal women want babies. It interests me because I, myself, have often been considered abnormal because I refuse to give up my happy interesting life and become tied down to a nursery. Why should I? I'm perfectly happy. I have a fine husband, interesting work, a pleasant home and lots of leisure, which most of my friends with children don't have. My husband treats me with more consideration than these young women get who become tired, sharp tongued and unattractive. Moreover, we are far ahead financially of these young couples who have the same salary, but have one or two children to eat it up.

We go on trips, out any night we please, no commotion or untidiness around the house, and my husband is proud to bring people home, knowing that he won't stumble over baby clothes in the front hall and see a woman with straggly hair and limp dress come apologizing that "she is so busy with the baby." Every time we go to see such a pair Dick comes and says, "Thank God, you're not like that."

As far as I can figure, when you have a baby today, the mother gives up her figure forever, her leisure, her companionship with her husband—in other words, her joy in life. The father gives up his pleasant restful hours at home, his good looking and interesting young wife, and is tied down good and tight. He can't take a chance in business that a childless couple, particularly if the wife is working, can take. The young couple contract about a $10,000 debt until the child is 18—and probably more, if they are going to give it any advantage.

And I'm not alone in this. There are thousands who feel as I do, only they lie and pretend they're too ill or too poor to afford babies. But now and then one of us has the courage to frankly face those drab, discouraged mothers who pretend to love their condition, but secretly envy us our freedom.

CLARA.

Freedom, a figure, fun and funds—so that's your idea of a full life is it, Clara? Well, if it satisfies you, I should worry. But it's lucky for the human race that there are women who ask more than that from life!

The papers carried the story of one of them the other day. You saw her picture, probably—a tired, faded widow of 40 with a ragged little lad at her side. No fun in those thin faces—no fine figure under that shabby gown; and as for funds, not a cent. Remember her story? She had offered to be inoculated with the awful virus of trachoma. Such inoculation might mean sight for thousands—but it might also mean, long blindness for the one who took the test. Yet that mother offered to take it, that she might get money to give her son an education.

Pity her? Spare your sighs, Clara. That mother would pity you! For she has a richer treasure than was ever cached in banks—and she knows adventures beside which your parties are kindergarten games. She may be blind—but your well eyes will never glimpse the glories that flash before her soul. She may go stumbling, yet in spirit she strides on heights which you will never climb. Offer her your freedom, your fun, your sterile figure, and she'd laugh at you, Clara. For she is a mother, and beside her pride and joy your dreams are a little foolish dust.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a sailor sitting on a gun or something talking to a girl that just loved sailors and had come out to visit the fleet. All of a sudden eight bells sounded, and the sailor jumped up and started to go. "Eight bells—that's my watch!" he says, and tried to get her to let go his arm.

"Oh, you're just too mean for anything," she says. "You're trying to get rid of me. That ain't your watch and you know it. No watch strikes that loud, even if it strikes at all. And besides, that's a big bell that somebody is hitting with a hammer, and you know it. Let your old watch alone and tell me the rest of that story about the whale you caught with a lasso."

Text for Today

There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him can defile him: but the things which come out of him, those are they that defile the man.—Mark, vii: 15.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

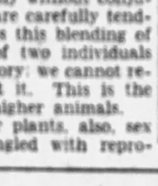
By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Here, then, we have proof that environmental factors, X-rays or chemical substances can actually induce mutation in animals. This must be distinguished very clearly from the Lamarckian method of inheritance that we discussed in the last section.

The Lamarckian method is directly adaptive; the individual responds in a favorable way to some factor in its surroundings and the response is supposed to be inherited. But in these actually proven methods of modification there is no direct adaptive response. The experimental agents simply knock the germ-plasm about, so to speak. They produce random mutations, not adaptive responses.



H. G. Wells

And, indeed, mutation seems in general to be a perfectly random process. There is no evidence of adaptive striving or set purpose in the way new varieties turn up.

The race varies in all directions at random, in a manner as casual and apparently purposeless, as the desultory X-ray bombardment that may be the variation's cause. Out of these random, purposeless groupings of the race Evolution builds.

SEC. 7. THE SIGNIFICANCE OF SEX.

What is the advantage of sex? We saw that reproduction is primarily a sexless thing; that living creatures can proliferate and multiply actively without sex. The origin and purpose of conjugation (of which sex is a special case) are still mysterious.

Sex intrudes, an essentially anti-reproductive process, and forces itself on the life cycle; it entangles itself more and more closely with reproduction until in ourselves the two are inseparable.

In the single-celled protozoa two individuals sometimes come together and blend into one. But this conjugation is not essential in these forms. It happens occasionally, but it appears from the results of experiment that strains can be kept going indefinitely, proliferating sexlessly without conjugation, if they are carefully tended. In ourselves this blending of the substance of two individuals is made compulsory; we cannot reproduce without it. This is the rule with the higher animals.

In the higher plants, also, sex is closely entangled with reproduction. But even in these cases there are exceptions; there are parthenogenetic insects, there are flowers which normally and regularly fertilize themselves.

To summarize the situation, sexual union seems to be an eminently desirable thing from the point of view of the species and yet not absolutely necessary; at a pinch, in exceptional cases, it is dispersed with. Now why should all this be?

We are beginning to see how living things evolve. They are not adaptively moulded by their surroundings. They produce mutations at random; their germ-plasm gropes about in the dark and makes experiments, trying now this innovation and now that. And the formative agent, which acts upon these chance mutations and builds out of them the progressive changes of evolution, is, as we shall shortly see, natural selection.

Natural Selection is like a sifting machine and the mutations are the raw proposals that come to it for consideration, rejection or justification. Undesirable variations are sifted out and thrown aside; successful ones get through and continue in the germ-plasm of the race.

It is clear enough that a race will stand a better chance of evolving and adapting itself if it supplies plenty of variations to the mill of selection. The more numerous and diverse its varieties the better it will get on. So it pays a species to exert itself and keep the mill well fed.

Now for the secret. Imagine two allied species of plant, each producing mutations at about the same rate. One normally fertilizes itself, like Johannsen's beans so that it tends to sort out into pure lines. The other is regularly cross-fertilized. It is obvious enough that the mutations will be shuffled about and recombined in the second species.

Suppose that two good mutations appear in different individual plants. If they belong to the first species they will always stay apart. If they belong to the second they will stand a chance of being combined together in one of the next generations, and of meeting and other mutations, that may be about.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—There are hard-headed, tight-fisted and outwardly unsentimental business men in New York who have poetical moments. Recently I attended one of the dinners, held yearly, where they light cigars, relax and cup ear for seraphic lyrics and satirical iambics.

These are men reporters describe as "steely jawed with cold gray eyes and crisp white mustaches." They swap corporations, tear down blocks to run up office buildings and buy ships by the fleet. Yet keep fingers on the poetical pulse—ancient and modern.

Save for two exceptions, not a person present would not be catalogued as one having no interest in poetry and less interest in a poet. Yet I was told several privately provided funds to further the education of those displaying poetical talents.

"That all success is but a prison,
And only those who fail are free."

My knowledge of poetry is about that high, yet it strikes me the most appealing lines symbolize agonizing futility and as such depress. Nothing, to me, is more poignant with frustration than Edna Milley's popular lines:

My candle burns at both ends;
It will not last the night;
But ah, my foes, and oh, my friends—
It gives a lovely light.

I belong to the saloon school of poetical expression. Poems I enjoyed most were recited by blotto gentlemen, featuring such classics as "I have been faithful to thee, Cytherea, etc.," and that one about "the lady named Lou." I enjoyed them most when slightly potted myself.

Not-that-it-matters-note to J. L. T.: I am not a Broadway columnist. A daily article about New York and other parts of the world is my chore. Broadway is merely one of the myriad facets of the Manhattan kalediscope. And as such is mildly interesting.

A vaudeville star in temperamental moments throws things. The other night she indulged a spasm that was a lulu. A stage hand hung an electric warning sign on her dressing room door: "Don't enter. 6,600 volts."

The frankest want ad. of the season appears in an afternoon paper: "I have been discharged from 16 jobs in 10 months but I believe I am worth $22 a week."

The latest in sartorial shades for color scheme hounds is an autumn brown shirt with collar to match and a pastel pink necktie.

Fred C. Kelly, the writer, was shamefully untrussed in a practical joking dido in Paris recently. He learned upon registering that Don Herold, fellow writer, was in the room adjoining his. Kelly, refreshed with a bath, and without dressing, but peeking up and down the hall, knocked at Herold's door. Herold greeted him with no surprise, offered an aperitif, a chair, and inquired if his friend had a pleasant crossing. Kelly finally borrowed a bathrobe, sneaked crestfallen back to his room and took the next boat home.

Kelly was talking to me on the telephone one day when through mixed connection an irate subscriber, who thought he was talking to an exchange manager, demanded to know why he was not given a Columbus number. Kelly explained they were out of Columbuses, but could give him something nice in a Longacre number. He then tried to persuade him to take a Bryant number—as a gift from the company. The outraged subscriber in a burst of profanity finally hung up in Kelly's ear and they almost had to put me in a sanitarium.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It has been your habit for long to avoid things that require concentration or hard study.

You are only willing to perform those duties which are easy for you.

In recreation you favor those amusements taking the least mental effort.

But in physical effort you are not so sparing of yourself.

You rather like a splash and dash around making more or less of a sensation and stirring things up generally.

You like to be the big wind that blows.

It is not directed breezes that you create, but lots of trouble for yourself and your friends through your whirlwind attempts to have a good time.

You have a job and you need to keep that job.

Do you focus your attention upon its fine points while you work?

Do you study out how to make your work better and better each day?

No, for all your effort is to throw away responsibility.

You have been told many times that you should grow more and more in earnest in your work and have a definite object to study and advance.

But nothing penetrates your brain—you are plain dumb not to realize opportunities you cast aside because you won't work hard enough.
